'Personality Cult' Rapped

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The first bill of indictment issued against Nikita Khrushchev suggests that personality played a big part in the downfall of the flamboyant Soviet leader.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today sets out some reasons for the decision to relieve Khrushchev as premier and Communist party first secretary.

Named premier in the shake-up announced early Friday was Alexei Kosygin, 60, former first deputy premier. Named first secretary was Leonid Brezhnev, 58, who had been one of a number of party secretaries.

The editorial does not name Khrushchev but clearly refers to him when it denounces "cult of personality" and "subjectivism and drifting in Communist construction."

"Hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, bragging and phrase-mongering, command-ism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience" are alien to the party.

World Communist Meet Still On

The editorial, regarded as both a limited policy statement and a bill of particulars against the 70-year-old Khrushchev, indicates nevertheless that the new Kremlin leaders will go ahead with the Soviet plan to call a conference of world Communist parties. There had been speculation in the aftermath of the power shift that the meeting might be called off as a gesture of reconciliation toward China, which has bitterly assailed it and declared that China will not be represented.

Pravda emphasizes the party line provides for "application of the principle of peaceful coexistence between states with a differing social order," something China opposes.

The only hint of a change in policy is in a sentence emphasizing the importance of "strengthening party leadership in all spheres of the economy and culture."

In praising the principle of collective leadership and saying a personality cult is alien to communism, the editorial tarred Khrushchev with the same brush that he used on Stalin in the days when Khrushchev was denouncing the late dictator for fostering a personality cult.

The import of the editorial is that domestic considerations played a major role in the fall of Khrushchev.

Transfer Goes Ahead Peacefully

Transfer of power appeared to be taking place peaceably though there was no firm guarantee that Khrushchev would not fight back. A Western diplomat expressed the opinion that Khrushchev, being "a party man," would go gracefully.

Meanwhile, a picture emerged of Khrushchev's final days as Soviet leader. It bore out the belief that Khrushchev was forced from rule at a dramatic, secret meeting of the Communist leadership.

Authoritative sources said the Communist party central committee voted Khrushchev out of power and lodged charges of incompetence and nepotism against him.

Khrushchev had invited Gaston Palewski, French minister for nuclear and space research, for a talk and lunch at his Black Sea villa Tuesday. But the meeting was advanced to 9:30 a.m. and then cut short.

Khrushchev excused himself, saying he had to fly to Moscow to greet the cosmonauts.

Palewski left and Khrushchev vanished, so far as the public was concerned.

The nucleus of the central committee, its predium, met Tuesday night, with Khrushchev present. It was reported to have voted to remove him from his most important job, first secretary of the committee.

By Thursday the secret activity was beginning to become obvious.

When the central committee vote came, Khrushchev lost. The count has not yet become known but the result showed that Khrushchev had been outmanoeuvred within the party machinery.

The man who apparently did it was Brezhnev.

After the central committee vote, there remained the formality of dropping Khrushchev from the premier's job. That came Thursday. Anastas Mikoyan, the old friend, presided as the job was given to Kosygin.

LABOR UNION BOSS NAMED TO CABINET

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson brought the boss of Britain's biggest labor union into his government today to help sweeten relations between it and the unions.

Frank Cousins, 60, leader of the 1,350,000-strong Transport and General Workers Union and one-time leftist firebrand, was named minister of technology in the surprise appointment of the new government.

Wilson Tackles Trade Problem

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today tackled his new Labor government's most difficult and pressing problem by calling in his "inner cabinet" for an urgent survey of Britain's economic strength.

The 48-year-old leader plunged into his first full day of office by giving top priority to these talks—even before completing his cabinet.

Wilson accepted Friday Queen Elizabeth's invitation to form an administration after Thursday's narrow election victory over Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative party and quickly named key cabinet posts from among his Labor party team.

MEET NEXT WEEK

The first full cabinet meeting was likely to be held early next week to discuss proposals made by the Labor administration's top men as a result of their talks.

Some economic experts believed the government may introduce import controls among its short-term measures to deal with the vital trade issue.

Next week's cabinet will also discuss the problem of how to handle the most controversial issues in Labor's program, such as steel re-nationalization, in the Parliament being opened by the Queen Nov. 3.

The new government faced difficulties in pushing some of its legislation through Parliament because of its wafer-thin election victory margin.

An influential role in the new Parliament may be played by Jo Grimond's minority Liberal party, which stepped up its House of Commons representation to nine seats from seven.

Addressing the nation Friday a few hours after one of the most dramatic election races in British history, Wilson referred to his small majority in the House of Commons and declared:

"I want to make it quite clear that this will not affect our ability to govern. Having been charged with the duties of government we intend to carry out those duties."

With only one constituency unreported from Thursday's

$150,000 Winner 'Numb'

VANCOUVER (CP)—"I'm not calm—I'm numb."

That was how Bill Hancock, 25, a $350-a-month optical mechanic, described how he felt when he heard that favorite Hasty Cloudy had won the Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket, England.

Mr. Hancock used the nome-de-plume Glen Allen, name of his 2½-year-old son, on his sweepstakes ticket that was drawn on the winner.

He was one of two persons in British Columbia who held tickets on Hasty Cloud, winning about $150,000 each.

The other was Sgt. Walter E. Corbett, 47, of the Army Engineers' camp near Chilliwack, 65 miles east of Vancouver.

"I guess I'll stay in my job for a while," Mr. Hancock said today. "I know for sure I'll get a new car instead of the old clunk I have right now."

Sgt. Corbett obtained leave and went to his father's home in Vancouver after learning he had won.

"We can leave home now—just go somewhere," his wife Helen said.

Sgt. Corbett said he also wanted to take a trip but that his army commitments would pre-

All 17 Vancouver Island residents holding sweepstake tickets finished out of the big money. Of the 17, seven ticket-holders had their horses scratched.

All persons who have a ticket drawn on a horse receive a consolation prize of $1,100.

Others, using nomes-de-plume, are Shuswap Kid, ticket VHP 08788; Robbie's Roy, ticket WSN 48985; Cimarron, ticket VJH 88850; Outside, ticket VLB 82523, and Three Dopes, ticket VLQ 48838.

DANGER TO PEACE: INDIA

'Tremor of Fear' A-Blast Aftermath

The United States played it down. So did the Chinese Communists themselves. But it sent a double tremor of fear coursing through the rest of the world, especially in Asia: Fear of Communist China's ambitions, fear of the spread of nuclear weaponry.

European diplomats speculated that the Chinese bomb had blasted Nikita S. Khrushchev out of the Soviet premiership. He was out of office before the bomb exploded. But his Soviet colleagues may have blamed him for miscalculating the Chinese in the first place, diplomats theorized.

Khrushchev had agreed in 1957 to help the Chinese with their atomic technology, presumably including weaponry. He reneged on the agreement in 1959. This helped bring on the Sino-Soviet feud.

Possibly Khrushchev did not believe that the Chinese could build the bomb by themselves so soon.

VULNERABLE

Unquestionably, Communist China remains vulnerable to nuclear attack by the United States or the Soviet Union. The U.S. Seventh Fleet still rules the sea in the Far East; and no challenger is in sight.

The Chinese themselves urged a world conference to ban nuclear weapons—but as usual omitted a mutual inspection system, which the West deems crucial.

They also pledged that they would never be the first to use nuclear weapons: "The Chinese people can be trusted."

But in Thailand, a U.S. ally, a cabinet minister told reporters, "quite a lot has changed since Friday."

A spokesman for the Malaysian foreign ministry said the explosion constitutes "a threat to non-Communist nations in the region."

India fought and lost a border war to Communist China two years ago. Indian Premier Lal Bahadur Shastri said the Chinese explosion "has

PENANCE AT THE OLYMPICS

Snip, Snip . . . and Everyone Cried

Two Japanese newspapers say the girl was Russian. One identifies her as Elvira Ozolina, Russia's gold medal winner in the women's javelin throw at Rome four years ago, who placed a poor fifth in the finals here Friday.

But the Russians say the girl was not Ozolina. In fact, they say, she wasn't even Russian.

"No one on our team would do such a ridiculous thing," a spokesman for the Soviet Olympic team said today.

Mrs. Masako Tanomura, who manages the Olympic village beauty parlor, says the mystery girl walked in Friday afternoon, after the javelin finals.

GRABS SCISSORS

"She kept pointing to her head, motioning me to cut it. I started to cut her hair in the popular Cecile cut . . . she grabbed my scissors and snipped off a lock of her hair at the roots. A Russian-language interpreter passed by and I seized her and asked her to persuade the girl not to do this.

"But the athlete, with tears in her eyes, insisted. . . .

"I cut off her hair, all of it. By the time I was finished, she was sobbing. I was sobbing, too."

Mrs. Tanomura said the girl refused a scarf to cover her head and walked out, her face wet with tears.

40-Year Prison Terms For Killing 80 Girls

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Two sisters have been found guilty of slaying at least 80 girls in the operation of a white slave ring in San Francisco del Rincon, a town in central Mexico. The sisters, Delfina Gonzalez Valenzuala, 56, and Maria de Jesus Gonzales Valenzuala, 39, were given the maximum sentence, 40 years in prison.

Several hundred persons gathered in front of the court house in this small, isolated town Friday as Judge Timeteo Lozano pronounced his verdict. The trial began last January and brought forth details of starvation, beatings and death. Nineteen other persons were convicted of being members of the ring and given sentences ranging from one to 35 years. The prosecution contended the ring had been operating for at least 10 years and the girls who were slain had tried to resist discipline.

CROSSES ON RIVER FLOOR —CANADIANS NOT DULL

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians are anything but dull, says Centennial Commissioner John Fisher after seeing the wide variety of ideas suggested and planned for centennial projects.

For example, one town in the far north wants a cemetery vault for a centennial project. Mr. Fisher found the idea sensible, since the town has difficulty with its graveyard because of permafrost.

Then there's the man who sent in a design for a national chain of comfort stations. Or the one who wants illuminated crosses on the floor of the St. Lawrence River "to remind us of our religious heritage."

Mr. Fisher, speaking at a dinner here Thursday, gave an idea of the extent of the centennial planning — Cape Breton miners are reconstructing the history of mining on the island; Lethbridge is building a Japanese garden; Calgary is constructing a planetarium.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

It was an anxious two days of waiting for Mrs. Agnes Brodie, 1883 Lulie, from Thursday, the day her Irish Sweepstakes ticket was drawn, until today's race.

Mrs. Brodie

However, her horse, Water Skier, was a 66-1 shot and failed to place in today's Cambridgeshire Derby at Newmarket, England, on which the sweep is based.

"I was thrilled as I listened to the race on the radio this morning. I tried to keep as calm as I could for the past two days," she said.

And this means she will have enough cash to participate in the three yearly sweepstakes for the next 113 years.

People are always getting trapped between floors in that miracle of modern convenience the elevator, judging from the dramatic publicity given to these situations.

So the elevator makers came up with the clever idea of putting a telephone in their cages, enabling trapped passengers to call for help, or room service to ease the agony of missing dental appointments, and so on.

Hence, in the efficient, automatic models installed in Royal Jubilee Hospital's new wings there are stainless steel doors marked "Phone."

The little steel phone boxes are empty.

Back in the city after a season of gypsy wanderings about Vancouver Island—especially the fishing holes—retired Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock has bought a house in Langford.

Blackstock

His home for the past several months has been a trailer. Now the new house will give Big John and Mrs. Blackstock some elbow room and leave romping room for visiting grandchildren.

And almost at the same time, another Greater Victoria police chief—Bob Smith of Oak Bay—has taken up the trailer life.

The Smiths are parked in a mobile home at a trailer park leased from Songhees Indian Reserve. Thus Bob becomes the first white chief to make a reservation.

Prosecutor: When you spoke to him, was he rational?

Witness: No, sir. He was very pleasant.

come to me, and I think to the whole world, as a shock and a danger to the maintenance of peace."

In neutralist Indonesia, Communist party chairman D. N. Aidit said the explosion "greatly upgrades the prestige of all nations of Asia and not just that of Communist China."

JAPANESE PROTEST

Atom-sensitized Japan drafted a formal protest. Weather forecasters said radioactive dust probably will start falling in Japan within 48 hours—right in the middle of the Tokyo Olympic Games.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the blast in one paragraph.

The Soviet government declined to comment. A foreign ministry spokesman in Moscow said, "there is no point in our saying anything about this."

The Daily Worker in London expressed the pro-Russian Communist view: "Most friends of the Chinese people will regret that this step has been taken, because it adds to the danger that these devastating and destructive weapons will spread to more and more countries. . . The nuclear strength of the Soveit Union is sufficient to shield the socialist camp . . . including China. . . This will continue to be the position for years."

In Communist Albania, Peking's only ally in Europe, Radio Tirana said the Chinese feat was "achieved without any foreign aid" and called it a contribution to peace.

Other reactions:

STOCKHOLM—Swedish Prime Minister Tage Erlander called it "deplorable."

PARIS—Former French Socialist Prime Minister Guy Mollet said, "This is bad news . . . What is more troubling is the example it sets to other countries. It is the dissemination of atomic weapons."

LISBON—An informed Portuguese source said, "It is still to be seen whether Mao Tze-Tung's shameless theory that Socialism could conquer the world after half of mankind is wiped out in a nuclear war will materialize to a limited extent, such as in Asia and perhaps in Africa."

THE HAGUE—A Dutch government spokesman said, "It is now all the more desirable that China enter the nuclear test-ban treaty."

LONDON — The Times said, "The most populous and most introverted state on earth, the one with the greatest pride and ambition, is joining the ranks of nuclear powers. It is an accomplishment which will make all states look at their own policies again and ask how the nuclear race can be checked—a task trebly difficult so long as China is not in the community of nations."

Law Leads Manchester Over Wolves

LONDON (AP)—Denis Law, former soccer star of Torino of Italy, cracked in two goals today and spearheaded Manchester United to another crushing win in the race for the English League championship.

Manchester defeated Wolverhampton Wanderers 4-2 at Wolverhampton. Chelsea walloped Stoke 4-0 and stayed in the lead with 22 points from 14 games, but Manchester is on Chelsea's heels with 20 points.

Law's weaving and shooting were a nightmare for Wolves, the once great team now at the bottom of the league standings. He scored his first goal after 16 minutes, then laid on the pass for David Herd to make it 2-0.

Fullback John Harris put through his own goal to give Manchester a 3-0 lead, and Law broke through again to score number four. Manchester led 4-1 at half-time.

Stoke held Chelsea to a scoreless tie at half-time, but then the London team got into its stride. Inside right Bill Graham led the way by grabbing two goals.

HOLD ON FOR TIE

Right winger Alex Scott sent Everton into the lead from a centre by Fred Pickering in the eighth minute. Blackpool got a lucky equalizer before half-time, when right back John Wright made a faulty pass to his own goalkeeper and Ray Charnley nipped in to score. It was Wright's first game in the league.

Greaves wriggled free to score one goal, but that was after Leeds had taken a 2-0 lead with goals by inside right Jonn Belfitt and centre forward Rodney Bell. Leeds remained on top in the second half and clinched it with a goal by right winger John Giles—to a roar from the 41,000 crowd.

John Sammels, 19-year-old inside right, made a dream debut and scored the winning goal for Arsenal in an exciting 3-2 triumph over Burnley. He slammed in a rising shot from 15 yards in the 71st minute.

Burnley earlier had scored twice in five minutes to wipe out a 2-0 Arsenal lead.

Wolverhampton remained firmly stuck at the bottom of the standings with only three points from 13 games. Next above the Wolves are Aston Villa with six points and Sunderland with seven.

In the Second Division, Northampton tied 2-2 with Leyton Orient at Leyton and held on to a narrow lead in a close race at the head of the standings. Northampton has 19 points and three teams are in joint second place with 18—Rotherham, Norwich and Newcastle.

K COMEBACK RULED OUT; SAID RESTING

MOSCOW (UPI) — Deposed premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is resting in a government country house in the Moscow region, reliable sources said today.

They said he is resting and taking medical treatments for an unspecified ailment.

His son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei was reported on vacation but his precise whereabouts remained unknown.

The sources said Khrushchev may be seen again in public but they ruled out a political comeback.

They said he is not expected to be present on Red Square when Moscow welcomes home its three new cosmonauts, possibly on Monday.

74 IN B.C.

Seventy-four other British Columbians held tickets drawn in the sweep, two drawing the third horse Barwin.

Margerie Bergen, 21, and John Inglis, both of Vancouver, won about $30,000.

Seven Canadians won $150,000 each with tickets drawn on Hasty Cloud.

Four Canadians won prizes of $60,000 with tickets on the second-place Commander-in-Chief, and four won prizes of $30,000 with tickets on Barwin.

The total of Canadian sweeps winnings is expected to be more than $1,800,000, as more than 400 Canadian tickets were drawn on the 93 horses eligible for the race. Forty-three horses started.

TWO IN TORONTO

In Brockville, Howard Cowell, 42, whose ticket on Commander in Chief won him $60,000, was at work in a gravel pit when the race was run and was not immediately notified. His wife told a reporter she would stay on her job at a hardware store "and I'm sure Howard will also continue to work—it will make no difference to our way of life."

Mrs. Pauline Olcksuk of Winnipeg had to remain calm when she heard she had won $150,000 with her ticket.

NO EXCITEMENT

Mrs. Oleksuk, 51, heard the news on the radio at the home of her sister here where ill health prevented her from attending a wedding at Manitouwadge, Ont., with her husband and son, Gordon.

"I could not say anything," she told a reporter. "My sister warned me not to excite myself."

A victim of rheumatic fever in 1959, Mrs. Oleksuk has had several major operations for a heart condition since that time.

Asked what she would do with the money, Mrs. Oleksuk said she might consider buying a house here because of the difficutly of finding home help at Fannystelle, 45 miles west of here where she lives on a 500-acre farm with her family.

"But I will have to talk about it with my husband," she added.

U.K. Foreign Policy Likely To Shift Under Wilson Rule

By GEOFFREY WHITEHEAD

LONDON (Reuters) — Some important shifts in emphasis in British foreign policy and some disagreement between Britain and the United States can be expected following the Labor party election victory.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson has pledged a fundamental review of Britain's role in world affairs.

The Labor party leadership has made it clear in private conversation that they would differ with Senator Barry Goldwater should he move into the White House.

But no matter how the U.S. election Nov. 3 turns out, the Wilson government probably will clash with the Washington administration on such controversial issues as policy toward Communist China, Cuba in particular and Latin America in general, and East-West trade.

COMMUNIST CHINA

One ranking Labor party spokesman said a Labor government would work even harder to get China into the UN than did the Conservatives, "and with less regard, if need be, for American susceptibilities."

Friction between the United States and Britain over British trade with Cuba in non-strategic goods is likely to continue. Both the Labor and the Conservative parties have been bipartisan in their approach to the subject of trade with Cuba.

LATIN AMERICA

Labor will place a stronger emphasis on British relations with Latin America than did the Conservatives. It will seek to develop closer links with progressive democratic movements there.

The pre-election Labor party spokesman for foreign affairs, Patrick Gordon-Walker, said in an interview not long ago:

"The United States must learn to accept social revolutions in Latin America, non-Communist revolutions of the Nasserite type which, after all, it accepts them in the Middle East."

EAST-WEST TRADE

Both the Labor and Conservative parties have been bipartisan on the general subject of East-West trade, but Labor has shown itself more strongly in favor of its promotion, particularly on the question of long-term credits.

Wilson is likely to take a personal interest in developing stronger trade with the East. He was president of the board of trade in the 1945 Labor government and has experience in negotiating with the Russians.

DEFENCE

Labor has taken a stand against U.S. proposals for a NATO multilateral mixed-manned surface fleet of ships armed with missiles with nuclear warheads.

But Wilson's underlying defence philosophy is that there should be only two nuclear powers—the Russians and the United States.

Wilson has pledged his government to renegotiate the 1962 Nassau agreement which gave Britain the use of Polaris missiles.

He wants all NATO nuclear arms placed under "effective political control" and can be expected to seek a bigger voice for European countries in nuclear policy—leaving the main Western nuclear deterrent to the United States.

UNITED NATIONS

Wilson is determined to upgrade Britain's role in the UN he is expected to increase the rank of the chief Britain UN delegate to that of cabinet minister to give him equal status with Adlai Stevenson.

The man seen as most likely to get this job has been former colonial governor Sir Hugh Foot, who quit as British representative on the UN trusteeship and colonial committee because he differed with the Conservative government's policy on Southern Rhodesia.

Land Buying Forces Ald. To Resign

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Ald. Holger (Spike) Enemark quit the Prince George city council Friday after allegations that his land transactions violated the Municipal Act.

The resignation of both Enemark — a realtor — and Mayor Garvin Dezell had been demanded by Ron Bellamy, who said a member of council must not hold a contract to purchase land in the city.

An agreement of sale was defined as a contract by the Municipal Act, said Mr. Bellamy, and both the mayor and Ald. Enemark had concluded such agreements.

Ald. Enemark purchased an industrial and residential site while the mayor purchased a residential site on a street which has been named after him.

Mr. Bellamy, who has declared himself an aldermanic candidate in the December civic election, has not associated his charges with a provincial government investigation of land sales procedures here.

HAS EVIDENCE

Two weeks ago Lands Minister Williston said he had evidence that speculation involving crown lands was taking place in Prince George.

"Such speculative practices must cease immediately," Mr. Williston wrote to city council. "If it is not possible to stop speculating . . . then I think our co-operative practices in handling land should cease immediately."

A few days later, an official of the municipal affairs department went through all documents here relating to land sales during the last two years.

A-Blast Coincided With Quake

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a bizarre coincidence, a fairly large earthquake occurred in the Kurile Islands, 1,000 miles northeast of Japan, Friday at virtually the same time as the Chinese nuclear explosion.

The timing was so close that U.S. government seismologists here thought at first that the earthshocks which had been recorded—but not yet pinned down as to source—might have been a result of the nuclear blast.

Additional reports later convinced them, however, that the shocks actually came from an earthquake in the Kurile Islands at least 2,000 miles from the place where the Chinese set off their first nuclear device.

A $2,100,000 social science building will be completed by September, 1966.

It will house the university's psychology, history, anthropology, sociology, geography, geology, commerce, economics and political science departments.

Plans are not yet complete for a $2,900,000 education and arts building.

Also included in the second phase of development are an administration building, $700,000; extension to the science building, $1,000,000; site development, $1,000,000; and two women's residences, $1,500,000.

ASKS BENNETT TO INTERVENE IN STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Opposition Leader Robert Strachan has asked Premier Bennett to intervene in a strike of 350 miners at the Anaconda Company (Canada) Limited copper mine 30 miles north of here.

In a telegram Friday night on behalf of the New Democratic Party caucus, Mr. Strachan said: "Request you intervene at once in Britannia Mine strike with a vew to protecting the workers and their families and saving the industry for British Columbia."

Anaconda is in the process of closing down the mine after unsuccessful attempts to end the strike by members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

The union earlier asked the provincial government to intervene, but their request was turned down. Thursday they asked for federal government intervention.

A Mushroom Cloud in Asia

IN ITS PRESENT STAGE OF development, Red China's nuclear bomb may well prove to be more powerful as a weapon of politics than as a weapon of war.

The Peking announcement of Friday's test explosion anticipated this Western assessment by including a jibe at United States "imperialism" and interpreting the Chinese bomb as a defence against America's alleged nuclear diplomacy. And as an added piece of diplomatic armament, Peking issued a call for a conference of all countries to discuss the destruction of all existing nuclear weapons and the prohibition of further production.

This might be viewed in the light of a man who has just manufactured a bicycle calling for an end to all wheeled vehicles. But no one can quarrel with the sentiment expressed in Peking's proposal for nuclear disarmament even though the motive may be suspect.

The effect of the Red Chinese announcement on the West was not very great. The event had been predicted too long for its realization to occasion real excitement. But disparaging assessments of the sophistication of the Peking bomb are hardly valid; with this start it will be only a matter of time until a powerful and usable weapon can be produced, and it would be foolish to overestimate the time required.

The effect on Red China's Asian neighbors may be easily imagined. Here is a predominantly agrarian country which, using a Communist economic and social structure, has almost entirely from its own resources duplicated one of the twentieth century's most important scientific achievements. That fact can be widely claimed as evidence of the efficiency of Communism in a country without a highly developed industrial status. The implication is obvious.

Even more so is the military threat implied in Peking's possession of the power to wipe out an Asian city by explosion or a population by fallout. These facts will also be noted in Africa, where Red China has been trying with some success to establish itself as the Communist leader of the newly emerged countries, at the expense of Russia. A nuclear power has prestige.

Admission of the latest nominee to the nuclear club need not entail any fundamental change in the defence policies of the West. As before, but perhaps to a greater degree, the United States program will call for maintenance of a powerful nuclear armament to serve as a deterrent. This has been effective in impressing Russia with the disastrous possibilities of nuclear attack, and it should prove equally efficacious with Red China. The suspicion persists, however, that Peking, under its apparent conviction that military action is the only acceptable means of extending international Communism, might be more willing to risk its huge population in a holocaust than would the U.S.S.R. or any other nation.

Obviously the time has come for some down-to-earth disarmament talk among all the nuclear nations. The dangers are increasing more rapidly than the safeguards.

Make It Expensive

SEVEN LOCAL UNIVERSITY students have been fined $75 each for their part in a so-called prank which the court saw as "wilful damage." They could have faced a more serious charge and a penalty that would have affected them adversely for the rest of their lives.

It is customary to expect a certain amount of high-jinks from university students; acts of daredevilry are fairly normal for this class of citizen all over the world. But there is a line across which such adventures should not be carried: removal of property or damage to it are serious offences in the eyes of the law. Such actions require police attention which might well be directed to more important work. And in Victoria, at least, they are becoming a boring nuisance.

In this city especially, where the new university is trying hard to maintain its respected place in the community, and to encourage Greater Victorians to respond generously to appeals for funds, any act of students which tends to annoy and alienate a great many residents does incalculable harm to the institution. Magistrate Ostler has done well to impose a substantial fine. He would have full public approval if he were to increase the penalty for any future escapades. As Mr. Ostler puts it: "If you continue to confuse comedy with crime you must be treated the same as anyone else whose behavior brings him within the Criminal Code."

The students' own elected authorities should also be encouraged to deal heavily with any campus exhibitionists who have ambitions in this field. The University of Victoria in its present pioneering state of rapid growth and financial need has no room for kindergarten gangs. Let's have an end to them.

The Indispensable Link

TAKE THOUGHT FOR A moment of the complex steps that are necessary to place this newspaper in the hands of the reader. The news must be gathered from near and far, written, edited, set up in type and printed—a task literally involving thousands of persons in all parts of the world.

And yet all of this operation is wasted unless the paper is distributed to the people who want it and depend on it to keep themselves informed. This is the point at which the Times corps of newspaper carriers enters the picture to fill that crucial gap between press and reader.

Day after day, in fair weather and foul, these young merchants, who operate as independent businessmen buying their newspapers at wholesale and selling them to their customers at retail, faithfully carry the Times to thousands of Victoria homes.

Our carrier boys earn a profit for their labors but, just as important, they gain invaluable training in business and community responsibility. They learn the value of punctuality, honesty and courtesy and the satisfaction of achieving material gain through their own labor.

The Times is proud of its carriers and today, which is celebrated country-wide as National Newspaper Boy Day, salutes their indispensable contribution to the success of this newspaper.

Harmful Pharmacy?

THE B.C. FEDERATION OF Labor's decision to set up its own drug store in Vancouver may result in lower prescription drug prices for the union members and old-age pensioners who patronize it. It will do little to prove or disprove the Federation's claim that "exorbitant profits" made by drug manufacturers have placed needed medication out of the reach of many people.

The plan, as it was outlined at a meeting this week, is to set the store up as a non-profit operation to dispense low-cost drugs purchased from European manufacturers — the so-called generic or unbranded drugs. The first obvious saving is in the "mark-up" charged by the regular drug stores, which raises the question of whether the Federation is opposed to the normal profit charged by retail businessmen.

The second saving effected by the Federation plan would be in the use of the generic drugs but this overlooks the fact that these drugs are already available through most drug stores provided that this is what is specified in the prescription written by the customer's doctor. If a doctor specifies a certain brand of drug—perhaps because he has more confidence in its potency or safety than in an unbranded version of the same drug — then that is what the druggist supplies.

The next question which arises is whether the Federation's drug store can ethically fill a prescription in any manner except that specifically requested by the doctor. If it can, if a druggist is allowed to tamper with the exact treatment decided on by the doctor, then there is a potentially dangerous situation in the offing.

Neither part of the Federation plan — operating on a non-profit basis and supplying generic drugs —has much to do with the contention that, as one union spokesman put it, there are families in Canada "who literally do not buy prescription drugs because they feel they can't afford them."

For most people in this quite prosperous land the decision to do without medication recommended by a doctor involves not inability to pay the price but the desire to use the money for some other purpose.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A HIKE along the shingle beach at Whiffen Spit at Sooke, now that we have had some high tides, will be rewarding for those who are interested in seaweeds.

The season for these plants to grow is over and they are breaking away from their hold-fasts and drifting ashore.

There is the long Bull kelp with its floating bladder, some reaching 40 feet in length. Look closely and you may find some Perennial kelp with its toothed margins. The small bladders are pear-shaped and the ribbons are attached to them.

Scattered along the shore there are clumps of the sea colander with its foot-wide blade, crinkly and thin and with perforated edges.

There is the rich rose-hued colored sea comb, with its many branches. Mingled with it there is the delicate sea lace that is a deep rose in color. The branches of this plant are like a very fine lace and to see its real beauty it should be suspended in water.

Perhaps you will find the Black tassel. It is often missed because of its small size, being only about four inches long and half an inch wide.

Scattered among the seaweed you will find the long ribbon-like Eel grass, the only true flowering plant that grows in the sea. There are two species: in one the leaves are almost hair-like, in the other the blade will be about one inch in width.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

A Second-Rate Educational System Is No Longer Tolerable

Lippmann

HERE in the middle of October with less than three weeks to go, it looks as if the national campaign has collapsed and that what remain are the separate contests within the states. The real election contests have become local, and, increasingly, the role being played by Sen. Barry Goldwater has become perfunctory. The collapse has been accompanied by what the governor of Mississippi has just called "crawfishing." On every specific issue which the Presidential candidate posed until San Francisco, on all questions of nuclear weapons and foreign policy, he has been acting like a man trying to lose his own persistent shadow.

He has crawfished on balancing the budget, on the graduated income tax, on selling TVA, on making Social Security "voluntary," on repealing the many laws which as senator he has voted against.

Thus, by the outward evidence, the national campaign has collapsed both at the level of a contest for votes and at the level of issues and arguments. If this proves to be an untrue account of what has happened, if in spite of all the evidence Goldwater confounds us as did Harry Truman in 1948, the most astonished man in the United States will be Barry Goldwater himself.

It can be said of this campaign that it has been fought on issues that were real enough in the 1930s before the Second World War, but which are now obsolete. Senator Goldwater has challenged the Kennedy-Johnson administration as if it were the New Deal of Franklin Roosevelt. It isn't.

Public Career

Although Lyndon Johnson began his public career as a disciple of Franklin Roosevelt, he is not a New Dealer today, and for that matter neither would Franklin Roosevelt be, were he alive. The crucial fact is that since the New Deal of the 1930s there has been not only the world war, but a revolutionary development in the technology of industry and in the fiscal policy and social doctrine of governments.

I think we can define this revolutionary change in doctrine in this amplified, but not I think misleading, way. Before the First World War the universal assumption of reformers, not only of Socialists, but of progressives from Theodore Roosevelt through Woodrow Wilson to Franklin Roosevelt, was that the poor could be raised up only by a redistribution of wealth. This is still Barry Goldwater's belief, and that is why he dislikes all federal welfare measures and the graduated income tax which pays for them.

The basic assumption of the pre-war reformers is being dissolved in advanced countries like the United States by technological and fiscal innovations. Since the end of the world war, which had a profound effect on industry and on government policy, we have come into an era when the class struggle, as Marx described it a hundred years ago, has been overtaken by events.

The Marxian Socialist doctrine of class war and the dictatorship of the proletariat and the confiscation of productive capital survives today in China and its satellites. But it has been renounced and abandoned by the Labor Party in Great Britain, by the Social Democratic Party in Western Germany and by the Scandinavian Socialists. There is every reason to think that in fact the Soviet Union has outgrown Marxian socialism.

New Concept

The United States, of course, has never had a serious Socialist movement, and there has never been a serious challenge to the American regime of private property, competitive enterprise and regulated monopoly. But the pre-war reformers did assume, as did their conservative opponents, that you had to rob (or tax) Peter to pay Paul. In the postwar era we have seen that the total production of wealth can be so much increased by technology and fiscal measures that the poor can rise without pushing down the rich.

With these new developments there has come an understanding that in this country the cause of the poverty which still remains is not the maldistribution of wealth, but a shortage of education. The children of the poor are hard to educate because their homes are so cramped and so meager and because they go to schools which on the whole are more crowded and have less skilled teachers than the children of more fortunate families.

Poverty's Dangers

The more we study and ponder the nature and the dangers of poverty in our society, the more we have to face the fact that as a whole, with only some conspicuous exceptions, our system of education — public, parochial and private — is starved. The American school system as a whole is not big enough and strong enough to educate successfully the American people.

My own belief is that in the days to come our paramount duty is to persuade the American voters that a second-rate system of education is no more tolerable than a second-rate system of national defence. If this nation is to succeed and flourish as it ought to do, the day will have to come when the American people will be as willing to tax themselves for good schools as they are today for good nuclear missiles. For they will realize that they are quite able to afford both.

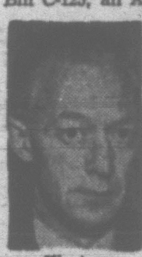
A Blunderbuss Measure That Will Have an Early Death

THERE should be a good deal of wholesome rivalry among members of Parliament for the privilege of talking out Bill C-125, an Act to amend the Criminal Code (Restriction on publication of proceedings). This Bill stands in the name of Mr. G. C. Lachance, a Quebec lawyer and Liberal member for Lafontaine. Its purpose is to amend the present Section 151 (1) of the Code, which creates two offences.



Western

Any proprietor, editor, master printer or publisher is liable to prosecution now if he prints or publishes "in relation to any judicial proceedings any indecent matter or indecent medical, surgical or physiological details, being matter or details that, if published, are calculated to injure public morals."

Furthermore, he is limited now to certain particulars in relation to any judicial proceedings for dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage, judicial separation or restitution of conjugal rights. He is permitted to publish names, addresses and occupations of the parties and witnesses, a concise statement of the charges, defences and counter-charges, submissions on a point of law or the decision of the court in connection with it, the summing up of the judge, finding of the jury, judgement of the court and so forth.

Particular Category

It will be observed that while the first offence (relating to indecent matter) is general, the second is limited to a particular category of proceedings.

Mr Lachance is not satisfied with these restriction. He would outlaw the publication of "names, addresses and professions or occupations of the parties and witnesses", not merely in relation to a particular category of proceedings, but "in relation to any judicial proceeding."

This is going very far indeed. Mr. Lachance spells out his thought in explanatory notes attached to the Bill. The purposes are (1) to protect the anonymity of persons involved in judicial proceedings; (2) to eliminate the unfortunate results of judicial errors; (3) to help in the rehabilitation of the individuals concerned; and (4) to safeguard the reputation and honor of the members of the family of a person involved in a judicial proceeding.

Similarly, on first reading, Mr. Lachance said that the Bill "would prohibit, except in cases mentioned in Section 151 of the Criminal Code, or any other legislation the printing of names, addresses or occupations in all legal proceedings". So the intent of the legislation would seem clear beyond dispute.

No doubt, there are cases where the public interest is not served by such publication. But Mr. Lachance is arguing from the particular to the general, with a vengeance. The exceptions he mentions above do not help matters much. For the first group has to do with such publications as law reports and articles in technical journals. As for the second, the right of publishing would have to be protected in each case or it would exist only in a meaningless form.

Limited Information

Suppose, for example, that a municipal official was prosecuted for fraud. It would be permissible for a newspaper to inform the public of the charge, of the defence and of the judgment. But one could not report either the name of the person concerned or even, presumably, that he was a municipal official.

How, one wonders, would the case of Mr. Hal Banks have been reported? Obviously, a publisher who mentioned his name or address would have been open to prosecution. Nor could his profession or occupation have been identified. Such material might interfere with his rehabilitation. Or there might be judicial error.

Guessing Game

The proceedings, with the right of publication so severely limited, would scarcely make sense to the reading public. Any reports would, indeed, invite the reader to indulge in a guessing game with the probable result that all sorts of perfectly innocent people would immediately become suspect.

Newspapers would survive Mr. Lachance's Bill because trial proceedings occupy a relatively small proportion of available space. But the public right to freedom of information would be restricted in a very important fashion if Parliament was so foolish as to pass this blunderbuss measure. It will probably suffer the fate of most private members' Bills which, in this instance, is exactly what it deserves.

MONACO belongs to Princess Grace; Somerset Maugham is the King Lear of Cap Ferrat; Antibes is a republican city-state over which flickers the genial spirit of Pablo Picasso.

Emery

He went there first for a holiday in the early nineteen-twenties, I see from the chronology supplied by the invaluable Alfred H. Barr Jr., but does not seem to have returned until the troubled summer of 1939. After the end of the Second World War he settled—if one can apply such a static word to so dynamic a personality—in one place or another in the region, and is to be found not far away from there today.

About the time of his first visit to Antibes he had already begun that love-affair with the art of classicial Greece which is one of the brightest, most recurrent threads in the whole rich tapestry of his work, so it is rather fitting that Antibes should be the possessor of some large and important paintings in this idyllic vein. "Et in Arcadia ego . . ." seems to be the unwritten motto for these lyrical compositions, which are executed with an economy of line and a simple richness of color that makes the spirit sing and the heart dance to look at them. In front of them, you feel how unjust is the uninformed view of Picasso as a purveyor of brutality and ugliness. If beauty is to be found anywhere, it is surely not far from the Grimaldi Museum in the old port of Antibes, in whose cool high rooms you will discover these enchanting pictorial fables.

Nothing Surprising

There is nothing particularly surprising in the attraction that the Greek myths hold for Picasso. When you remember that he has illustrated Ovid's Metamorphoses and Aristophanes' Lysistrata, that he has spent over sixty years frequenting the literary circle of a country in which even the youngest and angriest writer would almost as soon get married as prove false to his rigorously classical education; and when you recall that Picasso is an archetypal Mediterranean figure—you can understand his attachment to the archetypal Mediterranean art and its immemorial themes.

These idylls of nymph and satyr, Pan and Syrinx, which are to the similar themes of Rubens and Jordaens like the most sumptuous orchestration of Berlioz played on a silver flute, are only one side of a genius with many facets. Up on the hill overlooking Antibes you will find the small town of Vallauris, where you may see another aspect of this remarkable artist.

Until about 1946 Vallauris was chiefly known for its potteries, which supplied the local demand for cheap earthenware pots and jugs. In addition to the largly commercial output, however, there was also to be found an occasional artist-potter, and it was in the studio of one of them that Picasso first produced those ceramics which not only startled people who thought that Picasso, at 66, had no more surprises up the sleeve of his favourite blue-striped zephyr, but also brought fame to Vallauris beyond anything it had known before.

Honest Earthenware

I cannot in honesty say that success has left Vallauris unspoiled. From the production of honest earthenware pots and those sturdy jugs that belly and curve in the canvases of Picasso and Braque, it went almost overnight into full production of hideous ashtrays, shiny polychromatic doodads and a Provencal version of those repulsive garden gnomes. A walk up the main street today is a harrowing experience, redeemed only by the occasional shop window of some artist-potter whose works reflect the integrity and taste of the best practitioners of this ancient craft.

Public Asset

At the top of the street, in the little square, with cafe tables on one side under the plane trees, stands Picasso's bronze statue of the man with the sheep, which is not a despicable possession for a town the size of Ganges, B.C. Nearby in the chapel of the ancient castle, are Picasso's mural paintings on the theme of War and Peace, painted on a board bent to fit the curved roof of the crypt.

In spite of the undoubted power of some passages of this mural it is not, to my mind, entirely successful in achieving the unity which distinguishes the great man's "Guernica", and there is a curiously perfunctory quality about the application of paint which almost leads one to suppose that this octogenarian is getting old. Is it possible?

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

The Queen proved her personal courage at Quebec, and most Canadians will be more proud of her than ever. But one wonders at the seeming failure of the government to foresee before it was too late the kind of reception she would get in Quebec.

So instead of being the unifying factor that the government must have thought and hoped, the Queen's visit has widened the gulf between the two main races in Canada. And for good measure the slights and insults offered the Queen in Quebec will chill British feelings for Canada.

* * *

There's a lesson for English-Canadians to learn from events at Quebec, but it can't be absorbed beneficially by minds filled with anger and frustration. Quebec is far too complex a problem to permit an emotional approach.

By and large, I don't think Quebec's discourtesy was intentional. The real separatists are few. The hostile demonstrations were the work of only a couple of hundred young separatists, mostly from Montreal. And there were reasons aside from separatist sympathies why the crowds didn't turn out on Saturday.

The whole show was available on TV in breadth and depth that one pair of eyes watching from the sidewalk could not match. The signs of impending demonstrations and police counteraction caused many persons, especially those who would have been accompanied by children, to stay away. And there undoubtedly were some who feared to welcome the Queen lest they give cause for retaliation by separatists. This probably accounts for the lack of flags and bunting and photographs of the Queen in store windows.

* * *

Premier Lesage welcomed the Queen graciously in the legislative building, but aside from what protocol required he did little to encourage Quebecers generally to give her an ovation. And insofar as he failed to give the lead he contributed to the result.

However, while English-Canadian feelings against "the French" are running higher, there is still opportunity for some good to result. It depends upon whether the rest of Canada heeds the real lesson of Quebec: that Quebec's disaffection is not for the Queen, but for a Confederation dominated by a majority of another language and culture, and that it cannot be assuaged.

In short, what French-Canadians want is a Canada in which they will have an equal say with other Canadians in matters that affect the nation, its well-being and its progress.

* * *

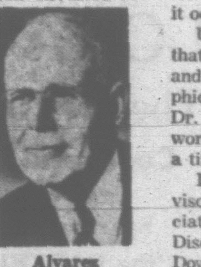
Once having absorbed this lesson, the rest of Canada must then decide whether it wants to pay this price for national unity. It may not. It would give a third of the country a voice as loud as that of the other two-thirds.

The possible alternatives are equally unpalatable. They are a continuation of the present friction and disunity, culminating either in the secession of Quebec, or the federal government's use of force to prevent secession.

This is a time for diplomacy, for consideration, for recognition of Quebec's legitimate aspirations—not for recriminations over events which, however unpleasant, are partly a result of past failures by English-Canadians to understand and help their French-Canadian compatriots.

YOUR HEALTH By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Paralysis Research Grows



Alvarez

I just received a letter telling me of the work of a foundation which is concerned with the strange paralyses, such as myatonia congenita. Already much research on these related diseases is going forward in many hospitals and universities in this country and in England and Canada.

I am always happy to hear of such foundations because many are collecting money for research, and they are giving comfort and hope to the lonely patients who, perhaps confined to a bed in a room, are glad to belong to an organization of fellow sufferers. Then they are not so alone and they know that when some new and helpful drug is found, they will quickly be told about it.

According to an article in The Saturday Evening Post, there are 250,000 Americans who are disabled by muscular dystrophies (with weak muscles that do not develop well). In the article, Mr. Berland tells of a family of 10 in which three of the young people are confined to wheelchairs.

He also tells us that there are at least five forms of muscular dystrophy—the most tragic of which is the one in which children, when six or seven years old, are stricken. As the child's body grows, his muscles shrink and deteriorate until by the time he is 15 he has less muscle than he had when he was five years old.

Because of the weakness of their muscles, these children develop a marked swayback and have a peculiar waddling gait. They fall down frequently and have difficulty getting upstairs. After some years they often have trouble with breathing, because of weakness of the muscles of the chest wall.

As in the case of bleeders, women almost never get the paralytic disease, but some are carriers, who can pass the disease on to their sons. The article in the Post tells of the research of Dr. Dowben, who has found that his treatment has helped 34 out of 37 patients on whom it was tried. His treatment consists of drugs and exercise.

Much of the research today is being done on laboratory mice which have the disease. This strain of mice was developed in 1956 at the great Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine. The disease of the mice was recognized when they dragged their hind feet.

As I keep saying in this column, one of the most fortunate things that can happen to research workers who are trying to find a cure for some rare hereditary disease is to find that it occurs in one or more animals.

Using the paralyzed mice, Dr. Dowben found that a combination of digitoxin and a special androstelonone prolonged the life of the dystrophic mice from the usual 18 weeks to 42 weeks. Dr. Dowben does not claim that these drugs work a cure, but he is satisfied that often, for a time, they hold the disease in check.

Dr. A. L. T. Milhorat, chairman of the advisory board of the Muscular Dystrophy Association and director of its Institute for Muscle Disease, is not yet satisfied, however, that the Dowben treatment works.

Some workers in this field of medicine are able to help the young patients by perhaps cutting their contracted heel cords and then fitting braces. With physiotherapy, they can keep these youngsters out of bed for quite a while.

* * *

I was just reading that a study made a while ago showed there were about 5,000 unqualified men and women in this United States taking in about $375,000,000 a year, attempting, with no good training or without any training, to cure people of their mental and psychic troubles.

According to the report, many of these people call themselves by such fine-sounding names as "scientologists," "metaphysicians," or "astrolotherapists." Actually, a really well-trained and qualified man is either a psychiatrist or a psychoanalyst or a clinical psychologist; and usually such a person is first graduated in medicine and then receives a special training in psychotherapy, with perhaps an internship in a mental hospital. According to my informants, a clinical psychologist worthy of the name is supposed to have a doctorate degree, perhaps a PhD.

My friend, Mrs. Lee R. Steiner, and her assistant travelled about and visited a large number of the ill-trained advisers of the mentally disturbed. Then in 1945 Mrs. Steiner published a very interesting book on these people called "Where Do People Take Their Troubles?"

One of America's great psychiatrists maintains—with much justification—that in America, at least, most of the psychotherapy is now done by bartenders. And he may well be right!

'Drug, Love Cult'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Narcotics police Friday night broke up an alleged drug and love cult.

Eighteen persons were arrested when police rammed through a door in a lower east side apartment. They found 16 persons in various stages of undress lying on mattresses strewn on the floor of the five-room flat.

By CHARLES R. SMITH

MAO

TOKYO (UPI) — Chairman Mao Tze-Tung maintains that Communist China has nothing to fear from nuclear weapons. But his people have paid a fearful price to develop the atomic bomb on their own.

Mao is said to have told a Yugoslav visitor to Peking in 1957, "We have a very large territory and a big population. Atomic bombs could not kill all of us.

"What if they killed 300 million of us? We would still have many people left."

Mao has never said a thing publicly. His government frequently issues statements like this one which followed Friday's atomic blast:

"The atom bomb is a paper tiger. This famous saying by chairman Mao Tze-Tung is known to all. This was our view in the past and this is still our view at present."

Students of Chinese Communist affairs say there is more to this than simple-minded superstition or cynical calculation. What Mao means, they say, is that nuclear weapons are certainly dangerous but that no country will ever use them for fear of retaliation.

This explains previous Peking statements that "the United States is a paper tiger" because its "nuclear threat" is a hollow one, and that therefore "the pepole can overcome modern weaponry if their cause is just."

As to the cost to China of building its own bomb, President Johnson said the explosion was a "tragedy" to the Chinese people.

Johnson said, "scarce economic resources which could have been used to improve the well-being of the Chinese people have been used to produce a crude nuclear device which can only increase the sense of insecurity of the Chinese people."

There is no question that the bomb required diversion of scarce technologists, equipment and national resources at a time when China is struggling to get on its feet.

Mao probably never doubted that it was worth the effort.

Russia Not Expected to Break 1963 Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The detonation of an atomic device by China is not going to lead to the junking of the limited nuclear test-ban treaty, in the opinion of qualified observers here.

The United States already has stated that it would not regard China's entry into the atomic club as an excuse for abrogating the 1963 treaty. Britain is believed to feel the same way.

They concede that if Moscow was looking for a way out it might use the Chinese blast as a pretext to break the pact.

But observers are inclined to think that the Soviet Union is satisfied with the present arrangement and therefore not likely to upset it.

Russia also is embarked on an ambitious program to improve domestic living standards, and this has reached a point where it would be difficult to cut back wilthout causing dissatisfaction among its people. Yet the program could hardly be maintained if an expensive program of nuclear testing were to be resumed.

The treaty forbids nuclear testing in space, the atmosphere and under the oceans. Underground testing is not covered.

The explosion could help drive Russia closer to the West, though its inevitability must have been taken into account years ago when the general line of Soviet "co-existence" and friendship policy toward the West was formulated.

Over the long run, as China builds up an effective nuclear capability, Russia can be expected to grow more and more nervous, especially if its political and ideological differences with the Chinese are not settled.

A-BOMB IMPACT GREAT

South-East Asia Centre Of Diplomatic Struggle

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States faces the urgent task of softening the political impact on Southeast Asia of Red China's initial nuclear test blast.

Peking's success could well have tremendous psychological effects in the Far East, as well as in other underdeveloped areas. It seriously complicates the multitude of problems already facing the United States.

It could be a factor, too, in the ultimate outcome of the struggle for control of world communism between Red China and the Soviet Union.

Could Be Plus

The eventual effect on the United States and its allies of this lonely blast in western China is hard to foresee. It may be disastrous. On the other hand, it could be turned into a plus for the anti-communist world if skillfully exploited by Western diplomats.

The fact that it will be a long time before Communist China has a real nuclear arsenal is beside the point.

In the eyes of many Asians, it is likely that Red China now has acquired the capability of spreading a cloud of nuclear blackmail over her neighbors and will exploit it to the fullest.

The threat of even a single crude atomic bomb pushed out the door of a transport plane over some defenceless, or "neutral," Asian country could give Peking a powerful lever.

Recognized

The immediate effects of China's success may well be detrimental to the U.S. position. U.S. officials recognize this. They are doing their best to counter it.

It could have a particularly bad morale effect in Southeast Asia, where the United States already complains that the people of some Communist-menaced nations are not wholeheartedly supporting efforts te stem the Red tide.

Administration authorities frankly acknowledge that they are uncertain just how much effect these words will have upon the poor and restless masses living in the shadow of the Chinese Communist giant.

Some Doubtful

U.S. officials would like to think that hitherto wavering non-Communist nations in the area will knit themselves firmly into anti-Communist defence arrangements and put themselves under the American nuclear defence umbrella.

However, they recognize that some Asians are doubtful of the willingness of Washington to go all-out in their defence if it is faced with a heightening of the peril in Europe.

China's first step into the exclusive circle of nuclear powers, limited and primitive though it may be, also is expected to be utilized to the fullest by Peking agents. They have been busy for years seeking to persuade the backward countries of Africa and Latin America that their future lies with Peking and not Moscow.

'THIRD WORLD' CHINA'S GOAL

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China, after travelling a long, rocky road to a nuclear test explosion, now can be expected to mount a diplomatic drive to become the nuclear club spokesman for a third world.

Peking's feat—no matter how long it will take to acquire stockpile and deliveries—is gloomy news for the West and the Soviet Union.

Not only is the development likely to increase tension between Moscow and the Chinese, but it also can step up the potential of the Peking regime for trouble-making.

EQUAL HOSTILITY

With the explosion of a nuclear device, China is in an enhanced position to pursue one of its major policy aims—creation of an "intermediate zone"—a third world—which it envisages as a bloc, regarding the Soviet Union and the United States with equal hostility.

The main direction of this drive is in Asia, Africa and Latin America, the so-called underdeveloped world, where Communist Chinese diplomacy already is extremely active—and in some cases highly successful.

In the non-white world, the impact of the feat will be heavy.

It is probable what the Chinese did was accomplished without significant Soviet help. China's do-it-yourself drive toward the nuclear club's door began in earnest in 1958. Since then the drive brought increasing estrangement from Moscow, a widening rift in the world Communist movement and a quiet purge inside China involving both the party and the army.

RAISE POTENTIAL

A Chinese test explosion can be considered strong propaganda for Peking, raising its potential in political wars of Asia and Africa and its capacity to harass its political opponents in Moscow, even though Nikita Khrushchev, the No. 1 enemy, is gone.

While the Chinese are a long way from a delivery system and stockpile, their explosion of a device will raise difficulties for Russians and Americans, both acutely aware of the propaganda effect. Other countries, too, will be uneasy. Japan, for example, may seek revisions of her treaty with United States to strengthen her security. India will be deeply worried.

Klan Members Held

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—A federal grand jury has indicted six white Athens men on charges of conspiring to injure and intimidate Negro citizens in Georgia. The action led a leader of the white-supremacist Ku Klux Klan to pledge support to those named in the indictments. The FBI identified them as members of the Klan.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

Variety of Moods Expressed in Siebner Mural

By ROBIN SKELTON

Skelton

The latest example of public art to be created in Victoria is Herbert Siebner's mural for the Students Union Building on the Gordon Head campus of the university.

The site obviously presented many difficulties; the chosen wall is below ground level in a small well or courtyard and is under one end of an overhead walk which bridges the courtyard and leads into the building.

Thus the forms presented by the under-surface of the walk impose restrictions upon the mural, as does the impossibility of ever getting a clear view of the design from more than a short distance away.

Mr. Siebner has related his mural to the under-surface of the walk by stacking his scraffito "plates," which are embedded in a red cement mixture, in five vertical forms that suggest pillars.

Unfortunately the space between each pillar is so vividly colored and so large that the whole design has lost some of its unity.

What it has lost because of the emphasis upon space caused by the brilliance of the ground color, however, it has regained by the way in which the individual plates are related to one another. Recurring motifs carry the eye across space from column to column and the angular deeply-bitten black lines are so organized as to give the whole design immense rhythmic vitality.

Each plate has its own charm, and uses its rough and smooth lines, and its sensitive blues, oranges, and off-whites with a delicacy that counterpoints the caricature-like strength of the figures.

The figures themselves are enormously clever and often very funny, though the humor is perhaps more lyrical than satirical; all the activities presented are viewed with affection.

Take the case of the woman riding a Centaur, for example. This is both an enjoyment and a mockery of sensuality, the heavy flesh of the two creatures is as funny and as endearing as the clumsiness of a clown.

A different mood is expressed in the series of figures stretching up stick-like arms to support what seems to be the whole terrestial globe; they are tense, even passionate, about it, and their effort presents a fable of idealism particularly appropriate to a university.

The plate of a hunter aiming his bow at running deer is clearly derived from cave paintings and has the same single-minded simplicity of line, the same innocent use of space. It contrasts splendidly with the quiet of a seashore scene in which figures are grouped in monumental stillness among their nets, patient and watchful, and curiously dignified.

Dignity and impudence seem to alternate in these pictures; perhaps the most earthy and Rabelaisian is the figure of a man drinking from a bottle, his whole body straining upwards to the source of his enjoyment, his great belly swagging with the satisfaction of the flesh.

When I talked to Herbert Siebner about his plans for this mural he suggested, as title for it, Man and Universe, adding that this seemed a little pretentious.

The finished object is certainly not as magniloquent or profound as such a title might suggest, but it is appropriately comprehensive in its portrayal of humanity.

Mr. Siebner has shown his superiority to the majority of mural-makers in refusing to allow the public importance of his task to cloud his vision. All too often, the provider of public art feels obliged to aim at sobriety and is unable to avoid dullness.

That quirkishness and idiosyncracy which we accept delightedly as proper to a picture destined for private ownership, we tend to frown upon in a statue or design created for a public or semi-public place. And yet, surely, the public is merely a collection of individuals who each prefer vitality to pretention and gaiety to the massive melancholy of monumental profundity.

Perhaps upon the sacred walls of a bank or trust company we should not be offered frivolity; on the walls of a building created for the leisure hours of the young, we might reasonably demand it.

Let me not give the impression that this mural is in any way superficial or irresponsible: it is an excellent example of a real sense of responsibility to the nature of the task, and though it may not be philosophically profound, it springs from a profound understanding of human society and its foibles, and from a deep feeling for humanity which ostensibly more reverent works very rarely express.

Each spectator with eyes to see must come away from this small courtyard with a firmer assurance of the variety and fascination of human life, and with a feeling for that gay curiosity and shrewd sympathy which are at the heart of all explorations of the arts.

I know that I, myself, will visit the Student Union now for a refreshment far superior to its coffee, and if I occasionally look with envy at that man with the bottle after a particularly arduous lecture, I'm sure I shall not be alone.

OPEN SHELF

By John Mika

The "little" magazines that came out of Paris in the 1920s brought a number of expatriate writers into the limelight for the first time.

They also provided the platform for launching several major poets of the modern idiom.

And for all that the English-speaking world is deeply indebted to those magazines.

It wasn't long before similar magazines in the United States became prominent trail blazers along the domestic literary frontiers, helped along by the expatriates who began drifting back to what they decided was a more civilized homeland.

Native-born poets who had not crossed any foreign frontiers also found expression in the U.S. publications.

And, inevitably, all this pioneering activity elicited a response further north, where the faint echoes whispered through Canadian pine forests, albeit in a French-Canadian accent more often than not.

But as the years passed, the echoes grew stronger until several magazines developed into original voices that began the various literary "dialogues" coursing through our nation today—those between French and English-speaking citizens; new and old Canadians; east and west; pioneering northerners and "sophisticated" southerners.

Probably the most melodious, certainly the most vocal, of the Canadian literary magazines—in my opinion—is the Tamarack Review. And I liked it despite its name which just oozes with conotations of all the standard Canadian cliches.

Tamarack. For me it automatically evokes the sounds, smells and sights of rushing water, sighing boughs, pine resin, and lots of scarlet-coated Mounties in dress uniform, naked Indians and toque-smothered courier de bois rushing about in a mad, woodsy ballet.

As I say, despite its name, this periodical speaks to typical Canadians: dressed in ordinary street clothes and living ordinary lives (if modern life can be called ordinary) in ordinary urban surroundings.

I've just finished the summer issue of the Tamarack—I'm a very slow reader—and in its 104 pages there are these gems:

Two articles, both so well written that their somewhat narrow subjects become fascinating even to an outsider, dealing with a close call that the Cite Libre publication of Quebec intellectuals had when separatists almost took it over and the history of anti-intellectualism in the United States;

Two short stories, both by excellent Canadian writers, one of which is set in Europe and the other could be anywhere although its locale likely is in Canada;

Six pages of drawings by Don Jean-Louis;

Sixteen poems by four authors;

I personally enjoyed some of the poetry most but didn't understand the Ellison interview. I'm sure others would find this experience reversed because all of the magazine is a first class effort to which the individual brings his own preferences and goes away satisfied.

I'm not distressed that the Ellison interview—a sort of exercise in "hip" metaphysics—was over my head because I believe a magazine of this kind should try to challenge its readers as well as entertain them.

On the other hand, although I can't bring myself to read through a whole book of poetry, it is refreshing to browse through a few at a time and a small periodical is the ideal vehicle for enticing one this way.

The poetry in the summer issue ranges from a eulogy in tribute to the late E. J. Pratt, through a few "Canadian" poems by Miriam Waddington to several describing both the urban scene and the human condition it produces in a new land, penned by George Jonas and Walter Bauer, the latter translated by Humphrey Milnes.

For me, the magazine would be worth the price for its introduction to Jonas and, particularly, Bauer.

Both of these men are immigrants to this continent of the kind our government seldom encourages because they have only knowledge and talent instead of training in placing bricks on top of each other or some other manual skill. (Backward Europe is full of artists so Ottawa has to be very careful in weeding them out but fortunately a few get through.)

I was deeply stirred by several passages of Mr. Bauer's work but responses to poetry are such personal things that there is no point in my taking much space to describe my feelings. However, I will quote just a few lines of his that illuminate situations which, even if exposed before, are thrown into sharp relief by the brilliantly concentrated beam of words he directs their way.

For instance, in a poem entitled "First We'll Have a Car," Mr. Bauer explores the pell mell rush for material possessions by a young couple who recite to themselves the ever lengthening list of acquisitions a modern couple simply must have—all on the installment plan. After a list that includes the standard car, house and television, he concludes:

> Lost souls. Been dead for years.
> Dead before they died.
> Year by year they made payments
> In money, in hopes, in years.
> They paid off life itself, bit by bit;
> There was never anything whole.
> When they wanted to start living
> Life was over.
> You couldn't just make a payment on it,
> You couldn't buy it on the instalment plan.
> It flowed on in proud impartiality,
> It ran between their fingers,
> It was gone.

Another of his poems, "Come, Says This Land" has a special meaning of its own to all those immigrants who have found it difficult to fully integrate themselves in a new world. A passage I know would have had poignant meaning for my own father, goes:

> "Europe's echo will gradually > fade in your children.
> I will gradually draw them to > me.
> And then you will experience an > even bitterer loneliness.
> It will be left to one of your > children's children
> To sing the song of boundless > horizons
> And to be at home here."

Well, so much from me about The Tamarack Review. If you want more it's printed by the University of Toronto Press and sells at $1.25 a copy.

If you'd like a subscription, send $4 to Box 157, Postal Station K, Toronto, and I for one would be surprised if you ever regret it.

Handsome Package of Information Will Enrich Child's Experience

JACK R. CAMERON

To be given a set of books costing this much money and asked to review them is unnerving. Rarely are publishers so generous.

The reviewer might be hard pressed to be objective about the books—after all, if he doesn't like them and says so, perhaps no such largesse will be forthcoming in the future.

Being corruptible, I approached this Childcraft library with some trepidation. I didn't want to bite the hand that fed me.

After a careful scrutiny of the 15 volumes, I am happy to report that no compromise of critical standards is involved when I say that the "How and Why" library is an impressive piece of publishing, and worth buying if you have that kind of money.

I add the qualification about money for parents whose well-meant but often misguided zeal for their child's development prompts them to invest in sets of books that are beyond their means.

Such books will certainly enrich a child's experience, but the lack of them will not result in retardation. Books of the quality and scope of this Childcraft series are a luxury, and should not be purchased at the cost of financial strain.

Perhaps the publishers would not agree (although they might) but that is how I feel.

The editors of Childcraft introduce their books as follows: "Each child, to make the most of the world of the future—his world—must develop his use of language, appreciate art and beauty, have a sense of history, know about people in his own land and other lands, know about using the world's resources, be scientifically minded, be creative as possible, and do all that he does with a truly moral, ethical, and spiritual sense."

Designed for children up to Grade V level, Childcraft starts them on the road to these high goals by presenting them with thousands of pages of concise information slickly and profusely illustrated by a wide style of photographs and paintings.

Volumes 1 and 2 are devoted to imaginative literature: poems, rhymes, stories and fables, including the Mother Goose and nursery rhyme standards, and a wide cross-section of authors from Tolstoi and the Grimm Brothers to Carl Sandburg and Dr. Seuss.

The next book, "Life Around Us," concentrates on animal and plant life in the world, often in its most exotic forms.

In discussing the lethal efficiency of the Sundew plant, the Venus' Flytrap, or the Pitcher plant as they smother, crush and drown insects, the editors pull no punches.

There are people around nowadays who hold that exposing children to the culinary habits of cannibal baby spiders will damage their tender psyches, but Childcraft does not make the same mistake.

Its frank approach to the violence in the world is another badly-needed blow against this antiseptic cocoon in which children tend to be wrapped in our society.

Volume V ("Holidays and Customs") takes the child on a brief international tour, from haggis to hulas, from saris to sampans. The commentary avoids the usual cuteness and condescension of children's books about foreign countries.

Volumn 14 is a reference book for parents of younger children. It deals alphabetically with most of the physical, emotional and intellectual traits of the child, (e.g., lefthandedness, nudity, nail-biting, permissiveness.

I doubt whether this volume is necessary; such information is easily available at any library or bookstore, and such authorities as Dr. Spock deal with certain kinds of problems in much more depth.

Perhaps a book of slightly more mature fiction—which the series is short of—would have been a better choice.

Childcraft is a handsomely packaged storehouse of information for the young person. Sometimes the subject matter is treated too superficially, and illustrations are allowed to use up space that might have been better devoted to more detail.

The series, however, is not intended to be an encyclopedia, and the editors make it clear that Childcraft is supposed to whet the appetite for learning, not satisfy it.

No doubt any child with this much information under his belt will have many of the answers asked in the early grades of public school.

Perhaps if more children went into Grade I or II with such knowledge, we could enrich the rather flabby primary curriculum in history, geography and science that exists at present.

'O Canada!' Good History For Young

This colorful account is one of the publisher's "Books for Young Readers" series. It is written for the pre-teenager.

Both text and illustrations are designed to hold the attention of the child, and at the same time give him or her a sound sense of Canadian history. Here, for example, is the author's description of Canadian events around the end of the 17th century:

"Meanwhile the English had been stirring up the Iroquois. The Iroquois began raiding New France again. At Lachine, near Montreal, there was a massacre. At Vercheres a young girl called Madelein and her two little brothers had to defend their father's fort against the Iroquois for days. Finally they were rescued by soldiers from Montreal.

In New England people were afraid to go to bed in case a raiding party of French and Indians would creep out of the woods and set fire to their houses . . .

In these raids there was nothing to choose between French and English. Each side was as bad as the other, which is generally what happens when people start fighting."

This book takes Canada up to about the turn of the century. The main emphasis is on Canada in pioneer days, when life, if hard, was comparatively simple, and certainly for young minds, easy to understand.

O Canada! would make a nice gift, and will fit well into any child's library.

Holiday Theatre Coming

Vancouver's famous Holiday Theatre is to visit Victoria, sponsored by Bastion Theatre Studio. Holiday Theatre will present a children's play written especially for the company by Alan Cullen entitled Son of the Dragon, Oct. 24 and 31 and Nov. 7, at Oak Bay Junior Secondary auditorium, with two matinees each Saturday, 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Son of the Dragon tells the exciting and often hilarious story of Merlin the Magician's efforts to protect the young Arthur until he becomes King, with the help of Sir Ector, the comical dragon-hunting knight, and Arthur's friend Kay.

Tickets are available by phoning 382-4112, or at the door.

North Breezes

Did you know that well over a third of all the deer taken by B.C. hunters are bagged on Vancouver Island?

The Island yielded 25,579 in the last year of record and the province as a whole 69,489. More than 134,000 people currently enjoy the sport and their contribution to the Island's economy is well worth protecting.

We salute the fish and game clubs and government conservationists who dedicate themselves to prolonging and improving the sport.

* * *

* * *

IMPERIAL salutes also to motorbike champ Wes Morhart, to Steen Andersen, Canadian Sea Cadet of the Year, to Gina Mayse, new secretary-treasurer for Colwood C of C; to Robert J. Hodgson, leading the coho catchers with a 21-pounder, and to Girl Guide gold cord winner, Joan Chapman.

Starring Days Long Gone But Lloyd Still Rides High

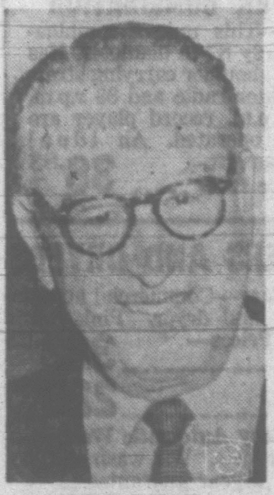
By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—In the days when Harold Lloyd made it, he could keep it. And he's still got it—with interest.

Lloyd is one of the few old-time Hollywood stars who lives like you'd like to think a former star lives. Many of the glorious names of his time are now struggling, with varying degrees of intensity, to keep body and memories together.

But you'll find Lloyd, still ruddy and healthy and cheerful, on a 16-acre estate in one of Los Angeles' better-class canyons. There Lloyd maintains a vast Spanish-type home built around an inner courtyard, that's so big it even has a separate room just for a Christmas tree.

Lloyd's problem isn't making money; it seems to be more how to spend it with the most pleasure. He enjoys life and the good things money can buy. He is a man of passionate, flaring interests which blaze up quickly and die just as quickly. While these interests consume him, there is no half-way with Harold Lloyd.



LLOYD TODAY

A visit to his home is like walking through a hobby catalogue in bare feet.

"I have so many avocations," Lloyd confesses, "that I haven't time for them all."

For a while, he was a bowling nut. When Lloyd goes, he goes. He became a bowling official, once bowled a 300 game, carried a 191 average one season. He rarely bowls any more.

Handball occupied him for a bit. So he built three full-size courts on his place, says he played "championship calibre" handball, sponsored national tournaments. That's over.

Then photography gripped him and, to a degree, it still does. He has become interested of late in three-dimensional photography, has taken an estimated 200,000 stereopticon slides, using nothing but the best equipment.

For a while he was devoted to microscopy. He took courses, invested in the fanciest instruments, "kept two boys busy mounting specimens."

Painting was another phase, and a few Lloyd oils hang here and there in the huge house.

Currently, he is fascinated with sound. His immense living room—"this used to be a neat place," he says—is crammed with equipment stacked on card tables. He has four different sound systems, for four specific effects. He has a walk-in closet lined with neatly catalogued records, and four thick notebooks which comprise the indexes.

And then there is the Christmas tree. It stays up virtually the year around. It is a vast tree, covered with thousands of ornaments Lloyd has collected from all over the world. They are placed carefully according to size and color—"color is another of my hobbies and I have studied it carefully"—and are hung on fishing tackle on branches buttressed with bamboo.

There is still some time for travel — Europe two or three times a year—and his activities as an official of the Shrine and, lately, for viewing television.

"I won't go out on Wednesday night," he says, "because I love to watch Dick Van Dyke and Danny Kaye."

VICTORIA DEBUT

Pianist in Fine Recital

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

One of this city's new group of resident professional musicians appeared as recitalist Friday night, and roused a small audience at Oak Bay Junior Secondary Auditorium to unusual heights of enthusiasm.

In the United States he has recognized stature as soloist at leading fine arts festivals and with several orchestras. Since coming to live in Victoria he has logged a number of air hours to fulfill engagements south of the border.

His debut recital fpr Victoria music lovers was sponsored by the Victoria School of Music.

Three centuries of music were embraced in his program which included Bach, the Partita No. 2 in C minor; Mozart, Sonata in B flat Major K. 333, Alban Berg, Sonata Opus 1, and Beethoven, Sonata in F minor "Appassionata."

Technically superb, Mr. Peltzer's performance could only have been heightened if he had been playing on a top quality concert grand piano.

The small grand he was using placed limitations on tonal quality and some of the finer subtleties of shading.

Nevertheless here was a pianist whose digital flexibility conjured passages of purest clarity, particularly in the Mozart which was limpid, cleanly delineated and if occasionally unsteady in tempo, had genuine charm.

Intellect, fine legato quality and shaping were impressive aspects of the Mr. Peltzer's Bach interpretation.

20th century Alban Berg comes within the pianist's special field and this was most satisfactorily treated. An arresting tonal color scheme pervaded the work and its musical ideas were vividly expressed.

Crowning the concert the performance of Beethoven's magnificent Appassionata was marked by great dynamic range of an appropriately different calibre to anything else on the program, by astonishing power and sheer technical virtuosity.

INFLATION NOTE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Director Vittorio De Sica caused a flurry of inflation in the Italian village of San Sebastiano by hiring 250 villagers as extras along with 27 chickens, 12 pigs, 6 rabbits, 4 donkeys, 8 sheep and a goat for "Marriage—Italian Style."

'Sound of Music' Movie Roused Ancient Fortress

SALZBURG.—The late Oscar Hammerstein II obviously had Salzburg well in mind when he wrote "The hills are alive with the sound of music."

No single phrase could better sum up the atmosphere of Salzburg than the opening lines of the title song from the Rodgers and Hammerstein stage musical which producer-director Robert Wise has transferred to the screen at 20th-Fox Studios and on location here in the heart of the verdant Austrian Alps with the help of stars Julie Andrews and Christophere Plummer, co-stars Eleanor Parker, Richard Hadyn and Peggy Wood and an international crew of film technicians.

FESTIVAL

Salzburg prides itself on being "The City of Music" and its annual festival draws musical figures and music lovers from all over the world.

Mozart was born here and composed much of his works in Salzburg. Even Haydn (Joseph, not Richard) worked here for a time. And, inevitably, in every music store you can hear the recordings of The Beatles.

It was not, however, the pervading musical aura that brought Wise and his 20th-Fox film company to Salzburg. This Hansel and Gretl city near the German border was the home of the Von Trapp Family on whose career Rodgers and Hammerstein based "The Sound of Music."

WON FAME

It was from Nonnberg Abbey, perched on a hillside just below the 1,000-year-old Salzburg Fortress that Maria, a young postulant, came to the Von Trapp villa as governess for the seven children of the widowed Baron Von Trapp whom she eventually married.

And it was in Salzburg that the family first won fame as a concert attraction.

"We came to Salzburg," Wise explained, "because that is where the story actually took place. And the big advantage film has over stage is that we can open a story up and take an audience to an actual locale in order to enhance the dramatic values of the property."

TWO WEEKS

Ernest Lehman who screenplayed "The Sound of Music," came to Salzburg originally more than a year ago to look for locations he could include in the screen version. He spent two weeks absorbing the atmosphere and the scenery and listing possible sites for filming.

Last November, Wise came here himself with a production crew to narrow the possible locations down to an even dozen, selecting sites that would enhance his film pictorially without getting in the way of the story line.

As a result of those two visits, film audiences will get a swift guided tour through such Salzburg landmarks as Mirabell Gardens, Winkler's Terrace, the Residenzplatz and the Rocky Riding School, the open-air auditorium whose rock-tunnel arches serve as a background for opera performances during the festival season.

In the course of more than two months filming in Salzburg, "The Sound of Music" unit left a lasting impression on the community. Salzburg was totally unprepared for the way in which an American film company works or for the attention to detail which results in technical perfection.

And Salzburg will always remember the two seemingly sober men who spent days prancing about the streets and nearby meadows carrying a tape recorder which endlessly blared forth an arrangement of "Do-Re-Mi."

The men were associate producer Saul Chaplin and choreographer Marc Breaux, who were stepping out, weeks before the company arrived, the routines of the various segments of the musical number which is a highlight of the show.

NO WASTE

"It must have looked idiotic," Chaplin admitted, "but it saved us considerable time and money. We were able to routine the numbers so precisely that when the company arrived we went ahead and shot without any waste motion.

"Unfortunately, neither Marc nor I speak German well enough to explain what we were doing. At that, maybe an explanation would have made it seem worse."

For one thing, however, Salzburg is grateful. The location provided unexpected employment for better than 1,000 local residents, including some 600 housewives who suddenly found themselves playing extras in the picture.

In all, the unit spent approximately $900,000 of its $7,000,000 budget in Salzburg, a windfall for a city that normally counts on outside income only three months of the year.

Burt's Choosiness Made Burton Choice

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A lot of people may think that Elizabeth Taylor made Richard Burton one of the highest paid international stars.

Before Cleopatra, Burton's price a picture was $150,000. He recently replaced Lancaster in The Spy Who Came in From the Cold at $750,000 plus 20 per cent of the gross.

Lancaster, a friend of Burton, reveals this facet of Burton's rise from able actor to box office personality.

"Walter Wanger first approached me to do Marc Antony in Cleopatra. He told me he had Elizabeth set for the title role.

"But there was no script—just an English translation of an Italian high school history of Cleo. I turned him down. I wasn't interested in doing a spectacle anyhow.

"Then John Huston approached me to do Night of the Iguana but I turned that down because I figured it another Elmer Gantry. There's no fun in this business if you keep doing the same parts all the time.

"Then The Sandpiper was offered me. I turned that down too. Richard is doing that one with Liz.

"I liked The Spy, but it has to be shot in Europe and I don't want to leave home. So I told Marty Ritt that while I believed it should be shot abroad, he would have to get himself another boy."

Burton couldn't thank Lancaster enough.

Burt is unusual among Hollywood stars. He does only parts that interest him.

Currently, he is playing a Civil War Union army officer in a comedy called Hallelujah Trail. It involves getting a wagon load of whisky across the plains, fighting both thirsty Indians and righteous temperance workers led by Lee Remick.

"It kids the pants off every western ever made. It's fun to do. That's all I look for in a script—a challenge, a thrill of making.

"And, one of these days, I'm going to do a musical. I'd love it."

'Vienna Life' Had Moments

Toronto's stately O'Keefe centre swayed to the melodies of Strauss recently during a brief visit by the Vienna on Parade company's original language production of "Wiener Blut" (Vienna Life).

A "melodic potpourri" was the description given this comic opera when composed by Johann Strauss in 1899, only a few months before his death. It was meant to be not a new opera, but a regrouping of some of the composer's lesser known works in a new setting with such waltz classics included as "Vienna Life" and "The Blue Danube."

MUCH TO OFFER

Strauss died before finishing the opera and it was completed by Adolf Muller, a Viennese conductor and composer.

The current production, on a North American tour had much to offer in the way of accomplished singers and dancers, elegant costumes and often sparkling music.

The lead female performers, all well-known Austrian entertainment personalities, were superb, particularly Clementine Mayer, a member of the West Berlin Opera, who plays the hero's mistress.

Despite a weak opening act, dull stage settings and mediocre performances by some members of the cast and chorus, the production was a refreshing change and obviously a joy to Viennese opera buffs.

Symphony Guest Artist Globe-Circling Pianist

Next weekend the second pair of Victoria Symphony Orchestra concerts is scheduled and this will be one of the few occasions when the entire program will have been given to the works of one composer.

Three works by Ludwig van Beethoven will be conducted by Otto-Werner Mueller; the Leonora Overture No. 3, Piano Concerto No. 5 in E flat (the "Emperor") and the Seventh Symphony.

As featured soloist in the concerto, the Symphony Society will present Walter Hautzig.

Mr. Hautzig, a much-travelled American artist, studied privately with the world's greatest exponent of Beethoven's music, Artur Schnabel.

He has played with, and received the personal accolades of the Berlin Philharmonic, has made numerous world-wide tours and on one memorable occasion in Osaka, Japan, played 20 concerts in 15 days in a sell-out subscription series that brought him an audience of 33,000 persons.

The Viennese-born pianist has also played several highly successful recitals in New York and other major American cities, as well as having been soloist with leading orchestras on this continent and abroad.

The Beethoven programs will be heard at the customary times Sunday afternoon and Monday evening in the Royal Theatre.

THE SEVENTH DAWN
Victoria Premiere
Atlas Theatre

This is a screen version of Michael Keon's novel The Durian Tree. It has been up-dated to match today's headlines and is somewhat cliche-ridden, but the general result is an intriguing drama concerned with Communist terrorism in the Far East.

The main story concerns three guerrilla fighters who harried the Japanese in Malaya towards the end of the war. They are an American engineer (William Holden), a Malayan-Chinese (Tetsuro Tamba) and a Eurasian woman (Capucine).

After the war, the American buys a rubber plantation and tries to persuade Tamba to stay with him, but he is determined to go to Moscow and finish his education.

Years later Tamba returns to Malaya to direct a terrorist campaign from a jungle hideout. The American is now a prosperous planter while Capucine is teaching in a local village school.

The American seeks out his old friend and tries to persuade him to discontinue the campaign. He refuses and Holden is escorted from the camp under an armed guard.

Soon after, he meets Susannah York, daughter of the governor, and romance blooms while the terrorists plot to drive the British out of Malaya. The governor's ball is attacked by terrorists throwing hand grenades, a village is burned to the ground and the whole population evicted.

★ ★ ★

The second story theme is concerned with Capucine, the Eurasian teacher, and Tamba, the terrorist organizer. They meet during the general upheaval and Tamba tries hard to persuade the girl that her loyalties lie with the terrorists.

The twin themes have been capably handled by director Lewis Gilbert, with some spectacular color photography and effective acting. Susannah York, remembered as Squire Western's daughter in Tom Jones, seems equally at home in more tropical surroundings.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Sell-Offs Marked World Happenings

By JOHN BELANGER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

International developments helped shape the course of the stock market this week.

The resignation of Premier Khrushchev, a British Labor victory and detonation of a nuclear device by China produced lower prices in only moderate volume.

When rumors of the Russian premier's removal spread Thursday, a sell-off began. The following morning prices moved higher.

The detonation of a nuclear device by China and the British election had little effect.

Most industrials were mixed or lower. Volumes remained moderate.

Calgary Power was down ⅝ on the week to 23⅝, BA Oil ⅛ to 34⅞ and Trans-Prairie Pipe Lines ⅝ to 10¼. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines fell 1⅜ to 43⅛.

Losses as high as ⅝ went to Consumers' Gas, Power Corp., Weston A and B, Investors Group A and Alberta Gas Trunk A.

Clairtone rose 1⅜ to 9⅞ after touching a high of 10¼. Brazilian Traction active gaining 15 cents to $4.30 on 43,607 shares.

Other active industrials included Aluminium, CPR, Stelco, Massey-Ferguson and Loblaw A and B.

In senior base metals, Falconbridge dropped 2¼ to 77, Inco 2½ to 92, Cominco ½ to 41 and Noranda ⅛ to 49⅜. Hudson Bay jumped 2½ to 74, Craigmont ⅝ to 17, Cassiar ⅛ to 11⅞.

Golds improved 3.61 to 148.20 on index. Dome advanced 1⅞ to 35⅝ and Giant Yellowknife ½ to 14¼.

HOME, BA LOSER

In senior Western oils, Home B lost ⅝ to 19⅛, Calgary and Edmonton ½ to 22⅝, Hudson's Bay Oil ⅛ to 15¾. Great Plains gained ¼ to 12¼.

Base metals was the week's most active speculative issue trading 1,243,122 shares and gaining 9½ cents to 22. Vauze Mines rose three cents to 88 and Westburne Oil seven cents to $1.37. Raglan dropped three cents to $1.18.

On index at Toronto, industrials fell 1.91 to 165.39 and the TSE index 1.65 to 154.48. Base metals rose .23 to 71.57 and Western Oils fell 1.59 to 94.85. Volume at Toronto was 11,672,025 shares compared with 14,714,435. The value of transactions was $44,769,568 compared with $60,052,150.

At Montreal, industrial volume was 708,521 compared with 1,099,968. Volume in mining was 2,865,065 shares compared with 4,954,840.

On index, industrials fell 1.6 to 162.0, utilities 1.7 to 146.4, banks .50 to 131.3, the composite index 1.5 to 156.1 and papers .70 to 149.7.

B.C. HOPES DAMPENED ON U.K. LUMBER SALES

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of British home builders Friday dampened British Columbia hopes for a larger share of the United Kingdom market, now dominated by Russia and Finland.

The 25 builders and housing experts, in Canada for two weeks to study timber frame construction methods, indicated at a press conference that the Russians and Finns, biggest lumber suppliers to Britain, have taken a leaf from the Canadian promotion handbook.

They said timber trade missions have been wined and dined in Finland and that British building officials have been shown Russian methods.

Bruce P. Beckett, British housing official, said the Russians and Finns have their tenacious hold on the British market because they are the traditional suppliers. He said Russia offers large shipments of odd-sized lumber.

Steel Cost Hike Rumored in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Talk of a possible steel price increase mounted in the United States this week.

In some quarters the discussion centred on when—before or after election—not if an increase will come.

Meanwhile, the General Motors strike droned into the fourth week with its effects beginning to spread to other industries.

The steel price-increase talk was spurred by a statement by Logan T. Johnson, president of Armco Steel Corp., that a need for a price increase exists.

He told a press conference even before the added cost of any new labor settlement "we have quite a few steel products on which our margin of profit isn't as good as it should be."

He mentioned some grades of plate, sheet and tar products. Products needing price increases cover more than half of Armco's line, he added.

Earlier, top executives of U.S. Steel Corp., Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Inland Steel Co. had expressed dissatisfaction with profit margins.

Prices of steel reinforcing bars were raised by four major producers, U.S. Steel, Armco, Inland and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. Bars account for about four per cent of over - all steel product shipments.

Crucible Steel Co. boosted by five to 10 per cent the price of certain special steels sold to farm equipment manufacturers for use in plows and harrows.

Some major producers raised the price of zinc one cent a pound to 14½ cents a pound. They included American Metal Climax, Inc., National Zinc Co. and U.S. Smelting, Refining and Mining Co.

This was the second boost in a year and the fifth in two years.

PRODUCTION UP

Steel production, already up to a 16-month high, posted a slight increase last week, totalling 2,571,000 tons against 2,563,000 the previous week.

Some GM dealers exhausted their supply of 1965 models and were laying off employees. Others laid off included railroad workers on trains carrying autos and parts, auto carrier firms, food operations which service GM plants and the like.

Lesage Gets Loan From U.S. Market

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage said Friday that approval through order-in-council has been given Hydro-Quebec to contract for a loan of $50,000,000 on the United States market.

The long-term loan of 25 years is at 4¾ per cent.

Mr. Lesage said he negotiated the loan which will serve to meet the capital needs of Hydro-Quebec and that he could not obtain better conditions on the Canadian market.

NEW OFFER BY THOMSON

LONDON (UPI) — The struggle by Canadian-born Lord Thomson for control of Scotland's oldest daily newspaper, The Glasgow Herald, moved into a new phase today when the press peer added nearly $2.8 million to his most recent offer to stockholders.

He was fighting off the latest bid to keep control of the newspaper in Scottish hands launched by millionaire Sir Hugh Fraser among whose interests include the famed Harrods departmental stores. The publishing firm owning the newspaper, George Outram and Co. has been working closely with Fraser.

Thomson's bid was worth $23.24 million in immediate cash terms compared with his original bid of about $14.56 million which sparked off the fight with Fraser.

Hydro Calls For Tenders On Arrow Dam

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has called tenders for construction of Arrow Dam, second project under the Columbia River treaty.

A Hydro announcement Friday said bids would be opened Jan. 12 and a contract awarded after study by Hydro engineers.

Under Columbia treaty terms with the United States, the high Arrow Dam must be completed by April 1, 1968.

The earth-fill and concrete dam, to be 170-feet high and 2,850 across, is the second of three to be built under the treaty.

Hydro has estimated total cost of the Arrow project will reach $130,000,000.

A contract for Duncan Dam, first of the three, has already been let to a consortium of Mannix Ltd. of Calgary, Standard General Construction International Ltd., also of Calgary, and Emil Anderson of Vancouver.

COMPLETE BY 1968

The group's low bid was $15,899,857 and the dam must also be completed by April 1, 1968.

High Arrow will be located five miles west of Castlegar in the Kootenay region and flood a reservoir extending 145 miles north to Revelstoke.

South Seas Gets Troian Option

VANCOUVER (CP) — An option agreement which could realize as much as $100,000 to Trojan Consolidated Mines Ltd., treasury in the next 15 months was approved by Trojan shareholders.

The agreement, on sale of an option on Trojan's Highland Valley claim group, was signed with South Seas Mines Ltd.

B.C. Hydro Purchases Northern Power Firm

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority announced Friday it has purchased the independent Northern B.C. Power Company at Prince Rupert and plans to greatly expand present facilities.

The mammoth Crown-owned B.C. Hydro did not disclose the price it paid for its new satellite, but said the takeover is effective Nov. 4.

It said the purchase provides assurance ample power will be made available for major industrial projects as they develop in the Prince Rupert area.

Negotiations now are under way for the supply of power to a proposed new pulp mill and associated chemical plant.

In addition to supplying power to more than 4,000 customers at Prince Rupert, Hydro will assume responsibility for serving 168 customers at Stewart, 125 miles to the north.

Service to Hyder, Alaska, also will be continued without change for the present, the company said.

Angled Patio Fireplace Asset for All Seasons

By PAULINE GRAVES

Designed by architects Anshen and Allen, A.I.A., the fireplace utilizes the chimney of the indoor fireplace, but instead of facing out towards the whole backyard, the fireplace comes out at an angle. It performs almost as a divider, separating the two areas of the patio, and functioning for the area directly outside the living room.

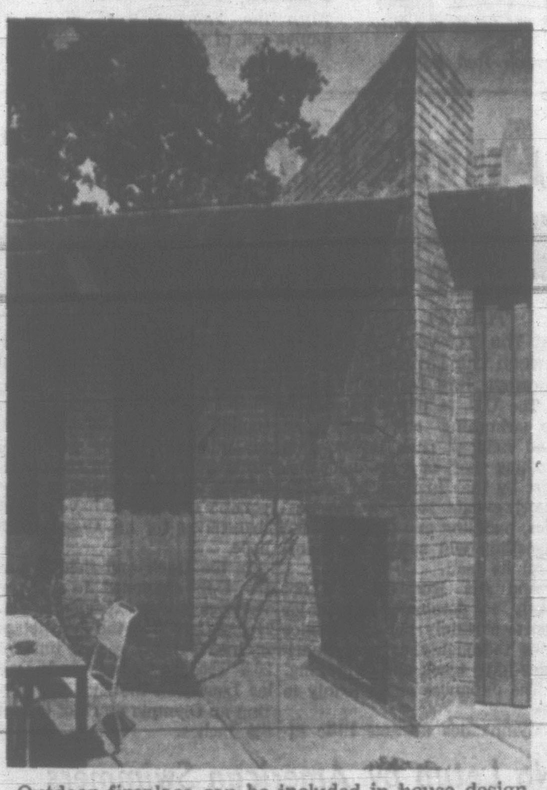
Part of the house design is the compartment for the water heater, but so well is it planned that most users of the patio do not realize that it is there. The water heater is at the left, behind a twenty-four inch strip of redwood board and batts that break up the wide expanse of brick.

Behind the fireplace, storage cupboard doors line up with the rest of the board and batts that comprise the rest of the rear exterior, and are not immediately apparent.

Even though this is the rear of the house, the design of wood and the brick is as carefully thought out as though it were the front.

With outdoor living more and more a part of our life, more attention is being paid to patios behind the house. Large windows face the garden instead of the street, and living rooms are placed at the back of the house instead of the front. To have an outdoor fireplace is part of this trend.

With a grill, the fireplace can be used for cooking, and during the marginal months in spring and fall, its warmth makes the patio usable for a longer period of time.



Outdoor fireplace can be included in house design easily if incorporated as part of indoor fireplace.

Roofing Materials Have Wide Range

When your remodelling program calls for a new roof, you can make your selection from a wide variety of materials.

Asphalt shingles are the most widely used, except for asphalt roll roofing, not commonly used on homes. These shingles can be applied on roofs with as little as two inches of pitch, are fire resistant and come in many colors. They can be applied directly over the old roof.

Asbestos - cement shingles, striated to look like wood shingles, require a five - inch roof pitch, although they can be applied on a two-inch pitch with a special installation. They also are fire resistant.

Wood shingles provide a strong shadowline on the roof and are wind resistant and easy to repair. They are combustible and may curl or crack after a period of time.

Aluminium shingles require a minimum pitch of four inches, are available in colors and have an indefinite life.

There are many other kinds of roofing materials — slate, terne, sheets of aluminum and galvanized steel, clay tile, copper and several others. Each has certain advantages and disadvantages. Before you make a selection, ask your contractor or dealer to explain the whys and wherefores of the different kinds.

The size of your pocketbook will play a part in your decision, of course, since prices vary from as little as $20 per square to as much as $200 per square. A square is 100 square feet of roof area.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Geraniums from planters and beds can be put into large pots of soil if needed for next year. Remove all flowers and buds, keep the plants cool and fairly dry during winter.

Many plants such as browallia, trailing lobelia, Nepeta hederacea, blue agathea may be partly cut back, potted up and used for greenhouse or sunporch decoration.

Pot up ixias, sparaxis, and ixiolirion for early spring bloom. In frost-free gardens, plant these in sandy sunny borders. Give cool treatment to potted ones.

Continue mowing of lawns as long as grass grows. Neglect now means time spent in renovation in spring.

Undeveloped figs should be removed from the trees. No advantage in leaving them on as they will not ripen or grow.

Celery and leeks can be earthed up some more. Celery is used from late fall into early winter, and leeks all through the winter.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Preferences of Plants Cues Success in Garden

By JACK BEASTALL

Plants have likes and dislikes, and when everything is to their liking they are happy and contented. Since the plants we grow in gardens are not in their natural environment they depend on us, the gardeners, for their happiness.

Jack

To give them conditions to their liking we must know something of their needs, and this information can be obtained from good gardening books and from the men who grow plants and supply them to gardeners.

When buying plants with which you have had no previous experience always ascertain whether they require full sun, part shade (if so, for what part of the day), or full shade.

Many would-be gardeners suffer disappointments and failures simply because their plants are wrongly located as far as light intensity is concerned, and when you are a beginner it only takes a few failures to make you give up in despair.

ACID PREFERENCE

One other point worth determining at the same time is whether the plant you are purchasing needs an acid soil.

Most plants will be quite content in the soil you have in your garden, but the small group which prefer an acid soil has become more readily available in the past 10 years and more popular.

Failures have been encountered because their requirements were not explained.

Many acid soil plants also need partial shade or filtered sunlight, and it is worth remembering that a liking for shade always denotes a liking for moist soil.

If your taste runs to acid soil plants it is wise in a small garden to put them all together in a bed made to suit their requirements, where the acidity can be maintained with acid-type fertilizers and a peat moss mulch.

The popularity of heathers is increasing. These are full-sun plants but they will not tolerate the dry conditions near house foundations (especially under wide eaves) nor the heat reflected from a stucco wall.

Even wall climbers should not be placed too near the foundation. It is best to set the roots about 18 inches from the concrete and then train the top growth back to the wall.

A minimum of 24 inches should be allowed for shrubs of small to medium growth and 36 inches for those of large dimensions.

WATER NEED

For success with any foundation planting, especially under the wide eaves of the modern buildings, water must be applied every month of the year regardless of how ridiculous it may seem to be out with a hose in a winter's rain.

Planting holes for trees need to be wide but not deep, although the clay below the normal depth of digging should be loosened and the soil above it well mixed with compost and bonemeal.

Obviously such disturbance is going to settle, and time must be allowed for this to occur before the tree is planted, otherwise the tree will settle with the soil and fail to thrive because it is too deeply sunk into the soil.

Since fruit and ornamental trees will soon be available, it is wise to make the holes immediately and drive in the stakes which will provide support until a sound root system is established.

AERATE LAWNS

There is some truth in the theory that most of our lawn troubles stem from the inability to cultivate around each grass plant as we do around our trees and shrubs.

Walking and playing on a lawn compacts the soil just the same as it does the garden path, and compaction prevents the penetration of water and plant food and the development of deep healthy roots.

The nearest to cultivation on a lawn is aeration, the punching of holes or making of slits to permit air, water and food to enter. The best times to aerate are spring and fall when the soil is damp but not wet, and each gardener must determine for himself when conditions on his particular lawn are right for doing the work.

Forgery Ring Broken

TORONTO (CP) — Detectives of suburban Etobicoke say they have broken a Canada-wide cheque forging operation with the arrest Thursday of one man. They said the operation had been conducted so smoothly and efficiently in Ontario, British Columbia, Alberta and Quebec it may have continued indefinitely but for the vigilance of a bank employee.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. What can be planted on a sloping, sunny bank to hold the soil, grow quickly, and yet look interesting from the house and from the patio area? E.N.M., Saanich.

A. You do not say how extensive an area the slope covers. If the area is small, one kind of cover will be more effective than several different kinds, but if fairly extensive, a variety could be more pleasing.

The creeping types of cotoneasters, with almost evergreen foliage which turns a good color in fall and scarlet berries in profusion, cover an area a yard square in a season. These are excellent for large slopes. Smaller types which also creep and root as they go will do a job in more restricted areas.

For areas which are at a considerable distance from the viewpoint, various kinds of low growing brooms in pale cream, yellow, scarlet and gold are immensely effective in holding soil. They may be interplanted with more creeping types of shrubby plants to hold the soil while the brooms get their roots established.

If the slope is steep it may be necessary to put in roughly made wooden boxes to hold soil and moisture for a season or two. These are set horizontally into the slope and the plant set in the middle.

This is a bulb
This beautiful flower came from that bulb
A miracle? Not at all here's how to do it . . .
Just dig a hole — drop in a bulb, right side up
Add a few handfuls of earth, water . . .
Walk away whistling
Suddenly it's Spring

Your Springtime can be electric with beauty. Take tulips. They range in color from pure white to almost black, from softest pink to deepest purple. They add special brilliance to any garden. Daffodils often beat the robin in announcing Spring. Their golden beauty — seemingly so fragile — defies winter's final blasts. And you can't mistake the fragrance of a hyacinth. It's the very breath of Spring. White, yellow, red, pink, blue — they light up the area wherever they are. Dutch flower bulbs: so simple to grow; so easy to care for and so inexpensive. For the best, be sure they're marked "Imported from Holland."

YOGI 'DOESN'T MIND' NEW POSITION

INDIANS TO STAY IN CLEVELAND

Will Keane Take Over Berra's Job With Yankees?

By Associated Press

While the baseball world digested Friday's bombshells that left World Series rivals Johnny Keane and Yogi Berra as ex-managers, the grapevine whispered that Keane will be the new pilot of New York Yankees and Leo Durocher will succeed him as field boss of St. Louis Cardinals.

Reliable sources reported that Keane had the edge for the Yankee job over Alvin Dark, ousted earlier this month as manager of San Francisco Giants.

Durocher was known to be the favorite of St. Louis owner Gussie Busch but the Cards', new general manager, Bob Howsam, was rumored to be pushing Charlie Metro, Chicago White Sox scout and veteran minor league pilot.

Before the second-guessers had much of a chance to rehash the World Series, Keane marched into Busch's St. Louis office and handed in his resignation, which he said was written several weeks ago.

Not long after, Berra got the bad news from Yankee general manager Ralph Houk that the American League champs had decided to replace him after a one-year trial. The 39-year-old Yogi immediately signed a two-year contract as a special field consultant under Houk.

In addition to the Keane-Berra announcements:

Cleveland Indians, rumored to be moving to Seattle, decided to remain in Cleveland at least through 1965.

Eight wealthy Milwaukee businessmen asked baseball commissioner Ford Frick to help them arrange negotiations for the purchase of the Braves, whose present owners reportedly plan to move the club to Atlanta.

Pittsburgh Pirates said they wanted Keane to replace Danny Murtaugh, who resigned as manager because of ill health.

Bing Devine, fired in August as the Cardinals' general manager, was named Executive of The Year for the second consecutive year by the other major league general managers.

Keane said his decision to step down was made by him and his wife Sept. 28 as a result of "a number of little things—none really important."

The 53-year-old Keane became the likely successor to Berra as soon as the Yankees made their announcement. Houk said Keane and Dark were among four possibilities being considered. He did not name the others.

Cardinal coach Red Schoendienst was mentioned as a possible successor to Keane but it was reported that he turned down an offer to manage in the Cardinal farm system.

Houk said the Yankees probably would name Berra's successor within a week.

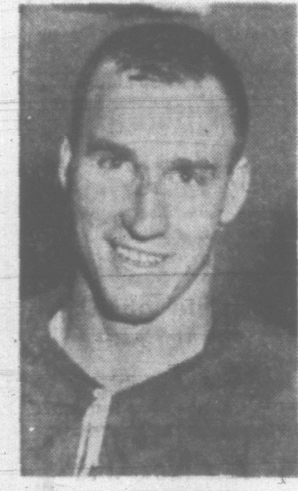
In St. Louis, Busch appointed a six-man committee to screen Cardinal candidates.

The idea of dropping Berra, Houk said, began in mid-August when the Yankees were 5½ games out of first place.

"The move had nothing to do with losing the World Series," Houk said. "Friday morning was the first Yogi knew about it. In his new job, he'll be scouting major league teams and looking at some of the players in our farm system."

"I don't mind," Berra said, although he had expressed the hope earlier in the week that he would be rehired. "I'll be spending the year at home. Where can you get a job like this? I don't have to sign in or punch a clock. And the pay is good."

Maple Leafs to Test Seals' Worth Tonight



AL NICHOLSON
. . . here tonight

Give Norman (Bud) Poile a moment or two to think it over. Maybe he'd like to re-assess the stock of his Seals.

This is the Western Hockey League club which, according to Mr. Poile, cost $150,000 to assemble. By either major or minor standards, it is an eye-popping figure.

Poile picked up handsome dividends for his investment last season when the Seals came around to collect the Lester Patrick Trophy and the Western League playoffs championship.

But some of the expensive polish adopted a dime-store lustre Friday night. Poile's high-salaried hands were bopped 7-0 by Vancouver Canucks, last season's basement bargain.

Don't doubt Poile just yet, however. One game doesn't mean a thing. Then, too, Poile has the habit of being right more often than wrong.

Seals, who come into our Memorial Arena tonight for their first engagement with Rudy Pilous' Maple Leafs, ran into a hot club Friday night. Also, there was Phil Maloney, a bargain at almost any price.

They say Phil has a bad knee and that his playing days are numbered. But neither Maloney nor Poile are convinced.

MALONEY GETS THREE

Maloney has been told by doctors to take it easy on the ice or face an end to a brilliant minor league career. He didn't skate hard Friday night, but he was in position for key passes and made few mistakes.

"We came into town and found out that this guy is a cripple and might never play hockey again.

With or without Maloney, Canucks were shutout-bound. They had a 5-0 lead, before a crowd of 3,091, after the first period on two goals by Maloney, two by Bob Kabel and another by playing-coach Larry Popein. Maloney scored again in the second period, along with Buddy Boone.

PROTECTED SHUTOUT

Canucks spent the third period protecting the shutout for goalie Gillis Boisvert.

Boisvert had to have luck with him. Former National Leaguers Charlie Burns, Gerry Odrowski, Dallas Smith and Wayne Connelly along with ex-Cougar Al Nicholson were among the Seals who had good scoring chances but were foiled by either (a) hard luck; (b) poor shooting, or (c) Boisvert.

Hasty Cloud In Close Win

Hasty Cloud won by three-quarters of a length.

Commander in Chief, last year's winner, made a late effort and almost caught Hasty Cloud in a game bid to become the third horse to win the race in two successive years since it was first run in 1900. Commander in Chief finished four lengths ahead of Barwin.

Hasty Cloud started at odds of 100-8, with Commander in Chief at 25-1 and Barwin at 33-1. Owl was fourth and River Chanter fifth.

Commander in Chief was second and Barwin third.

The race was the last of the year carrying the Irish Sweepstakes. It was worth £5,544 ($16,632) to the winner.

Burgess to Lead Canadian Squad

Veteran Victoria kicking ace Don Burgess will captain the Canadian rugby side at Macdonald Park next Saturday against the spectacular touring Fiji team.

Three other players in the Victoria Rugby Union were listed as starters in the All-Canada roster released today. Tom Browne will hold down a centre spot on the three-quarter line and Lyn Paterson and Chris Pollard will be operating with the forward pack. Victoria's Alan Rees has been selected as a reserve.

Burgess has drawn the fullback assignment.

Also due to play for Canada are backfielders Gerry Lorenze, Vancouver; Garry Rolls, University of B.C., and John Pavely, Calgary.

AMAZING ENTHUSIASM

Completing the forward roster are Jim Schofield and Harry Calder, both of Quebec; Doug Lillywhite, Calgary; Jim Porter and Mike Chambers of Vancouver, and Ted Bunyan of UBC.

Heading home after a tour of Europe and Britain, the Fiji players are reported to tackle the game with amazing enthusiasm. Their great ball-handling and speed confused several rival teams on their tour and promise to give the Canadians a merry, and perhaps frustrating, afternoon.

Game time will be 2:30 p.m.

Rookie Takes Parker's Spot With Argos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts have only a mathematical chance of gaining the third and final playoff berth in the Eastern Football Conference, but they've left no stone unturned in their quest for a winning combination.

The cellar - dwelling Argos meet third-place Montreal Alouettes in Toronto Sunday with a team that has been subject to a last minute revamping.

Toronto currently trails Montreal by four points and both clubs meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders once in the remainder of the 14-game schedule.

Toronto must win all three games. Montreal must lose all three.

Hamilton visited Ottawa today with the leadership of the conference at stake. They were tied for first place with 15 points each.

Joey Archer Upsets Tiger

LIONS AT EDMONTON

Rushing Rivals Grab Spotlight

By The Canadian Press

Rivals for the Western Football Conference rushing honors face each other for the last time of the regular season tonight when Calgary Stampeders play hosts to Saskatchewan Roughriders in one of three WFC games this weekend.

Ed Buchanan of Saskatchewan is breathing down the neck of Stampeders' Lovell Coleman who leads the conference in rushing with 1,333 yards and a 6.2-yard average. Buchanan has 1,209 yards and a 7.7-yard average.

The personal battle between Coleman and Buchanan, however, will only be an added attraction as Saskatchewan makes a bid for a share of second spot in the standings.

The game, to be telecast at 8 p.m. PDT on the CBC western network, will be the highlight of the weekend action which will have British Columbia Lions in Edmonton tonight and the Edmonton Eskimos in Winnipeg Monday.

If Saskatchewan loses the contest, it will eliminate any hope Riders have for a second-place finish. A victory would earn them a tie and a chance of catching league-leading Lions.

EXPECT BATTLE

Lions, out for their second consecutive league title, expect a stiff fight from fourth placed Edmonton who, says B.C. coach Dave Skrien, have been improving steadily in the late stages of the season. Kickoff time is 8:30 p.m. MST.

An Edmonton victory would lock up fourth place for the club and keep B.C. embroiled in a battle for top spot.

Eskimos will be going with Bill Redell as quarterback who replaced Jon Anabo who has a knee injury.

TRANMERE ROVERS WIN

LONDON (Reuters) — Tranmere Rovers beat Bradford City 5-1 in an English Division IV soccer game played Friday night.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Latest winner of men's fivepin division in Times Bowler-of-Week competition is Art Roberts, 997 Dunsmuir. Rolling in Heaneys League at Loomer Lanes, Art came up with games of 289, 324 and 294 for total of 907, topping score that earned him Bowler-of-Week award last season. Art is now eligible for another shot at Times Bowler-of-the-Year trophy next May. He was fourth in final rolloff last spring.

Long Tieup Severed By Sale of Gibson's

John Achtem has severed a long association with Victoria bowling.

Achtem announced Friday that he has sold Gibson's Bowladrome to W. T. "Bill" Smith of Vancouver and Smith's two sons, Ted and Bob.

Former owner of Chapman's and Seymour Lanes in Vancouver and the Lethbridge Bowladrome, Achtem purchased Gibson's in 1950 and doubled its size to 40 lanes in 1953.

Bill Smith formerly managed Chapman's, is a past-president of the Vancouver Fivepin Association and a director of the B.C. Bowling Proprietors' Association He and Bob took over operations at Gibson's Friday and announced that no staff changes are planned.

Americans Reaping Rich Medal Harvest

TOKYO (CP)—In the first week of competition at the Tokyo Olympic Games, the expected tussle between the United States and Russia for unofficial team honors has failed to materialize.

The U.S. is piling up medals in swimming and track and field at such a rate that nothing short of a prodigious effort by the Russians in coming sport events such as gymnastics, paddling and Greco-Roman wrestling will suffice to overhaul its lead.

And the Russians are not likely to dominate any major sport—certainly not gymnastics —as thoroughly as the Americans have track and swimming.

The Japanese stand firmly in the way.

Gymnastics attracts little attention in North America but, to Japanese sports fans, it's practically the main reason for having Olympic Games and the country's gymnasts have steeled themselves for an all-out effort here.

In the track and field events the U.S. continued to get the victories it was expected to get. Henry Carr won the 200 metres in the Olympic record time of 20.3 seconds today, and Dallas Long won the shot put, setting an Olympic mark of 66 feet 8½ inches.

No Letup by American Swimmers

U.S. favorites advanced easily through the qualifying rounds of the 110 - metre hurdlers and the 400 metres, although they can expect a stiff battle in the latter from a starry trio from Trinidad.

There was no letup in swimming. Three U.S. girls, led by Marilyn Ramenofsky, lowered the Olympic record in the qualifying heats of the 400 - metre freestyle with ease.

The Germans, who would probably be leading the swimming competition if the U.S. were not around, thrilled the spectators at the Olympic Pool momentarily with a corking good time of 8:09.7 in the first semi-final of the men's 800-metre freestyle relay, they broke the record of 8:10.2 set by the U.S. in 1960.

In the next heat the U.S. sent out a second-string team just to ensure itself of a spot in the finals. That team promptly lowered the record to 8:09.0.

Russia finally got a gold medal in track and field, Irina Press coming through as expected in the pentathlon. She scored a world record total of 5,246 points in this gruelling two-day, five-event addition to the women's program. The previous record, which she held, was 5,137.

Young Italian Springs Surprise

It was not quite all peaches and cream for the U.S. Klaus Diaiasi, a 17-year-old Italian schoolboy, caused a minor sensation by taking the lead in the men's platform diving competition after completion of seven dives.

The field was trimmed to eight for the last three dives Sunday. The defending champion from the U.S., Bob Webster, was in sixth place.

Hungary won a fencing gold medal in the women's foil team competition and Czechoslovakia got one in cycling when Hiri Daller won the 4,000-metre individual pursuit.

Betty Cuthbert of Australia provided a heartwarming comeback story on the track when she won the 400 metres in 52 seconds flat in a stirring duel with Ann Packer of Britain. Miss Cuthbert, a triple gold medallist in sprints at Melbourne in 1956, failed to accomplish anything at Rome in 1960.

Gaston Roelants won the 3,000 - metre steeplechase, in which no one has beaten him for the last two years, to bring Belgium its first gold medal in track and field since 1948.

RUSSIA GETS GOLD

Russia got its second gold medal in weightlifting when middle - heavyweight Vladimir Golovanov raised a record-shattering total of 1,072.5 pounds.

At the shooting ranges, Ennio Mattarelli of Italy scored 198 out of a possible 200 to win the clay pigeon gold medal.

Canada had two marksmen in the event. Floyd Nattrass of Edmonton finished 12th, Harry Willsie of Westmount, Que., 39th.

Best Canadian performance of the day came from sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who finished fourth in the 200 metres behind Carr, Paul Drayton of the U.S. and Edwin Roberts of Trinidad.

Drayton was timed in 20.5 seconds, Roberts in 20.6 and Jerome in 20.7.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., moved through two rounds of preliminary heats in the 400 metres to qualify for the semifinals Sunday. Ergas Leps of Toronto qualified for the semifinals in the 1,500 metres.

Premier Cables Congratulations To B.C. Athletes

"Congratulations on your splendid victory," he said in the message to George Hungerford of Vancouver and Roger Jackson of Toronto, gold medallists in the coxless pairs.

A cable to Harry Jerome of Vancouver, third in the 100-metre dash, said: "Heartiest congratulations."

"I hope to send many more telegrams," said the premier.

In Vancouver, Mayor Bill Rathie said gold medals of civic recognition will go to the rowers and Jerome.

POILE SHRUGS OFF EXPANSION NOISES

TELEVISION COULD HELP

Spinning Turnstiles Tell All About 'Status'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The general manager of the San Francisco Seals hockey club has attempted to destroy several myths concerning major league hockey status.

Bud Poile, long regarded as one of the sharpest operators in minor league hockey, told newsmen that attendance, not players, is the sole factor governing major and minor league status. His club played in Vancouver Friday night and is in Victoria tonight.

Poile, who spent 13 years managing and coaching at Edmonton and San Francisco in the Western Hockey League, said when he moved to the California city he believed it would be admitted to the NHL.

Now he said: "I don't believe the National League is the slightest bit interested in admitting us unless it means vastly increase TV revenue for them."

He made the statement despite expansion noises from the NHL bosses following the last annual meeting. Stafford Smythe, president of the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, has said he considers Vancouver a choice spot for the National League to put another team and offered to build an ice palace if given the land.

Poile agreed Vancouver was a prime spot, but said "Major league status is determined by attendance."

Thus, he said, if Vancouver had a 12,000-plus arena instead of the present 5,000 the Canucks could afford to build a minor league farm system and thus reach major league status without the NHL.

Poile indicated this is the plan in San Francisco where the Seals now own 15 of their 18 players. Poile said they were purchased at a cost of more than $150,000.

The general manager of the last two WHL champions said a team can never reach major league status while dependent on other organizations for players.

Poile said with increased seating it naturally follows that clubs can own players of higher calibre.

This is the case in San Francisco and Los Angeles, where teams own their own players and have been able to work out TV deals.

He said the National League, which is limited to the northeast portion of the continent, will never get lucrative TV contracts on the scale of football and baseball until there is an audience across the continent.

Poile denied there is unrest with California fans demanding NHL hockey.

He said people in California consider WHL players among the best because they aren't exposed to the National Hockey League the way Canadians are.

He said bringing the Toronto Maple Leafs to San Francisco for an exhibition game recently could have been an error, but the Seals showed very well before a crowd of more than 7,000 and left the audience satisfied there is little difference between WHL and NHL. The Leafs won 5-3.

Poile said the WHL might never build to the calibre of the NHL, but as long as the league is balanced the fans will be well entertained.

With four of the cities in the league, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles with rinks seating in the 10,000 range or better, teams will continue to buy and develop their own players and thus raise the calibre and attendance of the league to major standards, Poile said.

Romp by Mr. Ling Helps Martin Sing

By HAL MALONE

Trainer Sid Martin appeared to have the seventh race locked up at Sandown Park Friday. But they still have to run around the track to get the money and more than one "sure thing" has taken the gaspipe.

Of Mr. Ling whom he trains for Vancouver accountant Gerald Jones, Martin said before the race: "I don't know what might happen. I came here with some horses that like fast tracks and I'm wearing gumboots and that track looks like Soggy Acres.

"A week ago this horse looked good to me in the slop. But to show you what it was like out there, Mr. Ling — a superior mudder—threw two shoes.

"The other day he got loose and went up and down shed row. Today? Well, we draw the outside. How lucky can you get?"

Martin's mood matched the day—dark and blustery. A cold wind wrapped its fingers around the spines of punters and contributed to a minor decrease in the mutuel play. It totalled $78,995 — down $927 over the same day last year.

But there was nothing cold or bleak about Mr. Ling. He wore new shoes and hardly soiled them.

Charley Ulrich, his pilot, left the gate spotless in white silks and showed up in the winner's circle in the same hygienic state. Mr. Martin was there, too, in gum boots. But Mr. Ling's demonstration had turned Martin's disposition from dour to delighted.

Experienced turf followers thought Jones and Martin might lose Mr. Ling to anyone with $1,600—the claiming price. But instead the only claim was for Hey Law Boy. He went to A. Jarvis for $1,400 after finishing out of the money.

GOING UP!

Had Mr. Jarvis been in Calgary six weeks ago he could have saved himself money. Hew Law Boy was available then for $1,000.

Mud made handicapping difficult for some bettors. But not for those who liked Dark Hawk progeny. Two of his offspring (Dark Bug and Lucky Legger) won—one at a robust return—another (Miss Lauris) was third and only one (Alice Kaput) finished out of the swim.

The biggest overlay was Dark Bug, a filly whose bloodlines scream out "mud!" Her dam, Miss Humbug, was a terror in the beauty compound. Held at 4-1 on the morning line, Dark Bug was permitted to go off at 7-1.

He was so pleased he could have "pinched" somebody. Anybody. Even Gus Munro.

BILL SMITH
. . . lands prize-winner

ANGLING SENIOR NETS 34-POUNDER

Smith, 81, has been named winner of a monthly VSIAA trophy for landing the largest salmon in September. His 34-pound catch makes Smith the probable winner of the award that goes annually to the VSIAA member taking the largest salmon of the year.

Mrs. M. Wright topped distaff anglers during the September competition and hidden-weight prizes went to A. Joyce, R. Morrison, J. Stringer and J. Rowe.

VIKINGS SURPRISE

Esquimalt Due For Big Change

This could be the year for the big change in the Esquimalt District Hockey League.

Defending champion Pontiac Chiefs and Navy were the dominating teams for the past two seasons. But if Friday's opening doubleheader is an indication of things to come, there could be a drastic change this time around.

University's Vikings surprised the Chiefs 5-1 while Navy edged Queen's Own Rifles with a 4-3 decision that flattered the sailors.

Vikings, still showing the old college try and bolstered considerably by the addition of former Victoria Cougars, were full value for their victory.

Ken Maxwell figured in the first three goals and Bob Nelson looked after the winner but it was a tough fight for the winners. Navy was out-shot 36-25, including 14-4 in the final period.

The openers drew a full house of 1,850 fans.

TWO GAMES SUNDAY

Farmers, Mustangs Scramble for Second

The run for second place highlights Sunday's activity in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

INJURIES HURT

Injuries have given Farmer coaches Ralph Sinden and Jack Bryant some additional worries as they prepare to meet Raiders. The Oak Bay squad will be missing Lloyd Murphy, out with a knee injury, and speedy Ross Cumberland, who suffered a broken arm in last week's game with Hornets.

Farmers hope, however, starry Hugh McDonald can pick up the slack. The big pass-catching end has been a standout on offence, averaging two touchdowns a game.

Furmston Elected

Beauchemin Southpaw Ace

Ardmore's Emile Beauchemin, carding 73-4—69 over the par-70 Colwood course, captured the Frank Thomas Trophy and top honors in the recent Vancouver Island Lefthanders' Golf Association championship.

Folowing the tournament, Uplands' John Furmston was elected president of the Island body. Other oficers include Gord Dunaway, Jim Duncan, Naysmith, Dan Ritson and Bert Nelson.

Bays Hold On Because Friday Was 'Tie Day'

By MARTIN HAGARTY

Friday was "tie time" around the Inter-High Senior Soccer League. Three games produced three draws and Oak Bay continues to exert a not-too-strong grip on first place.

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Oak Bay	7	3	1	3	18	9	9
Mount View	7	2	1	4	13	12	8
Vic High	7	3	2	2	14	15	8
Mount Douglas	7	2	2	3	8	8	7
Esquimalt	7	2	3	2	9	12	6
Claremont	7	1	4	2	11	17	4

The Bays preserved their one-point advantage over Mount View Hornets and Victoria High by playing to a 2-2 draw with the Tyees at Royal Athletic Park.

Earlier in the day, Esquimalt and Hornets also fought to a 2-2 tie and Mount Douglas matched Claremont, 1-1.

The Vics, clipped 5-1 by Oak Bay earlier in the season, kept their mistakes to a minimum and rarely allowed the leaders' versatile forward line room to explode.

LED 2-0

GREY FLANNEL SUITS URGED BY RC CLERIC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic clergy should abandon the wearing of long cassocks, and substitute shirts, ties and lapel badges for Roman collars, a Jesuit editor suggests.

Recently, Rev. Bianchi said, clergymen in France, Belgium and Montreal were given permission to wear black or grey suits rather than flowing cassocks.

He said the change in clothing would be in agreement with proposals in the second Vatican ecumenical council to simplify ornate and outmoded bishops' robes.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Canada's stamp program for 1965, recently released by Hon. John R. Nicholson, Postmaster-General, promises practically a new stamp every month of the year. The Coast-of-Arms and Floral-Emblems-of-the-Provinces series, which was inaugurated some months ago with the issues for Ontario and Quebec, will be followed on February 3 with similar stamps for New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. On April 28 British Columbia and Manitoba will follow suit, and on August 4 the last of the series for 1965 will be allotted to Prince Edward Island.

Before the Centennial year of 1967 all ten provinces and the Northern Territories will have been florally represented on stamps.

On March 3 we shall have a stamp to advertise the fact that 1965 is the International Year of Co-operation, a world-wide project sponsored by the United Nations, in which many member nations will participate philatelically.

* * *

Two Christmas stamps are being included in the 1965 program, so it is apparent that these special seasonal issues, introduced in Canada for the first time this year, will become a regular feature henceforth.

Denominations will again be 3c and 5c, and they will be issued October 13, to be in time for Christmas mail addressed to the more remote parts of the world.

* * *

September 8 will be the release date for a stamp honoring the Inter-Parliamentary Conference, to be held in Canada for the first time September 9 to 17. The Inter-Parliamentary Union, which dates from 1889, is composed of delegates from 73 national groups.

The Centennial of the proclamation making Ottawa the national capital will be commemorated with a stamp which will go on sale June 30. This will be a continuation of the Post Office Department's plan to focus attention on events which led up to Confederation.

To complete the list, Canada's achievements in space-research will be the subject of a stamp slated to be released sometime in the spring.

* * *

Volume II of the Scott catalogue lists 3,052 new issues that have appeared during the 12-month period since last year's edition. This is in addition to the thousand odd shown in Volume I.

Adding the two totals gives a figure that shows that any collector could keep very busy (and broke!) if he tried to keep level with the flood of newcomers!

AT LAST WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT IS IN THE MODERN dime PACK

Wrigley's Spearmint, Doublemint and Juicy Fruit Gum are now available everywhere in the Big Dime Pack.

HE'S HOW OLD?

Grandpa Baxter celebrated his birthday yesterday. He has passed one-sixth of his life in childhood and one-twelfth as a youth. After he had lived one-third of his present age, he became the father of a son who died when he had reached one-third of his father's age, the latter at that time being exactly halfway through his life journey.

Assuming that childhood ranges through age 14, and manhood begins at age 21, how old was Grandpa Baxter yesterday?

Answer: He was eighty-four years old.

CALLING THE BETS?

In an audience participation show, the contestants win double amounts if they get the right answers. A couple started with $10. They bet $10 and won, then bet $30 and won, then bet $75 and lost. How much had they left?

Time limit is 30 seconds.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Phrases now in common speech testify how widely persons have listened to, and perhaps been influenced by certain men and women. Can you supply what's omitted here in a quotation from the past?

"I look upon every day to be lost, in which I do not make a new ————." Dr. Samuel Johnson.

The missing word has twelve letters.

LADDER WORDS

The odds are better than 2 to 1 that you can't change TWO to ONE in fewer than 11 steps. We're referring, of course, to the ladderword method of changing one letter each step.

Give the exercise a try.

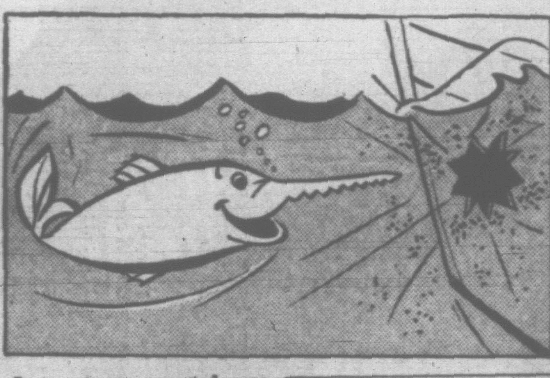
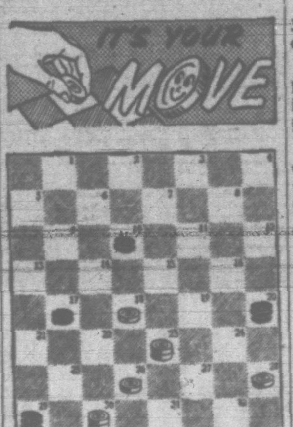
Oh, Say Can You Saw?



Instances are reported occasionally of sharp-nosed denizens of the deep plunging headlong into the bottoms of boats. Often, after engaging in this dim-witted practice, a perpetrator is able to swim around saying, "Look ma, no nose!" having sheared off a portion of its probiscis. Well, fun is fun, even among fish, and the practice is likely to continue. A rather fishy concept of just what happens in the course of such hi-jinks is pictured above. The headstrong specimen at left is about to attack the vessel at right. To observe this drama unfold, simply stare at the black spot on the vessel and raise the diagram slowly upward, to the tip of your nose.



White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves—that's the test. Put yourself in White's place and see if you can meet the challenge. No fair peeking below.

Solution: White 26-22, Black 17-26, White 15-14, Black 10-17, White 28-24, Black 20-27-18, White 30-23-14-21.

THINKING AT ITS PEAK?

1. Mt. Kilimanjaro ....
2. Mt. Aconcagua ....
3. Mt. McKinley ....
4. Mt. Elbrus ....
5. Mt. Kosciusko ....

As a further test, see if you can list peaks named by height, from highest to lowest.

Answers: 1. Africa; 2. So. America; 3. No. America; 4. Europe; 5. Australia. Height: 2, 3, 1, 4, 5.

MAY SURPRISE YOU

Is there a number under 100 into which any number from 1 through 10 can be divided without leaving a remainder? If so, what is it? Think this over before consulting answer below.

Answer: Smallest such number is two thousand, five hundred and twenty.

APARTMENT HUNTING

Hi Eyecue, looking for an apartment, happened to notice something peculiar about one of the streets he had traversed.

This particular street had a row of houses numbered consecutively starting with the number 1. He calculated that the total of the odd numbers exceeded the total of the even numbers by a number which is the reverse of the number of the last house.

How many houses did Hi Eyecue find on that street?

Answer: Seventy-three. The total of the odd numbers equals 1369 and the total of the even numbers equals 1332. The difference between these two totals is 37 which is 73 reversed.

LAST - STRAW TEST

This test will help indicate if your nerves are steady or on edge.

Take two drinking straws, a plain wedding band and a two-inch nail just thick enough to fit into one of the straws.

Insert the nail in the end of one of the straws and balance the latter in the ring suspended from the other end of the other straw.

The slightest trembling of your hand will cause the balanced straw to slide from the ring. Therefore, if you can do this stunt you will know that your nerves are OK.

THIS STUNT TAKES PULL, TOO

If you have a friend who's a chronic tie straightener or thread remover, here's how to get even. Place a spool of white cotton thread in your inside breast pocket. Then unroll a short segment of it, and thread this through a needle. Run the needle through your suit to a conspicuous spot on your shoulder or collar. Now, remove the needle and permit about an inch of thread to show. When the thread-puller goes into action, he or she is in for a somewhat embarrassing surprise.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Phrases now in common speech testify how widely persons have listened to, and perhaps been influenced by, certain men and women. Can you supply what's omitted here in a quotation from the past?

"— imitates ..., and necessity is the mother of invention," comes from the writings of Richard Franck (1624-1708).

The first missing word has three letters, the second six.

Answer: The words to be filled in are art, nature.

What did the mama ghoul say to the baby ghoul?

New Olympic Games Schedule for CBC-TV For Tokyo Coverage This Week on Channel 2

By TOM MASTERS

Two mutual admirers, Bert Lahr and Stanley Holloway, cut capers together as the fathers of two not-so-star-crossed lovers in the TV rebroadcast of the off-Broadway production, "The Fantasticks," Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channel 5.

They sing duets, dance, engage in a comedy duel and conduct a feud, in this TV adaptation of the long-running off-Broadway musical.

Their roles have farcical overtones, but serious undertones. For "The Fantasticks" is essentially the serious story of a young couple who learn that life can be cruel, bitter and disappointing, however bright the promise of young love.

Both Lahr and Holloway have been associated with light-hearted productions over the years, Lahr's most famous movie role being the cowardly lion in "The Wizard of Oz" and Holloway's most famous Broadway role that of Alfred Doolittle in "My Fair Lady." Yet each considers himself an actor and not only a comedian.

"Comedy actors are serious. We're not the type to try to be funny on the sidewalk," says Lahr. "It's serious business. What we do is not the same thing done by standup comedians, quipsters or jokesters who try out their jokes on people on the sidewalk."

Each would try to outdo each other in adding sly little flourishes, a gesture, a song or some subtle piece of business to upstage the other during a scene. Producer-director George Schaefer let each veteran have his head, but just before the scene was finally shot Schaefer suggested tactfully that gimmicks be eliminated.

Lahr recalls that he first saw Holloway years ago in London. "He is a gentleman I've been a fan of for years," Lahr says warmly. "It was in London back in 1932 when Stanley was still in vaudeville."

There is nothing particularly "vaudeville" in Lahr and Holloway's playing of a second-act scene in "The Fantasticks" when they pantomime the inch-by-inch destruction of a cumquat.

The decisive snipping of the scissors is accompanied by Lahr's wordless explosions of anger as he demolishes the non-existent plant. It is highlighted by the stunned and unbelieving expression of Holloway's face.

Reginald Van Gleason III, continuing his triumphant "vaudeville" tour, demonstrates the ultimate in self-hypnosis on "The Jackie Gleason Show: The American Scene Magazine" Saturday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

While in a trance, the great man sits in a jet-propelled chair on tracks and his body catapulted through a plate-glass window, a barn door and a brick wall—at the conclusion of which he is unharmed.

The show opens with "Hello, Dolly" by the June Taylor Dancers, followed by Gleason's monologue about his old neighbors in Brooklyn.

Comedienne Barbara Heller, as editor Christine Clam, introduces the blackouts of the American Scene Magazine Newsreel. Among the feature "stories" is Gleason as Rum Dum showing a unique way to brew tea, and as the poor soul—with an assist from comedian Sid Fields—trying to sneak his luggage out of a hotel.

Comedian Frank Fontaine, as Crazy Guggenham, visits Joe the Bartender (Gleason) to tell him about the activities of the sons and daughters of the Smiling Sons of the Friendly Shillelagh's Junior Auxiliary Sub-Committee for a War on Ignorance, Absenteeism, Class-Cutting, Playing Hookey and Dropouts, to Further the Promotion of Higher Learning and Lower Bus Fares, Incorporated.

Joseph Spah, known professionally as Ben Dova, courted danger as an aerialist countless times. His powerful arms and great strength were his livelihood. And, when he was a passenger on the fatal flight of the Hindenberg, these powerful arms were his life . . . as he held on for survival.

Each week on Channel 4, survivors of world-renowned events reveal to TV viewers, with all the emotion of the first time, what actually happened when they were catapulted into a struggle for their lives against overwhelming odds and had to employ untapped resources of mind, body and spirit in order to survive.

Love and the man-woman relationship is explained to Rhoda the robot by her custodian, Dr. McDonald, with strange results on My Living Doll Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

Robert Cummings, starring as Dr. Bob McDonald, believes that Rhoda—played by Julie Newmar—should be programmed to cope with any problems she might encounter as a result of her beauty.

His experiments with love and emotions results in Rhoda falling for a vacuum cleaner salesman's romantic advance; in ardent Peter Robinson—played by Jack Mullaney — being knocked knocked off a couch, and in Rhoda making advances of her own to Dr. Cooper, the space lab boss, who is Irene Adam's date.

DRAPED ROBOT

$500 Sheet Dust Cover For Machine

It figures that Hollywood would concoct a $500 sheet to cover a million-dollar torso.

The torso, in this case, belongs to statuesque Julie Newmar, who stars with Bob Cummings in a new comedy series, "My Living Doll." The show made its debut Sunday, Sept. 27, on the CBS television network.

The sheet was worn by Miss Newmar in the premiere episode when she was introduced as Rhoda, a robot, otherwise known as Air Force Project 709. She's a super-secret project, of course. Cummings is the only one who knows she isn't human. Complications arise when he tries to program this gorgeous creature for life with people.

Miss Newmar appeared throughout the show's initial episode clad only in the sheet. Not often does a star of a television series spend an entire program that simply garbed.

JULIE NEWMAR — Would you look as good in a sheet?

But on the shapely Miss Newmar, the sheet is anything but simple.

In the first place, the sheet wasn't just sewn. It was created, in the vernacular of couture, by Desilu Studios designer Elois Jenssen. She spent three weeks making sketches and working out the sheet's construction with seamstress Jane Dutton.

Then Miss Jenssen conducted a careful search for just the right weight of raw silk—not too heavy, not too light. She measured the 5-foot, 10-inch Miss Newmar and her various lateral dimensions. And some 2½ yards of material were stitched into an approximate size 12, with artful tuckings, seamings and hemmings.

An elastic rims the strapless bodice and the sheet fastens with strategically placed hooks and eyes.

On the back were taped black, specially designed letters and numerals designating Rhoda's Air Force designation: AF 709.

Estimating the cost of the project, Miss Jenssen figured that $500 was a conservative guess to cover time and materials. She commented:

"It looks like a sheet but it's made like a gown. It's designed to look artless but it really is a very sophisticated garment."

Wayne and Shuster Mon.

Arnold Wesker's Avant Garde Theatre 'Roots' on 2 and 6

'The Silence Barrier' First of Two Parts Telecast Monday at 10 p.m. on Channel 2

By TOM MASTERS

Wayne and Shuster send a message "From Bombay with Love," Professor Waynegartner goes to the Olympics and distinguished actor William Hutt introduces "Shakespeare's Song Hits" on this season's first Wayne and Shuster Hour, to be seen on CBC-TV's Show of the Week, Monday at 8 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

FROM BOMBAY WITH LOVE—Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster play Inspector Krishna M. Chutney and Inspector Henry Cabot Shuster in this sketch from the first Wayne and Shuster Hour this season on Show of the Week on Monday at 8 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6. Also appearing on the show are the comics' guests, Shirley Harmer and Doug Crosley.

Along with the laughs from Canada's top comics, there will be songs by Shirley Harmer and Doug Crosley and a dance production number featuring Don Gillies and Carlu Carter.

The main comedy sketch is a takeoff on the current crop of spy thrillers—"From Bombay, with Love," featuring Johnny as Inspector Krishna M. Chutney and Frank as Henry Cabot Shuster.

Once again, the boys will present one of their popular mime routines. "This international style of comedy," says producer Bill Davis, "seems to have a wide appeal, and I'm encouraging Wayne and Shuster to do more of it."

"The Silence Barrier," a special two-part documentary report on the problems of deafness, will be presented on CBC-TV Monday at 10 p.m. on Channel 2.

Produced at CBC Halifax by Sandy Lumsden, "The Silence Barrier" is written by Lloyd MacInnis, who will act as host on the two programs.

Lumsden and MacInnis, accompanied by a film production crew, went to various parts of Canada and the U.S. where there are diagnostic centres, pre-school clinics and special schools.

They spoke with doctors and educators and watched special treatment and training.

In the opening sequence one of the leading Canadian educators in the field, Dr. David Kendall, assistant professor of special education at the University of British Columbia, introduces the subject by stating that "deafness, although an invisible handicap, is a severe one and a great challenge to the educator."

Dr. Kendall feels there should be more public awareness of the problem and that Canada should have more facilities for the early diagnosis of deafness, the training and oral education of deaf children.

To find out, Lloyd MacInnis speaks with Dr. Richard Thompson, clinical psychologist with the Beverly School for the Deaf at Beverly, Mass.

Dr. Thompson, being deaf himself, feels that, without language, it is very difficult for a deaf person to become a member of society. Dr. Thompson says the training must begin in the home, by the time the child is three years old.

The problem is examined further by Dr. William G. Hardy, of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland, and leading audiologist in North America. Dr. Hardy reviews the types, causes and degrees of deafness.

Following this a parent recalls his first reaction when he learned his child was deaf.

Beatie Bryant, the exuberant and restless heroine of Arnold Wesker's Roots, returns to CBC-TV's Festival series Wednesday, at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

First telecast on the series last December, Roots stars the young English actress Geraldine McEwan as Beatie, the girl who comes home to her family of Norfolk farm workers after three years in London.

Home after three years of "learning about life" in London, she is shocked by her family's indifference to the world of ideas, their plodding acceptance of the underprivileged backwater existence which is their lot.

Her attempts to prepare them for the impending visit of Ronnie, her London fiance, meet with passive resistance at first. But this erupts into a shattering rift in the family, gathered to await Ronnie's arrival. In the end, it is Beatie who is brought to the point of self-realization.

The tragic death of Jefferson High's star quarterback during a practice session spurs Albert Vane (Dean Jagger) and head coach Lou Myerson (guest star Claude Akins) to make a critical analysis of Myerson's quest for a championship team, in "One Monday Afternoon" on Mr. Novak Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

The victim's father, claiming his son was injured previous to the accident which claimed his life, threatens to sue the school if a medical report verifies his claim.

Brooke Bundy guests as Carol Walker, the dead boy's former girl-friend. The cast also includes Alan Hunt as Jerry Donan, the quarterback, Mickey Braddock, a team member, Si-man Scott as Ralph Donan, the dead boy's father and Tom Anthony as Coach Price.

This episode was produced by Leonard Freeman, written by Herman Groves and Mel Goldberg and directed by Paul Wendkos.

Napoleon Solo is trapped by a former Nazi scientist who needs his blood type for an experiment that threatens the rebirth of Nazism in "The Deadly Games Affair" Tuesday at 8:30 on Channel 5.

Alexander Scourby guest stars as Professor Amadeus, a Nazi blood specialist, who was thought to have perished in flames in the last days of the Second World War.

When it is learned that he is in New York conducting life-giving experiments with bodies Solo makes a reluctant—and romantic — truce with Angelique, a THRUSH agent, and both set out to locate the professor.

Viewers will take part in an over-night camping expedition with that rugged group of jeep drivers "The Ridgerunners" on Exploration Northwest Monday at 7 p.m. on Channel 4.

The group, comprised of 17 jeeps, 40 humans (the youngest of whom was 4), and 12 dogs, left the Yakima Valley early one Saturday morning, equipped for camping and lots of adventure, and headed for Darland Mountain, their aim being to climb to its height via the toughest route available.

Included in the films of this exciting adventure are shots of the jeeps in incredible situations —driving up 30-foot piles of rocks, stuck in mud over the tires, and climbing extraordinarily steep slopes.

In order to insure safety, the tires in the jeeps are reduced to only 14 pounds of pressure for greater "grip-ability."

The jeeps which the club members use are equipped with altimeters, inclinometers, exhaust pipe amplifiers, ham radios (for contact with other members and with families back at home), specially-designed roll bars, and seat belts — and some of them, not all, have been souped up. Wally Klingele, leader of the group, estimates his investment in his jeep at close to $10,000.

Though formed with fun in mind, the Ridgerunners Club works closely with the sheriff's department in any local or national emergency, and has many times received national acclaim for phenomenal mountain rescues.

ASK RITHETS!

You are invited to submit questions on insurance and similar matters for inclusion in this column. The origin of such queries is kept entirely secret.

Q. I have a cleaning woman come in once a week. If she fell from the stepladder, would my homeowners' policy protect me against a possible lawsuit?

A. Yes. The modern homeowners' policy and also the personal liability policy automatically include servants not residing with you. Such out-servants are also protected under your voluntary medical payments clause.

To be sure, Ask Rithet's to check your policy.

'NEW EVIDENCE' HINTED

No Interference In Car Deals, City Court Told

He did not even do that in some cases.

Arthur W. Charlton, the government's chief purchasing agent, told the court that Jones never interfered with awarding contracts which he and government departments had recommended.

Some of the contract approvals, produced in court, bore the signature not of chairman Jones, but of A. E. Webb, another member of the purchasing commission, Mr. Charlton said.

He appeared as a prosecution witness at a preliminary hearing of the first two charges that Jones received favors from Hankinson.

Later RCMP Sgt. Ernest A. Bonderud testified that Jones denied in a Sept. 9 interview that Hankinson's firm, Pacific Chrysler, was given government business as a result of personal car deals.

Hearing Adjourned

The hearing was adjourned by Magistrate William Ostler in central court to 2:15 p.m. next Wednesday.

Prosecutor Lloyd G. McKenzie, QC, said he wanted further investigation made into "a certain matter."

Mr. O'Grady told the court that on the basis of evidence presented by the Crown so far there was "not a vestige" to warrant committing Jones for trial on the charges.

The charge being heard first is that Jones was "forgiven" payment of $1,577 for a car he obtained last Oct. 30 from Hankinson.

Bank manager Arthur L. Weslowsky Friday afternoon produced copies of records showing payment of Jones' cheque for $1,500 to Pacific Products Use and Services Ltd., another Hankinson firm.

The cheque was dated Aug. 3, 1964.

Earlier Mr. O'Grady had filed with the court a receipt for $1,500 from Pacific Products to Jones which carried a notation that it replaced an earlier cheque to Pacific Chrysler.

Mr. Charlton, who works in the office run by Jones, produced a file of successful bids by Pacific Chrysler for government car contracts.

The bids were between December 1963 and April 1964.

Mr. Charlton said he made recommendations to Mr. Jones for his "notation."

Asked if Jones had the final say in such deals, he replied "I wouldn't say exactly the final say—he notes that the transaction is in order."

Webb Signature Identified

Then Mr. O'Grady asked Mr. Charlton to identify signatures of approval on the documents.

The first three in the file, all dated March 9, 1964, bore the signature of A. E. Webb.

"Did chairman Jones interfere with the recommendations or influence the outcome?" asked Mr. O'Grady.

"No sir."

"Did Jones at any time during your period of service attempt in his official capacity or any other capacity to interfere with you or influence you in the conduct of bidding practices or awarding of contracts by any means at all?"

"No sir.'

"He simply rubber-stamped your recommendations?"

"Yes.

"If the recommendations were out of order the chairman was qualified, if he wanted an explanation."

Asked Mr. O'Grady: "His role was as a watch-dog essentially?"

"Yes."

Probe Started July 8

He began with a visit to Chrysler of Canada offices in Vancouver July 8, where he got two files. He said he turned the matter over to RCMP July 20.

Also Friday morning, student accountant James C. Heaney told of a vain search in Pacific Chrysler books for a record of a receipt given to Jones.

But he agreed with Mr. O'Grady that a book containing a duplicate record could be missing.

Mr. O'Grady also pointed out a blank sheet in one of the company receipt books.

"Yes," Mr. Heaney said.

November 4 Trial Date?

If the Jones case goes to trial, it will probably be Nov. 4.

That is the tentative date agreed upon, according to T. P. O'Grady, counsel for government purchasing commission chairman George E. P. Jones, accused of accepting favors from a car dealer.

Magistrate William Ostler will decide if a trial is warranted or will dismiss the charges when he completes a preliminary hearing still under way.

Dealer Released; New Charges Laid

City auto dealer George Hankinson Friday went free, without bail, and without having been arrested after fresh charges were made against him.

Earlier charges that he conferred benefits upon B.C. government purchasing commission chairman George E. P. Jones were quashed by Magistrate William Ostler.

The reason: a technicality.

The charges said he conferred the favors on Jones and that his firm, Pacific Chrysler, did business with the government.

But they did not link the two, and Mr. Ostler upheld defence lawyer Jack Cowan's bid to throw them out on this ground.

However, fresh charges, amended to correct the omission, were immediately filed against Hankinson.

Mr. Cowan agreed to a remand until next Friday.

But technically, Hankinson had not been arrested on the new charges, though he appeared in court voluntarily to hear them read.

And because of this, Mr. Ostler noted, it was impossible to set any bail. Hankinson was relieved of a $2,000 surety when the original charges were quashed.

LBJ OFFERS TO MEET BRITISH PM

CINCINNATI (AP) — President Johnson telephoned the new British prime minister, Harold Wilson, Friday to offer congratulations and lay the groundwork for a possible joint meeting.

It was understood no decision was made on when or where the two leaders might get together.

It seemed likely they would consider a conference later this year or early in 1965 provided Johnson wins election in the Nov. 3 balloting.

EARLIER ARREST ON RECORD

Secret Service Knew of Jenkins

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Secret Service knew more than three years ago that resigned White House aide Walter W. Jenkins had an arrest record. But it may not have known the arrest was on a morals charge.

It was learned Friday that the FBI informed the service in April, 1961, that the long-time adviser and personal friend of President Johnson had been arrested in January, 1959.

The check by the FBI was made at the request of the Secret Service while Jenkins was on Johnson's vice-presidential staff. The information given to the service came from a fingerprint file card which the FBI had received shortly after Jenkins' arrest.

Jenkins, who resigned his White House job after public disclosure of the 1959 arrest and another one last Oct. 7 at the Washington YMCA, is under treatment for "extreme fatigue" at a Washington hospital.

Republicans have made campaign charges that Johnson covered up the facts about Jenkins' arrest, although the president has said he never received any information about them.

FOLLOWING IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF MY BIG BROTHER...

Where one goes, the other wants to follow. What one does, the other wants to do also. Such is the case of Alan Peterson and his younger brother Brian, the two healthy and energetic sons of Mr. and Mrs. Sigurd B. Peterson at 2784 Burdick

His big brother is his idol and some day in the near future he hopes to also get his opportunity to be a Times Newspaperboy, and join the large family of young businessmen who have the advantage of earning while learning the essential good business lessons of responsibility, self-reliance, courtesy and service.

Saturday, October 17, is a special day in 1964. It is National Newspaperboy Day, and throughout Canada and the United States we pay tribute to some 700,000 young citizens of both countries who render an important service in our daily living.

The Victoria Daily Times has every reason to be proud of their large corps of newspaperboys and we gratefully dedicate this space to them.

THEY LOVE HIM IN L. AUSTRIA

A scroll in his office says he has been presented with the "Golden Commander's Cross of Merits for the Province of Lower Austria, with star."

Hate Literature Ban Probed By Post Office

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Nicholson indicated in the Commons Friday that the government is considering an amendment to the criminal code to fight mail distribution of scurrilous anti-semitic and anti-Negro propaganda.

At the same time he rejected a proposal by David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) that mail privileges be withdrawn from anyone who distributes literature "calculated to bring into hatred, ridicule or contempt, any person or group of persons by reason of race, national origin, color or religion."

Mr. Nicholson, a lawyer, argued that Mr. Orlikow's private member's bill would legalize government censorship and invasion of privacy, undermining the historic rights of the individual.

The measure was talked out in the hour set aside for private members' business, but will come up next Friday for further debate.

Milton Klein (L — Montreal Cartier) and Mr. Orlikow said the type of hate literature being sent through the Candian mails at present can embolden potential political assassins and prepare public opinion for repressive action against certain minorities.

SEEK FORMULA

Mr. Nicholson said the post office and the justice department are continuing an active study to find a legislative formula that will deter hate propagandists while protecting freedom of speech.

He said the courts should decide which pamphlet is illegal and which is legal. This was not a proper function for government officials.

In other business Friday, the Commons approved a $216,000 advance for 1964-65 to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, administered by Mr. Nicholson.

Opposition MPs criticized the housing agency for moving too slowly in the public housing field and for discriminating against veterans in Vancouver and elsewhere.

Privy Council President McIlraith introduced a second set of supplementary estimates for 1964-65 totalling $61,320,145. The bulk of the amount, $50,360,000, will be used to finance the winter works program and $500 bonuses for winter-built homes.

The new spending items brought total estimates for the current fiscal year to $6,836,006,787, not including old age pensions.

IN SAANICH

Trustees Refuse School Bus

Saanich school board won't provide bus service for children who have to cros Patricia Bay Highway on their way to Royal Oak Elementary School.

Board chairman Reginald Sinkinson said after Friday's meeting a request for bus service was denied because "it's completely impossible to reroute the buses to handle it."

The board was under no obligation to provide transportation for any students according to the School Act.

A petition signed by 31 parents in the 4200 block Quadra Street and neighboring area was given the board earlier. Parents feel a marked crosswalk is dangerous.

"We're sympathetic to their problem," said Mr. Sinkinson, "but we can't be responsible for children on their way to school."

UN Opening Delayed?

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Delegates predicted today the United Nations General Assembly will postpone its opening at least two weeks in an effort to avert a clash between the United States and the Soviet Union's new regime over UN peace-keeping dues. The word spread after the U.S. switched its stand and made known it would agree to postpone the Nov. 10 opening if someone else proposed such a move. It was believed a group of Asian or African countries would broach the idea and the Communist bloc would agree.

USE YOUR PBA OR CHARGE

Arthur Mayse

Since city and municipal codes apparently fail to offer protection against this nuisance, I can only suggest to the householder that he give the bucket-shop brigade short shrift.

Your phone rings. You answer. A voice, usually female and dulcet, puts this question:

"Do you ever watch such-and-such on television?"

But being polite, you add, "Sometimes my children do."

"As a reward for answering our question," the voice then announces, "we are going to send you this-or-that magazine (or magazines) free.)"

From this point, the going becomes pretty slippery. At best, your 'reward' will consist of a package deal offered at a slight discount. At worst, you may wind up being pestered, heckled, or even threatened with court action.

I have no quarrel with the magazines offered, several of which we subscribe to. But the next con-girl who misuses Mr. Bell's invention to annoy us with one of these come-alongs is due for a tin ear!

This department a couple of weeks back got somewhat carried away with itself while offering program suggestions to our spiffy new McPherson Playhouse, a piece of sauciness to which the McPherson's business manager, Robert Ellison, responded much too promptly.

"We've reserved two on the aisle in the twelfth row for you," he replied by fast pigeon. "You can make your cheque out to the Corporation of the City of Victoria."

While plans aren't yet official, I understand the McPherson will celebrate its return to a place in Greater Victoria's community life with a week-long jamboree of varied entertainment.

Opening night still to be set . . . but at the pace things are shaping down there, it isn't too far off.

The notorious Royal Oak-Pat Bay Highway intersection is to get traffic lights at last, a move which I seem to remember hollering for a couple of years ago.

The widening and improvement project scheduled for the Pat Bay should give us a reasonably safe route along the peninsula, but I hope the powers won't trifle with the speed limits.

Sixty an hour is plenty, if not too much, for an open-access road of this sort.

In the last few weeks, I've seen at least half a dozen near crackups when some driver made reckless by a patience-fraying wait, whipped out of a sideroad into the Pat Bay's traffic stream.

I've heard talk of a 70-mile limit, and hope there's no fire behind this smoke. For unless the plans call for overpasses or underpasses, no amount of face-lifting will transform the Pat into a high-speed link.

While we're on the subject of highways, my thanks herewith to the three separate drivers who offered aid when a blowout-proof tire let go on me last week.

This continual fussing and fretting about the discourtesy of Victoria drivers irks me. The squawkers would benefit—if they survived—from a canter through Detroit, where a man doesn't rate as a driver till he's used up four fenders.

It is about time to wish you the happiest weekend possible in a world where a government can be unseated, a premier ousted and a Chinese nuclear cracker exploded, all on the same front page.

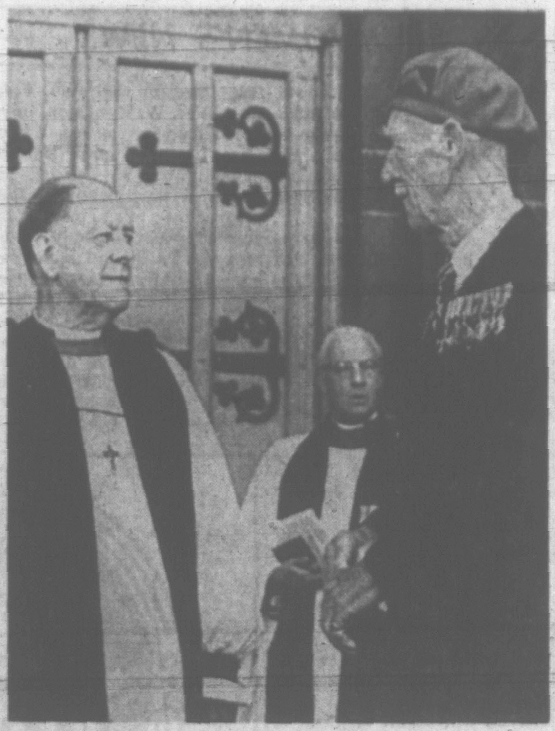
"Darn!" says she, wistfully, on reading of not-so-bad Mr. K.'s political demise. "And after I finally learned to spell his name!"

Old Soldiers Still March On 50 Years After Ypres Gas Attack



GREETING Brig. W. K. G. Colquhoun on steps of Christ Church Cathedral is Archbishop Harold Sexton. The brigadier was one of more than 100 Victoria veterans attending 50th anniversary service for Vancouver Island Red Chevron Association this morning. (Photos by Ian McKain.)

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It is the 50th anniversary of Vancouver Island Red Chevrons' Association, formed in the dark days of the First World War and perpetuated by more than 120 veterans who survived the first German gas attack on the Ypres Salient.

These hardy old warriors—soldiers, sailors and airmen who went overseas with the Canadian volunteers in 1914—attended a special service in Christ Church Cathedral and later placed a wreath on the cenotaph in memory of missing comrades.

Then they paraded past the Empress Hotel and turned eyes right in a smart salute to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

OLDEST IS 96

Oldest member on parade was 96-year-old Dr. William Lockhart who was medical officer with the First Brigade Canadian Field Artillery, and treated hundreds of casualties from the first gas attack.

"We had no protection but our handkerchiefs," the still bright-eyed doctor said. "It was murder—plain murder."

Dr. Lockhart came to Victoria from his home on Salt Spring Island accompanied by 81-year-old E. O. Aves, a veteran of the 16th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

They swapped reminiscences with many other old-timers, among whom were Frank Hassall, a veteran of the South African War and the two World Wars; George Bonham, a veteran of the New Zealand Army; Frank Anders of the 7th Battalion, CEF; J. H. Robins of the 8th Battalion; Tom Pickering of the 52nd Prince Albert Volunteers—and a host of others.

YELLOW-GREEN CLOUD

They recalled a dirty yellow-green cloud which drifted over the Ypres Salient on April 22, 1915. And they remembered with bowed heads the countless young soldiers who died in the deadly chlorine fumes.

It was a bright sunny day and the Canadians, drinking tea and munching hard army biscuits, were puzzled by this sluggish low-lying cloud as it drifted towards them.

They knew the worst when the cloud poured into front-line trenches and rifle pits to begin the deadly work which not only killed but left countless invalids who are still alive today.

W. H. McMurray, president of the Vancouver Island chapter of the Red Chevrons' Association, was a signaller with the Third Canadian Infantry Brigade when the gas attack came.

W. H. McMURRAY
. . . president

It tore a three-mile gap in the Allied lines, but two battalions of Canadian troops held their ground, despite casualties so severe that for years after the actual count was kept secret.

RESERVES RUSHED IN

Mr. McMurray recalled how reserves were rushed in to patch up the decimated 13th and 14th battalions.

Runners, batmen, signalmen, drivers and cooks were armed with rifles and rushed into the line to help stem the German attacks which hit the Canadian sector for 10 days.

"We faced the gas attack with wet handkerchiefs and strips of cloth plastered over our faces," said Charlie Chase, vice-president of the Vancouver Island chapter.

Berkeley Monteith, who is treasurer of the chapter, said the Red Chevrons' Association was formed in 1931.

"It is one of the most exclusive ex-servicemen's groups in North America," he said, "since it is composed only of men who went overseas before Dec. 31, 1914."

160 SURVIVORS

Mr. Monteith estimated there are about 160 surviving members in British Columbia and about 120 on Vancouver Island.

"Most of our members seem to finish up on the Island," he said.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes was greeted on the steps of the cathedral by Brigadier W. K. G. (Shorty) Colquhoun, 6 ft. 6 in. tall and an original member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and Archbishop Sexton.

In his address, Archbishop Harold Sexton said the tragedy of war was only mitigated by the fellowship existing among men in the front lines.

Tonight the Chevrons are attending a reunion banquet in the Empress Hotel ballroom at which rum rations will be broken out and Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will be guest of honor.

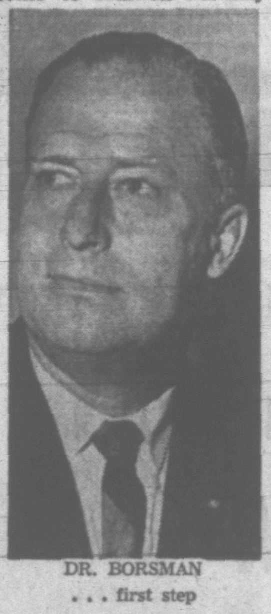
AFTER 10 YEARS

Ready to Save Historic Sites

Ten years' work to bring about a trust for historic buildings in Victoria will come to fruition Monday night.



DR. BORSMAN
. . . first step

Dr. Charles Borsman said today the first meeting of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Trust will be held at 8 p.m. at 941 Pandora.

Officers and trustees, including Mayor R. B. Wilson, will be elected.

The trust was incorporated recently under the Societies Act. It was an outgrowth of a Victoria Chamber of Commerce committee headed by Dr. Borsman.

The trust was formed because it was found almost impossible to accomplish anything without being incorporated, he said.

LEGAL ENTITY

"This gives us the opportunity to receive trusts and legacies," he said.

The new group would try and give tangible support to existing historic associations.

"It is not our intention to buy buildings and keep them open," he said.

"We want to assure preservation by encouraging people to live in them or use commercially.

"If we don't take steps to preserve them, we will find them gone."

The trust was planning a 100-page handbook which would also be for sale, on historic buildings. It would include pictures of virtually every interesting building with brief notes.

Dr. Borsman expected about 200 persons to attend Monday night's meeting.

PREMIER WOULD 'BE HONORED' IF HE IS

Premier Bennett says he would be "highly honored" if there is a ceremony for him next Feb. 15.

On that date, he will become the longest-serving premier in B.C. history—nearly 13 years.

"But I am not doing anything, or suggesting it, or planning it," the premier said of a possible ceremony.

Youths Brawl In Ward Of Hospital

City police were called in and quelled the disturbance, but not before a plate glass door in the hospital had been shattered.

Police said the fight in the ward apparently started after Grant Basanta, 2715 Quadra, brought four youths into the ward for treatment.

Somewhere along the line, two of the youths were cut, and a third received a black eye.

Detained in hospital with cuts were Kenneth Alexander, 17, of 3356 Oak, and David John MacMillan, 18, of 26 Marlborough.

Larry Hay, 15, of 1455 Denman, had the black eye.

The fourth youth was Rodney Arendel, 18, of 1438 Stadacona, said city police.

BODY FOUND IN TRAILER

Warrant Issued For Regina Man

Warrants have been issued locally for the arrest of a Regina man wanted in connection with the mystery death of a woman whose body was found in an abandoned trailer in Burnaby.

A Victoria man found the body after going to reclaim the trailer, and RCMP in Burnaby say the woman may have died here.

Gerry Coad, co-owner of Tolmie Home Service, 3201 Douglas, went to Burnaby to reclaim the trailer he rented to a man last month.

She had been dead at least a month when Mr. Coad saw her body through a window of the 14-foot house trailer.

'TRAILER THEFT'

He is being sought as far south as San Francisco, where a U-drive vehicle he is believed to have rented was traded in on another car.

Burnaby RCMP told the Times this morning there were no signs of violence on her body, but that its stage of deterioration was sufficiently advanced that bruises might not be readily seen.

There were no signs of a fight inside the trailer, they said.

An autopsy was under way this morning to attempt to determine the cause of death.

RCMP said they have no reason to believe widely-circulated report that the woman may have died of an abortion.

The trailer had been sitting on the motel lot since a man checked in there on Sept. 16.

He registered as having his wife with him, but RCMP said this morning no one at the motel reports seeing the woman.

The proprietor said he was not suspicious when the trailer sat there for weeks — people often leave trailers and go for boat trips up the coast.

POLICE INFORMED

After three weeks, he told RCMP.

They found the trailer belonged to Tolmie Home Service, and notified Mr. Coad to come and pick it up.

There were no keys in the trailer when Mr. Coad arrived, and he looked into the window.

He saw a pair of feet. Moving around to another window, he saw the entire body.

The same couple was checked into a Victoria auto court two days before arriving in Burnaby.

The next day, the man obtained a trailer, and carried the woman out into it.

When the proprietor went into the suite to tidy up afterwards, the pillow was stained with mucus, police said.

PROFESSOR PLEADS GUILTY 'FOR STUDENTS'

Patrick Gleeson said his students need him more than he needs the $25.

Mr. Gleeson was summonsed for driving without valid B.C. licence.

He pleaded not guilty, then withdrew the plea when he learned it would men a trial during the week, when he has lectures.

"My students need me more than I need the money," he told the court.

NDP Reports Offer to Buy Victoria Hall

An offer has been made to purchase Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney, a New Democratic Party spokesman said today.

He described the offer as "reasonable" and added there was a Nov. 1 deadline for acceptance or rejection.

The offer has to be approved by the local executive, the holding society in Vancouver and the local membership.

He declined to give details of the offer or who it was from. These would be disclosed at a membership meeting, he said.

BIG TRACTORS, small ones, old ones and shiny new ones all pawed the ground and snorted and ripped up farm sod today at start of Saanich Plowing Association's third annual championship matches. There were 12 scheduled events and some unscheduled as some of the cranky models dating back to 1922 tried to throw their riders. There were to be playdowns as well, leading to entry in Canadian and world championship contests next year. (Times photo by Halkett.)

PREMIER ON YUKON:

Bride Must Be Willing Or No Wedding March

Premier Bennett says B.C. "has no great designs on the Yukon."

"They must come into B.C. of their own free will and accord," he told reporters Friday.

"Keeping house is bad enough. But you must have a willing bride."

He thought there are three ways the north can be developed.

The north can go on as now, with the federal government, or the Yukon could join with the Northwest Territories and form a province.

With the first, "there will be no development at all," and the second wouldn't strengthen Canada or help the north because of scattered population and weak tax base.

The third possibility would be for the western provinces to extend their boundaries north to the Arctic. "Then the north could be developed," he said.

In the long run, the Yukon could be "a great asset to B.C."

"But we are not pushing them," he said.

Premier Bennett also said he doesn't think the Senate will veto B.C.'s bill for a bank.

"I would be very amazed if they did," he said.

The bill has bogged down in the Senate while two others, Laurentide and the Bank of Western Canada, have gone to the Commons.

He thought all three bills should be in the Commons at the same time. "It would be proper procedure," he said.

The B.C. bill should go to the Commons and all three applications dealt with at the committee stage at the same time.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Check Personality Traits— Try Giving Others Praise

I have a leaflet I think you will enjoy. It is called "Eight Weeks to Popularity." The idea of this leaflet is to grade yourself daily on a program which may open new doors, improve personality and increase charm and popularity.

If we strive to follow a few rules for unselfish behavior and grade ourselves each day, we can stick to such a program for a long period just as we can to calorie-counting when a definite goal is ahead. At the end of that time we will have improved our outlook just as we can improve our figure.

Today let me suggest that one of the tenets for charm and happy living is to give praise and compliments whenever there is any real basis for them. So often we fail to express our admiration or appreciation when we really feel them. We do not say "You look so pretty today" or "That was a kind thing to do" or "I admire your courage."

Sometimes we do not say these things because we are envious or jealous of the beauty or nobility or cleverness. Sometimes we are shy or fear the person who might think that we are buttering him up. I believe that most often we are hurried or hectic or just haven't formed the habit of telling those with whom we live and play and work the nice things we think about them.

One of the questions on my "Eight Weeks to Popularity" leaflet is, "Have you expressed appreciation or admiration or extended congratulations to anyone today?" It is such a waste to hoard the nice things we think and feel about others. Sharing them gives everyone concerned a lift.

If you would like to have this leaflet so that you can grade yourself for the next few weeks, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

A Message for Women

Miss Nazla Dane, Toronto, president of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, gives the accompanying message as a rallying call for all women employed in the labor field. She is presently director of the educational and women's divisions of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

The theme for Business Women's Week, "Accepting New Challenges," is exciting and thought-provoking.

What is a challenge? Let us think of it as something active — and in accepting a new challenge let us prove that we are prepared to do something about it.

You might ask what challenges we should be accepting. May I suggest some—and you will think of many more you might choose to do something about as well.

There is the challenge of acting in such a way, in our business and professional life, that women who work will benefit from our conduct. This means that we must give our best efforts and ideas to further the work we do (and we may reasonably expect such efforts to better our positions in whatever our field of work is). It means, too, that we do not go around with a chip on our shoulders in defence of women but neither do we let generalities and myths about our sex go unchallenged. It means that we are able to take teasing about our stand in behalf of a fair break for women and, at the same time, set the record straight with the facts.

There is the challenge of educating men and women to the fact that women are people. That is the type of thing we must be at constantly—each in our own way—so that gradually there will be acceptance of the fact. What do you say when you hear such expressions as "Doesn't that sound like a woman?" or "That's what you'd expect from a woman?" Do you ask, in your most charming manner, what a man would do in like circumstances?

There is the challenge of helping women realize that they can do anything they make up their minds to do. We can do this by example and by words of encouragement. Women should be taking greater responsibilities in all areas of their lives—work, play and community or club service. We have all seen women "grow into" the bigger jobs they undertake—and our responsibility is to encourage them to undertake the greater responsibility. Let us, then, willingly and eagerly participate in ACCEPTING NEW CHALLENGES.

NAZLA DANE.

Exclusive knits direct from Italy . . .

If you haven't yet seen Sebastian's . . . that very elegant little dress shop recently opened on Fort St., just off Blanshard . . . we recommend you do so without delay . . . They specialize in exclusive knitwear bearing the Sebastian label . . . (a label that's famous in Europe and the U.S.A. . . . not so well known here unless you happen to have picked one up south of the border, as we did once) . . . Anyway, the local "Sebastian" is a member of the family who own the mills in Italy . . . and the truly beautiful knitwear they produce is sold only here in Western Canada . . . But just in case you're thinking so much exclusiveness must be pretty expensive, we hasten to reassure you . . . Sebastian's suits, coats, dresses and sportswear certainly look expensive . . . but they're not at all out of the way . . . Compete pleasantly in price with other good knitwear around town . . . We were enchanted with some of the clothes we saw there last week . . . beautifully made, imaginatively styled . . . tres chic . . . But you'll find other things at Sebastian's besides knits . . . For example a friend of ours bought a very smart raincoat . . . at a remarkably reasonable price! . . . Sebastian's, 778 Fort St., EV 5-4151.

Good news for Victoria . . .

We'd been reading and hearing so much about the new Palm Springs Health Spa that last Wednesday we decided we simply had to see for ourselves . . . Fortunately, it was a "ladies' day" . . . so were able to examine all the facilities, try out the various equipment, have ourselves measured and analyzed . . . and end up in an honest-to-goodness sauna steam room . . . followed by a shower and a spell under a sun lamp . . . We went in tired at the tag end of a busy day . . . emerged less than an hour later feeling refreshed and renewed . . . and elated with the knowledge that Victoria now boasts a health club to equal any in the country . . . The apparatus is the last word . . . everything is spotlessly clean . . . surroundings attractive and restful . . . We learned that every member has a program of exercises . . . a combination of active and passive . . . tailored to her individual needs and capacities . . . that the prime objective is to build up muscle tone and stimulate circulation . . . So if you acquire a beautiful figure in the process . . . which you most certainly will if you persevere . . . well, that's so much gravy! . . . Why don't you phone or drop in and see for yourself? . . . Palm Springs Health Spa, 1315 Government St., 385-0732.

We were telling you last week about the Gift Registry at Eaton's which is such a boon to brides-to-be . . . because they can get expert help in planning the things they'd like for their new home . . . list their gift preferences . . . let their friends know they're registered at Eaton's . . . then forget the whole thing and let the Gift Consultant carry the ball from there on . . . She'll keep the list up-to-date . . . assist the bride's friends to purchase gifts, if they wish, or even do it herself if for some reason they can't get to the store . . . It's really a terrific service . . . and is unique in Victoria . . . But we want to add that this Gift Registry is not confined to brides . . . Any customer who wishes to be reminded about special occasions . . . maybe birthdays or anniversaries of friends, relatives or business associates, may register . . . and be given ample warning ahead of time . . . (Strikes us as being just the thing for forgetful husbands) . . . Great convenience for business men too, who have periodic gifting to do . . . Eaton's Gift Consultant needs only a hint or two about the recipient to come up with the perfect gift every time! Needless to say, there's no extra charge for this extraordinary service! . . . Eaton's—Gift Registry, China Dept., 382-7141.

For the men in your life . . .

We strongly suspect Douglas Pharmacy of trying to corner the market on exclusive toiletries! . . . For quite a while now they've had perfumes you can't buy anywhere else in town . . . Their latest acquisitions are several very exclusive lines of men's toiletries . . . pre and after-shave lotions . . . talc, cologne and such . . . and most of these you positively won't find elsewhere . . . Very new is Lubin's masculine line called "Pour Lui" . . . There's an after-shave preparation that you spray on the face like a liquid . . . but it turns to cream as soon as it touches the skin . . . Has a nice masculine aroma, and is very soothing to the skin, so we're told . . . pre-shave and cologne too . . . The Alfred Dunhill line of men's cologne and after-shave is much in demand by men lucky enough to have tried it . . . Then there are preparations from Faberge, Bol Bon from Holland (made by Boldoot) . . . Raphael's "For Men" . . . Surfrider from Browning of Honolulu (very exclusive this!) . . . Canoe, by Dana . . . the Victor line from Italy . . . we could go on and on because Douglas Pharmacy undoubtedly has the best selection on men's toiletries in Victoria! . . . With Christmas on the horizon, worth looking into! . . . Douglas Pharmacy, 1672 Douglas St., 385-1541.

Legs of Lanvih's black cloque fantasy pyjamas are tight to the knees . . . then burst into fullness ending in ruffles.

From Sweden . . . by way of W & J Wilson's . . . comes a new group of Hettermarks coats and suits for fall and winter . . . We well remember when Wilson's got their first Hettermarks in last spring . . . they were snapped up fast . . . as no doubt these will be once you see them and try them on . . . They're beautifully tailored and hand detailed . . . chic-ly understated! . . . There's a claret colored wool and mohair coat that's light-weight yet warm . . . notched lapels, four flap pockets . . . $129.50 . . . Another, with lowered balmacaan collar and hand-stitching trim, comes in cinnamon brown or camel . . . and is tagged at $125 . . . For the woman who likes a real winter suit she can wear without an overcoat, there's a dark green walking suit to fill the bill to perfection . . . It's a closely woven wool material, double breasted and trim . . . Could be dressed up with your mink stole, fur scarf or collar . . . priced at only $89.50 . . . Another suit from Sweden . . . this one high styled . . . is a green and black tweed . . . Leather buttons shaped like rosettes march down the front, and the collar, surprisingly enough, is of looped black wool . . . A stunner, this one! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., EV 3-7177.

Breathtaking fabrics for evening glamor . . .

One of the knowledgeable young women in Saba's fabric department was telling us last week she can't remember a season when they have received such beautiful fabrics as their present collection . . . The brocades, lames, satins, velvets and laces are really magnificent . . . and of course, we all know that this fall, the fashion emphasis is mainly on fabric . . . So if you yearn for some stunning gowns for the social season ahead . . . without the stunning price tags such dresses usually carry . . . the thing to do is make your own . . . or have them made by your pet "little dressmaker" . . . We saw some lovely nylon velvets . . . soft and supple . . . in several shades of blue, green and black . . . $6.98 a yard . . . the De Ball velvets . . . in a big range of colors, are only $4.98 . . . Brocades and lames range in price from $2.98 to $18.98 a yard . . . and believe us there are some beauties! . . . A matelasse silk brocade, in a combination of emerald green and bright blue . . . or a striking magenta . . . would make up into an elegant long or short evening dress . . . Then there's the sequinned chiffon . . . white iridescent or shimmering black . . . perfect for a dress bodice or cocktail suit blouse . . . A beautiful range of laces from $1.98 to $26.98 a yard . . . Saba Bros. Limited, 1130 Douglas St., EV 4-0561.

A-travelling we will go . . .

We were sitting in a roomful of people the other evening listening to half a dozen different conversations which all had the same theme . . . travel! . . . Seems as if just about everyone we know is getting ready to take off in a different direction . . . and plans are being formulated for months and months ahead . . . Planning and anticipation really is half the fun of any trip . . . Of course, planning's of the utmost importance . . . and that's where your travel agent comes in . . . He helps you crystallize your travel ideas . . . tells you the best way to get where you want to go . . . the best places to stay . . . the interesting side-trips to take . . . does everything from just answering your questions to planning every detail of your itinerary and arranging all transportation and accommodation . . . Naturally when we talk about travel agents, we have Paulin's in mind specifically . . . because they're Victoria's oldest travel agency . . . Their contacts, up-to-the-minute travel information and general know-how are simply prodigious . . . and the number of services they undertake on behalf of their clients . . . all at no extra cost . . . is unbelievable . . . So . . . if a travelling you would go, go first to . . . George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government St., EV 2-9168.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Let Him Enjoy It, Lady!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a college instructor. He's wonderful in almost every respect, but he's a nut on sports. He's 27 and I'm 26. He was raised on a farm and his dad never let him go out for sports in school because farm chores came first. He's on two softball teams, and when he isn't playing, he's practicing. When softball season is over, it's football. After football, it's basketball. (He plays golf in between, and he's good at everything.) He likes hockey, too. Don't tell me to find myself something to do. We have two boys. One is two years old and the other is three months. I try to be a good kid and go to watch my husband whenever he plays. I sat in the bleachers at a hockey game when I was a week overdue with my second, and chased my 18-month-old all over the gym.

Someone called my husband to be on a bowling team and I overheard him say, "My wife is unreasonable when it comes to sports!" I ask you . . . WHO is unreasonable?

SPORTS WIDOW

DEAR SPORTS: Your husband! Be patient. Time will sideline him soon enough, and then he'll learn you're the best sport he has.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and have been kissed quite a lot. My problem is when a fellow kisses me for the first time, should I pretend I don't know how to kiss very well, or should I let him know that I do?

I don't want him to think I have had too much experience along this line, and then again, I don't want him to think I haven't had any. Can you help me?

SIXTEEN

DEAR SIXTEEN: Just do what comes naturally. But don't overwhelm him in the first act or you'll have nothing to do for an encore.

DEAR ABBY: A psychiatrist once told me that a man who beats his wife was probably beaten by his mother (or a female figure of authority) when he was a child. If more mothers knew this they wouldn't be so quick to hit their sons.

Here's Welcome News For Thwarted Picassos

By PENNY SAVER

The other day, Penny was talking to a friend who fancies himself quite an amateur painter. He was complaining about the fact that his recent attempts at water colors have been spoiled by badly preserved color or poor color. "Why," he asked, "don't they invent a water-color paint and varnish which will stand up to water and contain a bright, colorful, lasting finish?"

Personally, I don't think anything can help his painting, but I did find something which will make colors brighter and the paints I found will last indefinitely because they are made with a plastic.

The artist colors I discovered have a new type of copolymer plastic which is resistant to oil or water. The water that forms the liquid base of these paints contains fine bits of colorless synthetic resin which forms a crystal film when dried. This gives the paint brilliance and durability.

Paints lend themselves to many different techniques of art. Impasto and pottery painting is a "breeze". Paints come in a wide assortment of colors and can be used on any non-oily surface. They can be applied with brush or palette knife.

If you wish a high gloss finish to cover your work, the store has a medium varnish which will give a bright, glossy finish.

You don't have to be a would-be Picasso to enjoy these colors; everyone can have fun! Penny will tell you where to get them if you'll call her at 382-3131.

Bride Wears Peau de Soie Gown And Carries a Red Rose Bouquet

A floor-length gown of white peau de soie that was styled with long lily point sleeves and V-shaped neckline was worn by Betty Marilyn Tyson on Friday evening when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with Kenneth Franklin Mast.

The waistline of the gown dipped to a V. The shoulder-length veil misted from a crown of tiny pearls. Only jewelry was a culture pearl necklace. She carried a white Bible, topped with red sweetheart roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tyson, 3610 Elliston Street, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Mast of Lacombe, Alta. Mr. Tyson gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Laura Tyson was maid of honor for her sister and bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Mast. They wore identical gowns of chiffon over taffeta in shades of turquoise and pink with white accessories and pearl necklaces. White carnations formed their bouquets.

Harold Waddell was best man and guests were ushered to pews marked with artificial pink carnations and white ribbons by Alan Donohue, Lorne Farrell and Bob Windrum.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and decorated by Ted de Bourcier, centred the head table at a reception in the Club Soho. It was topped with a miniature bride and groom and doves holding rings. Vases of chrysanthemums completed table decor.

Master of ceremonies was Harry Tyson, the bride's uncle, and the toast was proposed by Dave Tyson, another uncle.

During the reception, Mrs. E. Hanning sang "Through the Years" and the bride's sister and brother, Laura and Bill Tyson, presented piano selections. A recitation by Jose de Bourcier completed the entertainment.

For travelling, the bride donned a raspberry red three-quarter-length coat and suit with black accessories and white rose corsage.

Blake-Hamlet Vows Heard In St. Mary's Church

An all-white theme was used in decorations in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, on Friday evening when Canon Hywel J. Jones heard marriage vows uniting Dianne Patricia Hamlet and Carl John Blake.

Baskets of flowers decorated the altar and pews were marked with white flowers and bows. The church was decorated by Mrs. H. Hamlet, the bride's grandmother.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hamlet, 2331 Dalhousie Street, Victoria. Parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Chartrand, travelled from Toronto to attend the ceremony.

The bride wore a bell-skirted floor-length gown of ivory snowdrop brocade that featured a scalloped neckline, lily point sleeves and a slight train. Her ivory veil misted to elbow-length from a wedding ring chaplet. Pink Rapture roses and white stephanotis formed her cascade bouquet. She was given in marriage by her father.

Identical bell-skirted cocktail-length gowns of Queen's blue peau de soie were choice of matron of honor, Mrs. R. W. Clunk, bridesmatron Mrs. H. Wetherell and bridesmaid Miss Gretta Vickers. They complemented their ensembles with matching shoes and floral headpieces trimmed with veiling. Pale yellow chrysanthemums were in their bouquets.

Robert Butler was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Derek Hamlet, brother of the bride, and George White.

J. M. Deane proposed the toast to his niece at a reception in Royal Victoria Yacht Club. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by tall white candles and white flowers.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip across Canada to Toronto, where they will make their home, the bride wore a two-piece double-knit suit of soft pink with black accessories and orchid corsage.

She Sniffed Her Way to Career And Became an Organoleptician

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Doris Turnbull is an organolepticlan, and not many Canadian women can make that claim.

Mrs. Turnbull is a whisky-tester.

She began as a secretary in the blending division of a distillery. About 10 years ago her boss asked her to sniff whisky samples. She did well and now it's part of her job.

Tests are run two or three times a week, and take about 20 minutes each, Mrs. Turnbull says. Four ounces of liquor from each vat-load are tested to ensure the 8,000 to 10,000 gallons of whisky in the vat meet company standards.

The crucial test, she says, comes after the whisky is made but before it is put in the charred white oak casks to mature. If the whisky, which at this stage is clear and strong-smelling, fails to meet tests it is sent back to be distilled again.

Mrs. Turnbull and 11 fellow organoleptic board members examine the whisky for taste, smell, color and cloudiness.

Color comes into the picture after the whisky has begun to mature for it takes on most of its characteristic color from the barrels it's stored in. It is tested several times during the four to 10 years it matures in its 40-to-60-gallon barrels.

Mrs. Turnbull says smell is the key test as far as she is concerned. She can't really describe the smell except to say it is "clean."

Whisky is tested in a one-ounce quantity with an ounce of distilled water added to bring it close to the mixed drink the consumer will finally taste. She tests before lunch usually, when her taste buds haven't been dulled by eating. And she doesn't smoke. Nor does she drink much socially.

26 NATIONS AID IN $ BILLION PROJECT

Australia Harnessing Water to Irrigate its Deserts

CANBERRA, Australia (NEA) —That tired old expression "Down Under" has taken on new meaning in the Snowy Mountains in the southeastern corner of Australia. Immense tunnels are being drilled at record speed through the rock hundreds of feet below the surface as one of the world's great engineering projects speeds to completion.

The scope of the Snowy Mountains project staggers the senses of those who watch it take shape. Rivers are being diverted and lakes are being formed, the geography is being transformed in a billion-dollar project made possible by the co-operation of experts and workers from 26 nations.

When completed in 10 years, the project's system of hydro-electric generators will produce about 2.5 million kilowatts of electricity—enough to supply America's fifth largest city, Detroit, Mich.

The Snowy project is comparable to the U.S. Tennessee Valley Authority complex. Its purposes, too, are much the same.

Australia's great national problem is shortage of water in the places where it is needed most. The Snowy project solves the problem in one dry area of the southeastern part of the country by storing the waters of the Snowy River in a series of man-made lakes and diverting them westward to help irrigate the dry but fertile inland plains. Previously, they rushed eastwards to the sea—and waste.

The hydroelectric power stations, six of them underground, take advantage of the 3,000-foot difference in the levels of the western and eastern sides of the Great Dividing Range. The ultimate Snowy project — worked out under the leadership of Sir William Hudson, an expatriate New Zealander—calls for the construction of nine major dams and many smaller ones, about 100 miles of tunnels, 10 power stations and more than 80 miles of feeder aqueducts.

The plans provide for nearly 2 million acre-feet of water to be turned inland annually, sufficient to increase agricultural production in the area it serves by approximately 67 million dollars each year. The over-all plan has an estimated capital cost of well over a billion dollars.

Unlike many other similar government development works, however, the Snowy project is meeting all costs, including repayment of capital and all operation and maintenance costs, from electricity sales. These will eventually reach over 5,000 million kilowatt hours annually, valued at about $60 million.

Today, the Snowy project is more than half completed, the final works scheduled to be finished during the early 1970s. When work began on it, however, the problems involved were seemingly insurmountable.

The most serious was an acute postwar shortage of materials and men—skilled and unskilled. Australia turned to the world for help, and got it in the shape of willing migrant workers from pick and shovel men to the most highly trained engineers, and the practical experience of overseas manufacturing and construction companies, especially American, Norwegian, French, Swedish and British.

Along the main street of nearby Cooma, taking on importance as a resort area, there is an avenue of 26 flags as a tribute to those nations who helped get this huge project under way. And not since the colorful days of Australia's gold rush has there been so much excitement in the air.

THE FACE OF THE LAND — A giant system of dams is changing the geography of southeastern Australia, as the Snowy Mountain project speeds toward completion.

POWER CONES—Resembling grounded satellite nose cones, great underground generators stand ready to generate hydro-electric power from the rushing waters of the Snowy River, far above.

Action In Spain

King of Spanish freshwater sport fish is the salmon. The waters of the north of Spain, in Galicia, Austrias and Santander attract fishermen for the special excitement of bringing salmon in. The season for salmon lasts from March to the end of July.

One out of 3 in London Prefer to Walk About

By DAVID STEPHENS

For years many of my friends have looked at me askance because I do not run a car, and they have not really believed me when I claimed to prefer to walk to work. But at least 35 per cent of the people who live as I do in London's central area do the same. And in most parts of Greater London at least 10 per cent regularly walk to work.

I know all this because I have been reading of the London Traffic Survey, one of the most comprehensive ever undertaken. It was jointly financed by the London County Council and the ministry of transport to the tune of £600,000. Its primary purpose is to provide scientific data for the planning of London's future roads, to enable the experts to forecast traffic requirements in 10 and 20 years' time, and to help in the replanning of London. Only the first part of the survey has so far been published, providing documentary evidence of the traffic congestion which is rapidly growing more and more serious.

Car Ownership Up

London's traffic increased by 40 to 50 per cent between 1952 and 1962, and the truth of the matter is that this rise would have been even greater had there been more space. In a way the motor car is the villain of the piece. Motor traffic is indeed growing fast. The number of car-owning families in London has gone up from one in 20 to one in eight since 1951 and is likely to double again by 1981, while the increase in London's good vehicles is keeping pace with that in the rest of the country.

The trouble with cars is that they use the available road-space uneconomically; the average London rush-hour car carries a mere 1.2 passengers.

Ever Busier Roads

As car ownership spreads further so it is likely to alter the pattern of London's traffic. The roads in the outer districts will become busier at off-peak times while public transport (increasingly concentrated on rail) will cope with the peak hour travel to work. It is not simply a question of one form of travel becoming predominant.

Both will be needed in the London of the future. More cars and better roads will not diminish the need to modernize railways and expand their capacity, especially below ground. At present the buses and railways together still serve about 90 per cent of the peak period travel to Central London and more than 50 per cent of all week-day journeys in the whole of Greater London. As the central roads become more crowded growing numbers desert the buses for the railways.

I may not always live within walking distance of my work. The odds are that I shall probably use the Underground railway; this may not be as attractive a form of travel as above ground on foot or by bus or car, but at least I shall not be marooned in the middle of Picadilly Circus.

'MELE KALIKIMAKA' AND A SUN TAN TOO!

"Mele Kalikimaka" is Hawaiian for Merry Christmas.

December in Hawaii will be mele indeed for visitors and islanders enjoying swimming, deepsea fishing, championship golf matches and outdoor hula shows in between holiday luaus where muumuus are more chic than mink.

Kalikimaka visitors may or may not be on hand for Santa's traditional Yule arrival by outrigger canoe. But they'll surely not miss the Hawaiian carols sung in hotel lobbies, at Ala Moana centre or by the community Christmas tree, a giant hoop pine springing alive out of the green lawn of Iolani Palace.

The International Market Place at Waikiki, where even refuse cans and phone booths wear festive coconut bonnets, is rife with Christmas atmosphere and exotic open-air bazaars stocked with merchandise from the Seven Seas. Everything from Hawaiian tiki gods to Persian rugs and kangaroo jackets may be found under the tinsel leis and fake icicles dangling from bamboo eaves.

Southern California
7 surprising attractions
The starry earth. No night view's quite like the one from Hollywood's hills. Lights of literally dozens of cities, totaling more population than entire states. Like a starry sky, turned upside down.
Early-bird camellias. At Descanso Gardens, acres of them just can't wait for Spring. They bloom as early as November in this largest of all camellia gardens (100,000 plants) in the wooded foothills of La Canada.
Desert sculpture. Huge rock outcroppings, eroded by centuries of desert winds, make a weird collection of Nature's statues at the Wonderland of Rocks. Turn your imagination loose: see beasts, castles, fortresses, a man from Mars!
Collector's items. Desert canyons and foothills near our modern highways are rich in gem stones. Fire opals, jewelry rock, petrified wood. Nearby are old gold and silver mines you'll enjoy visiting.
Coast with the most. Any month of the year, our scenic coast deserves exploration. A one-day drive can show you: tall cliffs, wide white beaches, surf-washed mountains. Also sand dunes, island oil wells, tide pools. Also a movie star beach colony, sail-dotted bays, and a huge ocean harbor.
Free sea gifts. Each incoming Pacific tide plops souvenirs at your feet on the beach. Like striped shells, fascinating sand dollars or sea-whitened driftwood. (You're sure to take part of our favorite ocean back home with you!)

Uncle Sam Won't Help

American in Paris—But Broke

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — Parisians have almost daily reminders these chilling autumn days that not every American in Paris is rolling in dough.

Over the last decade, most accustomed to U.S. visitors traveling on a modest budget and particularly to American students who live on a shoestring.

But only recently have Parisians woke up to the fact that a miniature American "flea market" has sprung up, operated by down-and-out students eager to sell or barter something to raise funds to go home or to prolong their stay in the City of Light. Its location, naturally, is in front of the American Express office, that favorite meeting place for young Americans since before Ernest Hemingway enjoyed his "movable feast."

It's right off the Place de l'Opera in a fine section of the city. Said the director of a nearby exclusive store:

"Imagine my surprise when one day I saw a battered old 4-horsepower Renault, a transistor radio, a naval kitbag and a miniature record player offered for sale."

On a nearby street lamp were posted requests for and offers of rooms to rent and general notices such as: "L. K. Smith is leaving for home. Useless to write his old address."

When all else fails and there is no possibility of laying hands on an honest penny, the down-and-out American youths find their way to the U.S. Embassy on the Place de la Concorde, confident that Uncle Sam will be only too delighted to help them out.

A spokesman at the embassy's welfare department said that it is hard to convince the kids—their ages run from 18 to 25—that the embassy has no funds earmarked for indigent nationals abroad. "But I'm an American," they protest. "I'll sign anything and promise to pay it back."

"All we can do," said another officer, "is hand out good advice. We tell them the first thing to do is to contact their family and how to have the money sent." (Parents who balk at sending a ticket can always buy one that is not negotiable.)

The notion that the embassy cannot provide free transportation back to the United States or any other European city is not the only one difficult for this generation to understand. The embassy is not there to offer free meals or lodging, nor is it in a position to find a job nor help pawn possessions. Only after all this is understood does it dawn on the youths that the most sensible thing to do is to call their parents collect from the welfare officer's office.

"Being broke during the summer is not the hardship it becomes when the cold weather sets in," said the embassy man. "When winter comes, they usually are without a sou and firmly believe that they are entitled, as American citizens, to be repatriated."

The embassy will, on the other hand, make every effort to assist any American stranded in Europe in such emergencies as deaths, accidents, a family crisis or illness, when no financial help can be expected from family or friends.

An application for repatriation is awarded to Washington for further consideration.

Historic Sites Abound In New York

While the stock exchange is the acknowledged hub of New York City's downtown financial district, a number of other points of interest—both business and historic — are within a small radius of the Exchange.

At the head of Wall Street, less than 2,000 feet in length, stands renowned Trinity Church, founded by royal charter in 1697. In the churchyard one can still see gravestones from Colonial times, including those of Alexander Hamilton and Robert Fulton.

A few hundred feet down from the famous intersection of Broad and Wall Streets is a classic, red-brick, pre-revolutionary building, Fraunces Tavern, where George Washington bade farewell to his officers in 1783. It now houses a museum of Revolutionary War relics (free to the public) and a public restaurant.

Other nearby attractions include the Statue of Liberty, the money exhibit in the Sub-Treasury Building, City Hall, and the Brooklyn Bridge.

Whaling Spree

LAHAINA, Maui—Here in this somnolent Hawaiian seaside village, where a century ago more than 500 whaling ships lay at winter anchorage and 1,500 whalers roistered ashore, they are going to partially recreate history with the third annual Lahaina Whaling Spree, November 6, 7 and 8.

The program will be highlighted this year by the arrival of the Matson liner, SS Lurline, on Saturday, November 7, for a day ashore for the passengers. The Lurline is calling at Honolulu on Thursday, November 5; the island of Kauai on November 6, and at Hilo, island of Hawaii, November 8. This will be the Makahiki (Fall Festival) cruise, with special events on each island.

'ITALIAN BOOT' SEEN SHRINKING

By LEO WOLLEMBURG

ROME—Italy, Napoleon used to say, is too long. But the time it takes to drive it has been materially reduced with the opening of the last stretch, south of Florence, of the 470-mile superhighway of the sun from Milan to Rome and Naples.

Following the completion of the four-lane turnpike, driving time from Milan to Naples was cut from 12 to 7 hours even for medium-sized passenger cars; for heavy trucks, the difference and saving will be far greater.

Toll charges for the run between Milan and Naples range from less than five dollars for the smallest cars to about 11 dollars for the largest automobiles. If the expected increase in traffic materializes, all tolls will be abolished by 1974.

Construction of the superhighway of the sun has been carried out by a subsidiary of the Institute for Industrial Reconstruction, the big government holding company whose interests include shipbuilding, iron and steel works, the Alfa Romeo automobile factory and Alitalia Airlines.

Started in May, 1956, the highway has been completed three months ahead of schedule. It involved a total expenditure of 440 million dollars, an average of some 936,000 dollars per mile.

The superhighway of the sun will be extended some 250 miles below Naples to the tip of the Italian boot by 1970.

With the construction of a superhighway between Naples and Bari on the Adriatic coast and of a turnpike linking Bari with Anacona and Bologna, it will further open up Italy's deep south to industry and tourism.

Follow-the-Birds Slogan Used in Gaspe as Well

By GERRY McNEIL

PERCE, Que. (CP) — The North Atlantic's sea birds, creaking in the salt wind like rusty shutters, all gather at this storied haven on the tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

Alfred Hitchcock might easily have used Perce as the location for his chiller, The Birds. Some sort of odd-beaked aerial wonder is always blithely gliding past the tourist here.

The gannets alone outnumber the community's 1,761 inhabitants to 10 to 1, and the gannets are far outnumbered by the thieving gulls.

Then there are the puffins, the petrels, the auks, kittiwakes, cormorants and shearwaters, with occasional flights of Canada Geese, mallards and ducks for variety.

Birds are continually wheeling about the high bald capes that surround the two deep coves here. They clean the beaches, lead the fishermen to the herring and sit atop the snug houses as if they owned them.

Both birds and tourists are attracted by Perce's striking physical attributes.

COVERED WITH EGGS

The birds plaster the windward cliffs of Bonaventure Island, a few miles offshore, with their nests and the tourists pay $3 a boat ride to see this sight.

Just a few hundred feet off the cape that divides Perce's two deep coves is Perce Rock, a 288-foot-high, 1,534-foot-long pierced limestone giant.

Its crumbling crevices and ledges are loaded with eggs, and a bylaw was passed this year to keep ornithologists and gourmets from climbing the rock to get at the nests.

Hubert Boulanger, a lean, pleasant man in his 30s, can't recall a villager ever scaling the rock to the top. The adventurous are stopped by memories of tons of it falling suddenly into the sea.

It is eroding at the rate of 300 tons a year and this should give it another 13,000 years as Perce's main attraction.

A well-equipped team from Montreal climbed it in 1963—it looked like a cinch—but the ice-cracked limestone almost made them turn back.

GOOD FISHING

Game, including bears, is plentiful in the Shickshocks and there is good salmon fishing in rivers throughout the Gaspe.

Jacques Cartier anchored off Bonaventure Island in 1534 and since then French, English and Portuguese fishermen have stopped in the coves to dry their cod catches.

Privateers in the 17th century and rum-runners in the 20th used Perce, and two English frigates ravaged the community in 1690.

Cod are still caught, and herring and lobster, but the tourist industry is the one on which the village now depends. Despite a short two-month season, the hard-working villagers have managed to make a success of it.

If you don't like the way North and South bid today's hand, don't blame me. There are so many bidding sequences available to North and South that you can take your choice, provided that you do wind up at six diamonds.

West opened the king of hearts. North put down the dummy and rushed around the table to watch the maestro perform. The performance was short and brilliant. He took his ace of hearts, played two rounds of trumps and led the queen of clubs.

West played the deuce and the professor went right up with dummy's ace. This dropped East's singleton king, whereupon the professor claimed seven, explaining that he would be able to discard his losing heart on dummy's long club.

"How did you ever figure that one out?" asked the student in an awe-struck tone.

"Just playing percentages," explained the professor. "I was pretty sure that West would have covered with the king if he held it. Therefore my plan was to return to my hand with a trump and take the spade finesse. If that worked I would be able to discard my losing heart on the ace of spades and concede one club trick.

"There was also a chance that the king of clubs would drop, and sure enough it did."

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

THAT ROOM YOU SHOWED ME IS SO SMALL, EVEN A CLAM WOULD GET CLAUSTROPHOBIA IN IT! BUT I'M NO CLAM, SO I'LL TAKE IT!— HAW-HAW!
MY WORD, MR. CHASE, YOU DO HAVE A DROLL WAY OF EXPRESSING YOURSELF! TRUE, THE ROOM MAY BE A BIT COMPACT, BUT THE LAST MAN WHO RENTED IT 10 YEARS AGO, WEDGEFORD SUTTON, WAS VERY SATISFIED UNTIL HE ROLLED OVER IN BED ONE NIGHT AND BROKE AN ARM ON THE WALL!
EXCUSE ME — THERE'S THE DOORBELL!

National Unity 'Benefited' By Royal Visit

The Queen's visit to Canada resulted in greater national unity, Premier Bennett said Friday.

The premier gave his comments before announcing he has informally invited the Queen to B.C. in 1966, the centenary of the joining of the colonies of B.C. and Vancouver Island.

He gave the invitation while chatting with her at an Ottawa reception.

"I suggested the premier would be very happy if she would come," he said.

The Queen indicated she would accept.

A formal invitation will go through regular channels later, said Mr. Bennett.

Sea of Flames

Legion Gives $30,300 To Students

Fifty-nine student awards worth $16,650 were announced today by the Royal Canadian Legion's Pacific command.

With previous awards, this brings the B.C. total to $30,300.

In a statement, the legion said "there is a definite need" to consider bursaries for vocational students as well as those at university.

Their needs, the legion said, "are just as worthy as those who go to universities."

WOOL PRODUCTION RECORD

The current wool production season has broken all records throughout the world with a total output of 5,761,000,000 pounds.

BY THIS TIME these girls, along with 125 other youngsters, will have collected around 25 tons of unwanted clothing. They are part of the team of High-Y boys and Y-Team girls who set out this morning to collect over 10,000 Goodwill bags distributed last Saturday in the Victoria area. They are hoping for a bumper bundle since most of the Goodwill stocks were lost in the recent fire. A fleet of 40 trucks has been taken over for the day by Victoria Jaycees who are organizing the drive. On the left is Jaycee Bert Belfie.

Bennett Forgotten?

Yukon Eyes Deep-Sea Waterway

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Yukon residents, hopeful that a land and water link to the Pacific Ocean may some day become a reality, are beginning to forget Premier W. A. C. Bennett's recent proposal that they join British Columbia.

So says Ken Shortt, editor of the Whitehorse News Advertiser.

The excitement in the Yukon is over recent announcements that a deep-sea waterway through the Alaska Panhandle to northern British Columbia is not impossible.

Their hope lies in the Tarr Inlet which scientists say is becoming wider and deeper because of receding glaciers. The inlet bisects the Alaska Panhandle into B.C.

FACE PROBLEMS

The newspaper editor said Yukoners have trouble trying to ship copper ore and other materials from Skagway, Alaska. The only connection between the Yukon and Skagway is by rail and Skagway stevedores overcharge Canadians.

The Yukon is excited enough at the prospect of having a Canadian port to forget B.C.'s offer of union, said Mr. Shortt.

But in Ottawa Friday, federal geographers said mother nature may place difficulties in the way of developing a port on the inlet.

An official of the geographical branch of the department of mines and technical surveys said that Grand Pacific Glacier has a history of fluctuations.

This glacier is connected to Melbern Glaciers which are said to be receding to make Tarr Inlet navigable for large ships.

"The history of fluctuations in the position of this glacier terminus does not guarantee any stability. Any construction near the glacier or in its potential path would always be exposed to the danger of a sudden advance," the official said.

However, he said there was a possibility this problem could be overcome by engineers. There are plenty of precedents to show that engineers have overcome problems which at one time seemed insurmountable.

"MAYBE SOMEDAY I'll be in a suit like that," ponders Stephen Mitchell, 3640 Cedar Hill Road, as he looks at pressurized space suit of a U.S. project Mercury astronaut. Exhibit was one of many at science fair at University of Victoria which opened Friday and continues until 11 tonight.

Space Exhibit Draws Enthused Audience

Hundreds of Victorians—from preschool aged children to pensioners—learned more about the universe in which they live Friday evening at a University of Victoria science exhibit.

The exhibit, which centred on space, probed the mysteries located in the core of the earth but also focussed on the apparent limitless boundaries of space and man's attempts to conquer them.

It will continue until 11 tonight at the Uvic science building's lecture wing. The exhibit is sponsored by the Royal Astronomic Society of Canada.

MAGNETIC FIELD

Pacific Naval Laboratory was also featured with an exhibit of Dr. Erwin Lokken's group work on the earth's magnetic field.

Other Canadian displays included a model of the Alouette satellite and the nose cone from the Arcas rocket project fired in 1962 from Cold Lake, Alberta, RCAF station.

A big hit with youngsters was the United States' National Aeronautics and Space Administration's exhibit of a space suit and scale models of rockets.

Also popular were films of the flights of the Alouette satellite, Faith Seven and The Clouds of Venus and Giant Step to the Moon.

SUBMISSION OF TENDERS

Sealed tenders enclosed in a sealed envelope, clearly marked "Tender for Construction of the Arrow Dam—CQ 1059," will be received until 12 o'clock noon, Pacific Standard Time, on Tuesday, January 12, 1965, at Room 638, Purchasing and Stores Division, British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority, 970 Burrard Street, Vancouver 1, British Columbia. The tenders will be publicly opened and read aloud at 2 o'clock p.m. on the same day. Any enquiries with respect to the Tender Documents must refer to "CQ 1059".

Gorge View Additions Dedicated

The fourth housing unit of the Gorge View Homes, off Harriet Road, will be dedicated by Rev. Thomas Badger, president of the B.C. Conference of the United Church of Canada, Sunday at 3 p.m.

The new building is an eight-suite unit constructed by the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church. The first was built in 1960 and the long-term objective is 11 units.

One-third of the cost of these homes for the elderly is paid for by the B.C. government.

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace will represent the government at the ceremony, and Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson will be there for the city. They will be introduced by Keith Henderson, president of the Gorge View Society.

Provinces Order Pension Study

TORONTO (CP)—Pension experts from the provincial and federal governments decided Friday night to form an interprovincial committee to promote uniformity and portability of private pension plans across Canada.

Delegates to a confeernce on uniform pension legislation, called by the Ontario government, voted to have the committee's secretariat operate out of Toronto so it can use the staff of the Ontario Pension Commission, which has done pioneering work in the field.

The conference was scheduled for two days, but it ended Friday night after covering its agenda in what Laurence Coward, chairman of the conference and of the Ontario Pension Commission, said was a promising sign for future agreement among the provinces.

MODEL BILL

Mr. Coward said the interprovincial committee — whose members have not been named yet—will be asked to present a model draft bill to all provinces for consideration by Jan. 1, 1966. The Quebec pension bill is scheduled to take effect that day.

A communique issued after Friday's meeting said that all delegates—most of them technical experts from the provincial governments—agreed there is a need for legislation governing private pension plans which provide benefits in addition to any national plan. There was no conflict between the conference's work and the proposed Canada pension plan.

The delegates wanted arrangements to be made so that plans, if possible, be examined under only one jurisdiction and not in every province in which there are employee members, the communique said.

"I see no reason why this portable pension concept should not spread across the provinces," Mr. Coward said at the end of the meeting.

The meeting had been aimed at laying the groundwork for a scheme whereby a private pension plan registered in any one province would be approved in all of them.

New Executive Takes Office

Automatically on the committee are president Dave Lawson, vice-president R. J. Bower and immediate past president E. E. Pearlman.

Other members include Allan Leith, carrying over from last year, and newcomers Pat Frumento, J. C. Melville and H. R. Stephen.

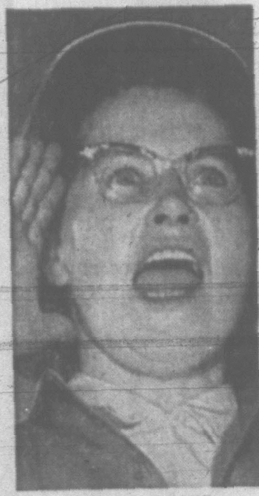
HUSBAND KILLED BUT:

Woman Blaster Will Carry On

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—Lucille Davis, B.C.'s only licensed woman explosives blaster, said Friday she hopes to stay in the business despite the death of her husband in a rockslide at a blasting site.



LUCILLE DAVIS

Russell Davis, 38, died in hospital Thursday of injuries sufered in the slide near a Bendickson Logging Company camp on Hardwicke Island 50 miles north of here.

Witneses said Mr. Davis was watching two men on a tractor clean up after a blast. The tractor workers spotted a rockslide beginning and started to flee.

Mr. Davis saw the men running and followed but was caught by the slide and tumbled down a 60-foot embankment.

MERCY FLIGHT

He was brought to hospital in a B.C. Airlines plane.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis formed Russ Davis Contracting and Explosives here four years ago.

Mrs. Davis liked the work so well she decided to become a licensed blaster, passing stiff government exams last June with higher marks than most men obtain.

Besides blasting she has looked after the firm's powder magazine, which contains 60,000 pounds of dynamite and considerable equipment on a 34-acre site near here.

EXPERT LOANED

Mrs. Davis said William Pryde, head of the Canadian Industries Limited office in Vancouver, has sent a blasting expert to run the business for a few days free of charge.

Asked whether she will keep the firm in operation, she replied: 'If I can hold it financially, I will."

A typical beef cattle herd consists of breeding stock, yearlings and two-year-olds. Heifers usually are marketed at from six to 12 months of age, and are seldom purebred or registered stock.

Navy-Army-Air-Force Link Arms in Landing

Sailors, soldiers and airmen from three western provinces will combine for the first time in a joint landing to improve inter-service understanding.

The exercise is also designed to prepare the servicemen for any role they may be assigned anywhere in the world.

Problems encountered in this area include dense undergrowth, hazardous windfalls piled deep over hundreds of years, steep hills and a very good chance of wet weather.

The exercise is under the direction of Maj.-Gen. John M. Rockingham, general officer commanding, Western Army Command, who will be assisted by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, soon to become flag officer, Pacific coast, and Air Commodore R. C. Weston, senior air officer, Pacific coast.

Esquimalt-based ocean escorts HMCS Sussexvale, Antigonish, Stettler and Jonquiere will be participating with riflemen of First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles and two H21 Vertol helicopters from 121 Composite Unit at Comox.

Other units participating will be Second Battalion QOR, Calgary; a section of 3 Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers, Chilliwack, and elements of B.C. Area Signals Squadron.

RCAF aircraft from Rivers, Man., include two T-33 tactical air support aircraft and a photo and visual reconnaissance Dakota from 408 Photo Squadron.

OBJECTIVES

Exercise objectives will include embarkation drills and routine aboard ship, watermanship, landings from small craft, communications, support by naval gunfire, re-supply and tactical air support.

While ground troops and RCAF aircraft are engaged in securing a firm base inland following the combined landing operation, the ocean-escorts will go on manoeuvres in the Scott Islands when not required for supply or support roles.

The exercise is expected to end Nov. 6 when troops will be returned to Esquimalt aboard the ocean-escorts and flown to their home bases via RCAF transports from Patricia Bay.

AND NO BUTS ABOUT IT

Among the young people to be awarded honors next month at the annual achievement banquet of the North Saanich 4-H Club is Kathryn Logan of 4412 Wilkinson Road.

Kathryn's goat, Sunnygrove Avalanche, a Saanen milk goat, was competing against 100 does, mostly entered by adult goat breeders.

The girl also won the Hudson's Bay trophy awarded to the exhibitor having the best first kidder doe in the Saanichton Fair. She is a member of North Saanich Junior 4-H Goat Club.

Alberni Merger Supporters Fear 'Apathy'

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — The people of Port Alberni and Alberni answer these two questions today:

Do they want the two communities to amalgamate?

Do they really care?

Approval by more than 60 per cent of a referendum today will mean the first step in procedures linking residential Alberni and industrial Port Alberni, now independent, adjoining communities in the heart of Vancouver Island.

The former has 1,958 voters and gets only 25 per cent of its tax revenue from business. The latter has 4,596 eligible today and derives 80 per cent of tax monies from industry and business.

Despite public meetings, extended council discussion, radio announcements and huge newspaper advertisings, leaders of both communities fear public apathy.

A recent poll showed that 47 per cent of residents did not know the referendum was coming up; that 25 per cent favored union; and that 28 per cent would vote against it.

Proponents are concerned that a light turnout will bring out mainly "no" votes from opponents of the plan.

Even approval will leave amalgamation three years away.

First a fixed-assessment agreement with the giant MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited must expire. This occurs December, 1965, and will double Port Alberni's tax revenue with income from the land occupied by operations of the forestry giant here.

A further two-year delay will allow for construction of a public safety building, sewer extension, waterfront highway and general road improvements, all in Port Alberni.

Exploratory talks from March to August determined that any amalgamation would have to include administrative control by Port Alberni and the name "City of Port Alberni" for the new entity.

Existing Port Alberni bylaws would be adopted in their entirety, with Alberni bylaws added according to the decisions of an interim council that would serve until the municipal elections of December, 1967.

Although the two cities now duplicate operations with two city halls, two general administrations, two fire departments and two RCMP detachments, they share a common recreation commission, and chamber of commerce.

Nikita Blasted By Red Press

'Personality Cult' Rapped

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The first bill of indictment issued against Nikita Khrushchev suggests that personality played a big part in the downfall of the flamboyant Soviet leader.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today sets out some reasons for the decision to relieve Khrushchev as premier and Communist party first secretary.

Named premier in the shake-up announced early Friday was Alexei Kosygin, 60, former first deputy premier. Named first secretary was Leonid Brezhnev, 58, who had been one of a number of party secretaries.

The editorial does not name Khrushchev but clearly refers to him when it denounces "cult of personality" and "subjectivism and drifting in Communist construction."

"Hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, bragging and phrase-mongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience" are alien to the party.

World Communist Meet Still On

The editorial, regarded as both a limited policy statement and a bill of particulars against the 70-year-old Khrushchev, indicates nevertheless that the new Kremlin leaders will go ahead with the Soviet plan to call a conference of world Communist parties. There had been speculation in the aftermath of the power shift that the meeting might be called off as a gesture of reconciliation toward China, which has bitterly assailed it and declared that China will not be represented.

Pravda emphasizes the party line provides for "application of the principle of peaceful coexistence between states with a differing social order," something China opposes.

The only hint of a change in policy is in a sentence emphasizing the importance of "strengthening party leadership in all spheres of the economy and culture."

In praising the principle of collective leadership and saying a perzonality cult is alien to communism, the editorial tarred Khrushchev with the same brush that he used on Stalin in the days when Khrushchev was denouncing the late dictator for fostering a personality cult.

The import of the editorial is that domestic considerations played a major role in the fall of Khrushchev.

Transfer Goes Ahead Peacefully

Transfer of power appeared to be taking place peaceably though there was no firm guarantee that Khrushchev would not fight back. A Western diplomat expressed the opinion that Khrushchev, being "a party man," would go gracefully.

Meanwhile, a picture emerged of Khrushchev's final days as Soviet leader. It bore out the belief that Khrushchev was forced from rule at a dramatic, secret meeting of the Communist leadership.

Authoritative sources said the Communist party central committee voted Khrushchev out of power and lodged charges of incompetence and nepotism against him.

Khrushchev had invited Gaston Palewski, French minister for nuclear and space research, for a talk and lunch at his Black Sea villa Tuesday. But the meeting was advanced to 9:30 a.m. and then cut short.

Khrushchev excused himself, saying he had to fly to Moscow to greet the cosmonauts.

Palewski left and Khrushchev vanished, so far as the public was concerned.

The nucleus of the central committee, its predium, met Tuesday night, with Khrushchev present. It was reported to have voted to remove him from his most important job, first secretary of the committee.

By Thursday the secret activity was beginning to become obvious.

When the central committee vote came, Khrushchev lost. The count has not yet become known but the result showed that Khrushchev had been outmanoeuvred within the party machinery.

The man who apparently did it was Brezhnev.

After the central committee vote, there remained the formality of dropping Khrushchev from the premier's job. That came Thursday. Anastas Mikoyan, the old friend, presided as the job was given to Kosygin.

LABOR UNION BOSS NAMED TO CABINET

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson brought the boss of Britain's biggest labor union into his government today to help sweeten relations between it and the unions.

Frank Cousins, 60, leader of the 1,350,000-strong Transport and General Workers Union and one-time leftist firebrand, was named minister of technology in the surprise appointment of the new government.

Wilson Tackles Trade Problem

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today tackled his new Labor government's most difficult and pressing problem by calling in his "inner cabinet" for an urgent survey of Britain's economic strength.

The 48-year-old leader plunged into his first full day of office by giving top priority to these talks—even before completing his cabinet.

Wilson accepted Friday Queen Elizabeth's invitation to form an administration after Thursday's narrow election victory over Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative party and quickly named key cabinet posts from among his Labor party team.

MEET NEXT WEEK

The first full cabinet meeting was likely to be held early next week to discuss proposals made by the Labor administration's top men as a result of their talks.

Some economic experts believed the government may introduce import controls among its short-term measures to deal with the vital trade issue.

Next week's cabinet will also discuss the problem of how to handle the most controversial issues in Labor's program, such as steel re-nationalization, in the Parliament being opened by the Queen Nov. 3.

The new government faced difficulties in pushing some of its legislation through Parliament because of its wafer-thin election victory margin.

An influential role in the new Parliament may be played by Jo Grimond's minority Liberal party, which stepped up its House of Commons representation to nine seats from seven.

Addressing the nation Friday a few hours after one of the most dramatic election races in British history, Wilson referred to his small majority in the House of Commons and declared:

"I want to make it quite clear that this will not affect our ability to govern. Having been charged with the duties of government we intend to carry out those duties."

With only one constituency unreported from Thursday's

$150,000 Winner 'Numb'

VANCOUVER (CP)—"I'm not calm—I'm numb."

That was how Bill Hancock, 25, a $350-a-month optical mechanic, described how he felt when he heard that favorite Hasty Cloudy had won the Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket, England.

Mr. Hancock used the nome-de-plume Glen Allen, name of his 2½-year-old son, on his sweepstakes ticket that was drawn on the winner.

He was one of two persons in British Columbia who held tickets on Hasty Cloud, winning about $150,000 each.

The other was Sgt. Walter E. Corbett, 47, of the Army Engineers' camp near Chilliwack, 65 miles east of Vancouver.

"I guess I'll stay in my job for a while," Mr. Hancock said today. "I know for sure I'll get a new car instead of the old clunk I have right now."

Sgt. Corbett obtained leave and went to his father's home in Vancouver after learning he had won.

"We can leave home now—just go somewhere," his wife Helen said.

Sgt. Corbett said he also wanted to take a trip but that his army commitments would pre-

All 17 Vancouver Island residents holding sweepstake tickets finished out of the big money. Of the 17, seven ticket-holders had their horses scratched.

All persons who have a ticket drawn on a horse receive a consolation prize of $1,100.

Others, using nomes-de-plume, are Shuswap Kid, ticket VHP 08788; Robbie's Roy, ticket WSN 48985; Cimarron, ticket VJH 88850; Outside, ticket VLB 82523, and Three Dopes, ticket VLQ 48838.

DANGER TO PEACE: INDIA

'Tremor of Fear' A-Blast Aftermath

The United States played it down. So did the Chinese Communists themselves. But it sent a double tremor of fear coursing through the rest of the world, especially in Asia: Fear of Communist China's ambitions, fear of the spread of nuclear weaponry.

European diplomats speculated that the Chinese bomb had blasted Nikita S. Khrushchev out of the Soviet premiership. He was out of office before the bomb exploded. But his Soviet colleagues may have blamed him for miscalculating the Chinese in the first place, diplomats theorized.

Khrushchev had agreed in 1957 to help the Chinese with their atomic technology, presumably including weaponry. He reneged on the agreement in 1959. This helped bring on the Sino-Soviet feud.

Possibly Khrushchev did not believe that the Chinese could build the bomb by themselves so soon.

VULNERABLE

Unquestionably, Communist China remains vulnerable to nuclear attack by the United States or the Soviet Union. The U.S. Seventh Fleet still rules the sea in the Far East, and no challenger is in sight.

The Chinese themselves urged a world conference to ban nuclear weapons—but as usual omitted a mutual inspection system, which the West deems crucial.

They also pledged that they would never be the first to use nuclear weapons: "The Chinese people can be trusted."

But in Thailand, a U.S. ally, a cabinet minister told reporters, "quite a lot has changed since Friday.

A spokesman for the Malaysian foreign ministry said the explosion constitutes "a threat to non-Communist nations in the region."

India fought and lost a border war to Communist China two years ago. Indian Premier Lal Bahadur Shastri said the Chinese explosion "has

PENANCE AT THE OLYMPICS

Snip, Snip . . . and Everyone Cried

TOKYO (AP)—There's a bald-headed beauty who speaks Russian roaming the Olympic village today.

Two Japanese newspapers say the girl was Russian. One identifies her as Elvira Ozolina, Russia's gold medal winner in the women's javelin throw at Rome four years ago, who placed a poor fifth in the finals here Friday.

But the Russians say the girl was not Ozolina. In fact, they say, she wasn't even Russian.

"No one on our team would do such a ridiculous thing," a spokesman for the Soviet Olympic team said today.

Mrs. Masako Tanomura, who manages the Olympic village beauty parlor, says the mystery girl walked in Friday afternoon, after the javelin finals.

GRABS SCISSORS

"She kept pointing to her head, motioning me to cut it. I started to cut her hair in the popular Cecile cut . . . she grabbed my scissors and snipped off a lock of her hair at the roots. A Russian-language interpreter passed by and I seized her and asked her to persuade the girl not to do this.

"But the athlete, with tears in her eyes, insisted . . .

"I cut off her hair, all of it. By the time I was finished, she was sobbing. I was sobbing, too."

Mrs. Tanomura said the girl refused a scarf to cover her head and walked out, her face wet with tears.

40-Year Prison Terms For Killing 80 Girls

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Two sisters have ben found guilty of slaying at least 80 girls in the operation of a white slave ring in San Francisco del Rincon, a town in central Mexico. The sisters, Delfina Gonzalez Valenzuala, 56, and Maria de Jesus Gonzales Valenzuala, 39, were given the maximum sentence, 40 years in prison.

Several hundred persons gathered in front of the court house in this small, isolated town Friday as Judge Timeteo Lozano pronounced his verdict. The trial began last January and brought forth details of starvation, beatings and death. Nineteen other persons were convicted of being members of the ring and given sentences ranging from one to 35 years. The prosecution contended the ring had been operating for at least 10 years and the girls who were slain had tried to resist discipline.

CROSSES ON RIVER FLOOR —CANADIANS NOT DULL

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians are anything but dull, says Centennial Commissioner John Fisher after seeing the wide variety of ideas suggested and planned for centennial projects.

For example, one town in the far north wants a cemetery vault for a centennial project. Mr. Fisher found the idea sensible, since the town has difficulty with its graveyard because of permafrost.

Then there's the man who sent in a design for a national chain of comfort stations. Or the one who wants illuminated crosses on the floor of the St. Lawrence River "to remind us of our religious heritage."

Mr. Fisher, speaking at a dinner here Thursday, gave an idea of the extent of the centennial planning — Cape Breton miners are reconstructing the history of mining on the island; Lethbridge is building a Japanese garden; Calgary is constructing planetarium.

B.C. Hydro Purchases Northern Power Firm

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority announced Friday it has purchased the independent Northern B.C. Power Company at Prince Rupert and plans to greatly expand present facilities.

The mammoth Crown-owned B.C. Hydro did not disclose the price it paid for its new satellite, but said the takeover is effective Nov. 4.

It said the purchase provides assurance ample power will be made available for major industrial projects as they develop in the Prince Rupert area.

Negotiations now are under way for the supply of power to a proposed new pulp mill and associated chemical plant.

In addition to supplying power to more than 4,000 customers at Prince Rupert, Hydro will assume responsibility for serving 168 customers at Stewart, 125 miles to the north.

Service to Hyder, Alaska, also will be continued without change for the present, the company said.

DIVIDENDS

Rolland Paper, "A" 7½ cents, "B" 6¼ cents, payable Dec. 1; record Nov. 10; xd Nov. 6.

GREY FLANNEL SUITS URGED BY RC CLERIC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic clergy should abandon the wearing of long cassocks, and substitute shirts, ties and lapel badges for Roman collars, a Jesuit editor suggests.

Recently, Rev. Bianchi said, clergymen in France, Belgium and Montreal were given permission to wear black or grey suits rather than flowing cassocks.

He said the change in clothing would be in agreement with proposals in the second Vatican ecumenical council to simplify ornate and outmoded bishops' robes.

Since city and municipal codes apparently fail to offer protection against this nuisance, I can only suggest to the householder that he give the bucket-shop brigade short shrift.

Your phone rings. You answer. A voice, usually female and dulcet, puts this question:

"Do you ever watch such-and-such on television?"

But being polite, you add, "Sometimes my children do."

"As a reward for answering our question," the voice then announces, "we are going to send you this-or-that magazine (or magazines) free.)"

From this point, the going becomes pretty slippery. At best, your 'reward' will consist of a package deal offered at a slight discount. At worst, you may wind up being pestered, heckled, or even threatened with court action.

I have no quarrel with the magazines offered, several of which we subscribe to. But the next con-girl who misuses Mr. Bell's invention to annoy us with one of these come-alongs is due for a tin ear!

This department a couple of weeks back got somewhat carried away with itself while offering program suggestions to our spiffy new McPherson Playhouse, a piece of sauciness to which the McPherson's business manager, Robert Ellison, responded much too promptly.

"We've reserved two on the aisle in the twelfth row for you," he replied by fast pigeon. "You can make your cheque out to the Corporation of the City of Victoria."

While plans aren't yet official, I understand the McPherson will celebrate its return to a place in Greater Victoria's community life with a week-long jamboree of varied entertainment.

Opening night still to be set . . . but at the pace things are shaping down there, it isn't too far off.

The notorious Royal Oak-Pat Bay Highway intersection is to get traffic lights at last, a move which I seem to remember hollering for a couple of years ago.

The widening and improvement project scheduled for the Pat Bay should give us a reasonably safe route along the peninsula, but I hope the powers won't trifle with the speed limits.

Sixty an hour is plenty, if not too much, for an open-access road of this sort.

In the last few weeks, I've seen at least half a dozen near crackups when some driver made reckless by a patience-fraying wait, whipped out of a sideroad into the Pat Bay's traffic stream.

I've heard talk of a 70-mile limit, and hope there's no fire behind this smoke. For unless the plans call for overpasses or underpasses, no amount of face-lifting will transform the Pat into a high-speed link.

While we're on the subject of highways, my thanks herewith to the three separate drivers who offered aid when a blowout-proof tire let go on me last week.

This continual fussing and fretting about the discourtesy of Victoria drivers irks me. The squawkers would benefit—if they survived—from a canter through Detroit, where a man doesn't rate as a driver till he's used up four fenders.

It is about time to wish you the happiest weekend possible in a world where a government can be unseated, a premier ousted and a Chinese nuclear cracker exploded, all on the same front page.

"Darn!" says she, wistfully, on reading of not-so-bad Mr. K.'s political demise. "And after I finally learned to spell his name!"

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It is the 50th anniversary of Vancouver Island Red Chevrons' Association, formed in the dark days of the First World War and perpetuated by more than 120 veterans who survived the first German gas attack on the Ypres salient.

These hardy old warriors—soldiers, sailors and airmen who went overseas with the Canadian volunteers in 1914—attended a special service in Christ Church Cathedral and later placed a wreath on the cenotaph in memory of missing comrades.

Then they paraded past the Empress Hotel and turned eyes right in a smart salute to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

OLDEST IS 96

Oldest member on parade was 96-year-old Dr. William Lockhart who was medical officer with the First Brigade Canadian Field Artillery, and treated hundreds of casualties from the first gas attack.

"We had no protection but our handkerchiefs," the still bright-eyed doctor said. "It was murder—plain murder."

Dr. Lockhart came to Victoria from his home on Salt Spring Island accompanied by 81-year-old E. O. Aves, a veteran of the 16th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

They swapped reminiscences with many other old-timers, among whom were Frank Hassall, a veteran of the South African War and the two World Wars; George Bonham, a veteran of the New Zealand Army; Frank Anders of the 7th Battalion, CEF; J. H. Robins of the 8th Battalion; Tom Pickering of the 52nd Prince Albert Volunteers—and a host of others.

YELLOW-GREEN CLOUD

They recalled a dirty yellow-green cloud which drifted over the Ypres Salient on April 22, 1915. And they remembered with bowed heads the countless young soldiers who died in the deadly chlorine fumes.

It was a bright sunny day and the Canadians, drinking tea and munching hard army biscuits, were puzzled by this sluggish low-lying cloud as it drifted towards them.

They knew the worst when the cloud poured into front-line trenches and rifle pits to begin the deadly work which not only killed but left countless invalids who are still alive today.

W. H. McMURRAY

. . . president

W. H. McMurray, president of the Vancouver Island chapter of the Red Chevrons' Association, was a signaller with the Third Canadian Infantry Brigade when the gas attack came.

It tore a three-mile gap in the Allied lines, but two battalions of Canadian troops held their ground, despite casualties so severe that for years after the actual count was kept secret.

RESERVES RUSHED IN

Mr. McMurray recalled how reserves were rushed in to patch up the decimated 13th and 14th battalions.

Runners, batmen, signalmen, drivers and cooks were armed with rifles and rushed into the line to help stem the German attacks which hit the Canadian sector for 10 days.

"We faced the gas attack with wet handkerchiefs and strips of cloth plastered over our faces," said Charlie Chase, vice-president of the Vancouver Island chapter.

"It is one of the most exclusive ex-servicemen's groups in North America," he said, "since it is composed only of men who went overseas before Dec. 31, 1914."

160 SURVIVORS

Mr. Monteith estimated there are about 160 surviving members in British Columbia and about 120 on Vancouver Island.

"Most of our members seem to finish up on the Island," he said.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes was greeted on the steps of the cathedral by Brigadier W. K. G. (Shorty) Colquhoun, 6 ft. 6 in. tall and an original member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and Archbishop Sexton.

In his address, Archbishop Harold Sexton said the tragedy of war was only mitigated by the fellowship existing among men in the front lines.

Tonight the Chevrons are attending a reunion banquet in the Empress Hotel ballroom at which rum rations will be broken out and Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will be guest of honor.

AFTER 10 YEARS

Ready to Save Historic Sites

Ten years' work to bring about a trust for historic buildings in Victoria will come to fruition Monday night.

Dr. Charles Borsman said today the first meeting of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Trust will be held at 8 p.m. at 941 Pandora.

Officers and trustees, including Mayor R. B. Wilson, will be elected.

The trust was formed because it was found almost impossible to accomplish anything without being incorporated, he said.

LEGAL ENTITY

"This gives us the opportunity to receive trusts and legacies," he said.

The new group would try and give tangible support to existing historic associations.

"It is not our intention to buy buildings and keep them open," he said.

"We want to assure preservation by encouraging people to live in them or use commercially.

. . . first step

The trust was planning a 100-page handbook which would also be for sale, on historic buildings. It would include pictures of virtually every interesting building with brief notes.

Dr. Borsman expected about 200 persons to attend Monday night's meeting.

A new Roman Catholic church will be built in the Lake Hill district at a cost of $155,000. It will be the new centre of the Sacred Heart parish.

The sod for the new church was turned recently by Rev. John Planeta and completion is expected by April. Architect for the building is John Di Castri.

PREMIER WOULD 'BE HONORED' IF HE IS

Premier Bennett says he would be "highly honored" if there is a ceremony for him next Feb. 15.

On that date, he will become the longest-serving premier in B.C. history—nearly 13 years.

"But I am not doing anything, or suggesting it, or planning it," the premier said of a possible ceremony.

Youths Brawl In Ward Of Hospital

City police were called in and quelled the disturbance, but not before a plate glass door in the hospital had been shattered.

Police said the fight in the ward apparently started after Grant Basanta, 2715 Quadra, brought four youths into the ward for treatment.

Somewhere along the line, two of the youths were cut, and a third received a black eye.

Detained in hospital with cuts were Kenneth Alexander, 17, of 3356 Oak, and David John MacMillan, 18, of 26 Marlborough.

The fourth youth was Rodney Arendel, 18, of 1438 Stadacona, said city police.

PREMIER ON YUKON:

Bride Must Be Willing Or No Wedding March

"They must come into B.C. of their own free will and accord," he told reporters Friday.

"Keeping house is bad enough. But you must have a willing bride."

He thought there are three ways the north can be developed.

The north can go on as now, with the federal government, or the Yukon could join with the Northwest Territories and form a province.

With the first, "there will be no development at all," and the second wouldn't strengthen Canada or help the north because of scattered population and weak tax base.

The third possibility would be for the western provinces to extend their boundaries north to the Arctic. "Then the north could be developed," he said.

In the long run, the Yukon could be "a great asset to B.C."

"But we are not pushing them," he said.

Premier Bennett also said he doesn't think the Senate will veto B.C.'s bill for a bank.

"I would be very amazed if they did," he said.

The bill has bogged down in the Senate while two others, Laurentide and the Bank of Western Canada, have gone to the Commons.

He thought all three bills should be in the Commons at the same time. "It would be proper procedure," he said.

BODY FOUND IN TRAILER

Warrant Issued For Regina Man

Warrants have been issued locally for the arrest of a Regina man wanted in connection with the mystery death of a woman whose body was found in an abandoned trailer in Burnaby.

A Victoria man found the body after going to reclaim the trailer, and RCMP in Burnaby say the woman may have died here.

Gerry Coad, co-owner of Tolmie Home Service, 3201 Douglas, went to Burnaby to reclaim the trailer he rented to a man last month.

She had been dead at least a month when Mr. Coad saw her body through a window of the 14-foot house trailer.

'TRAILER THEFT'

He is being sought as far south as San Francisco, where a U-drive vehicle he is believed to have rented was traded in on another car.

Burnaby RCMP told the Times this morning there were no signs of violence on her body, but that its stage of deterioration was sufficiently advanced that bruises might not be readily seen.

There were no signs of a fight inside the trailer, they said.

An autopsy was under way this morning to attempt to determine the cause of death.

RCMP said they have no reason to believe widely-circulated report that the woman may have died of an abortion.

The trailer had been sitting on the motel lot since a man checked in there on Sept. 16.

He registered as having his wife with him, but RCMP said this morning no one at the motel reports seeing the woman

The proprietor said he was not suspicious when the trailer sat there for weeks—people often leave trailers and go for boat trips up the coast.

POLICE INFORMED

After three weeks, he told RCMP.

They found the trailer belonged to Tolmie Home Service, and notified Mr. Coad to come and pick it up.

Ther were no keys in the trailer when Mr. Coad arrived, and he looked into the window.

He saw a pair of feet. Moving around to another window, he saw the entire body.

The same couple was checked into a Victoria auto court two days beforoe arriving in Burnaby.

The next day, the man obtained a trailer, and carried the woman out into it.

When the proprietor went into the suite to tidy up afterwards, the pillow was stained with mucus, police said.

He pleaded not guilty, then withdrew the plea when he learned it would men a trial during the week, when he has lectures.

"My students need me more than I need the money," he told the court.

NDP Reports Offer to Buy Victoria Hall

An offer has been made to purchase Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney, a New Democratic Party spokesman said today.

He described the offer as "reasonable" and added there was a Nov. 1 deadline for acceptance or rejection.

He declined to give details of the offer or who it was from. These would be disclosed at a membership meeting, he said.

Nikita Blasted By Red Press

'Personality Cult' Rapped

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The first bill of indictment issued against Nikita Khrushchev suggests that personality played a big part in the downfall of the flamboyant Soviet leader.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today sets out some reasons for the decision to relieve Khrushchev as premier and Communist party first secretary.

Named premier in the shake-up announced early Friday was Alexei Kosygin, 60, former first deputy premier. Named first secretary was Leonid Brezhnev, 58, who had been one of a number of party secretaries.

The editorial does not name Khrushchev but clearly refers to him when it denounces "cult of personality" and "subjectivism and drifting in Communist construction."

"Hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, bragging and phrase-mongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience" are alien to the party.

World Communist Meet Still On

The editorial, regarded as both a limited policy statement and a bill of particulars against the 70-year-old Khrushchev, indicates nevertheless that the new Kremlin leaders will go ahead with the Soviet plan to call a conference of world Communist parties. There had been speculation in the aftermath of the power shift that the meeting might be called off as a gesture of reconciliation toward China, which has bitterly assailed it and declared that China will not be represented.

Pravda emphasizes the party line provides for "application of the principle of peaceful coexistence between states with a differing social order," something China opposes.

The only hint of a change in policy is in a sentence emphasizing the importance of "strengthening party leadership in all spheres of the economy and culture."

In praising the principle of collective leadership and saying a personality cult is alien to communism, the editorial tarred Khrushchev with the same brush that he used on Stalin in the days when Khrushchev was denouncing the late dictator for fostering a personality cult.

The import of the editorial is that domestic considerations played a major role in the fall of Khrushchev.

Transfer Goes Ahead Peacefully

Transfer of power appeared to be taking place peaceably though there was no firm guarantee that Khrushchev would not fight back. A Western diplomat expressed the opinion that Khrushchev, being "a party man," would go gracefully.

Meanwhile, a picture emerged of Khrushchev's final days as Soviet leader. It bore out the belief that Khrushchev was forced from rule at a dramatic, secret meeting of the Communist leadership.

Authoritative sources said the Communist party central committee voted Khrushchev out of power and lodged charges of incompetence and nepotism against him.

Khrushchev had invited Gaston Palewski, French minister for nuclear and space research, for a talk and lunch at his Black Sea villa Tuesday. But the meeting was advanced to 9:30 a.m. and then cut short.

Khrushchev excused himself, saying he had to fly to Moscow to greet the cosmonauts.

The nucleus of the central committee, its predium, met Tuesday night, with Khrushchev present. It was reported to have voted to remove him from his most important job, first secretary of the committee.

By Thursday the secret activity was beginning to become obvious.

When the central committee vote came, Khrushchev lost. The count has not yet become known but the result showed that Khrushchev had been outmanoeuvred within the party machinery.

The man who apparently did it was Brezhnev.

After the central committee vote, there remained the formality of dropping Khrushchev from the premier's job. That came Thursday. Anastas Mikoyan, the old friend, presided as the job was given to Kosygin.

LABOR UNION BOSS NAMED TO CABINET

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson brought the boss of Britain's biggest labor union into his government today to help sweeten relations between it and the unions.

Frank Cousins, 60, leader of the 1,350,000-strong Transport and General Workers Union and one-time leftist firebrand, was named minister of technology in the surprise appointment of the new government.

COMPLETES CABINET

Wilson Tackles Trade Problem

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today tackled his new Labor government's most difficult and pressing problem by calling in his "inner cabinet" for an urgent survey of Britain's economic strength.

The 48-year-old leader plunged into his first full day of office by giving top priority to these talks—even before completing his cabinet.

Wilson accepted Friday Queen Elizabeth's invitation to form an administration after Thursday's n[illegible] election victory over S[illegible] Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative party and quickly named key cabinet posts from among his Labor party team.

MEET NEXT WEEK

The first full cabinet meeting was likely to be held early next week to discuss proposals made by the Labor administration's top men as a result of their talks.

Some economic experts believed the government may introduce import controls among its short-term measures to deal with the vital trade issue.

Next week's cabinet will also discuss the problem of how to handle the most controversial issues in Labor's program, such as steel re-nationalization, in the Parliament being opened by the Queen Nov. 3.

The new government faced difficulties in pushing some of its legislation through Parliament because of its wafer-thin election victory margin.

An influential role in the new Parliament may be played by Jo Grimond's minority Liberal party, which stepped up its House of Commons representation to nine seats from seven.

Addressing the nation Friday a few hours after one of the most dramatic election races in British history, Wilson referred to his small majority in the House of Commons and declared:

"I want to make it quite clear that this will not affect our ability to govern. Having been charged with the duties of government we intend to carry out those duties."

With only one constituency unreported from Thursday's

$150,000 Winner 'Numb'

VANCOUVER (CP)—"I'm not calm—I'm numb."

That was how Bill Hancock, 25, a $350-a-month optical mechanic, described how he felt when he heard that favorite Hasty Cloudy had won the Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket, England.

Mr. Hancock used the nome-de-plume Glen Allen, name of his 2½-year-old son, on his sweepstakes ticket that was drawn on the winner.

He was one of two persons in British Columbia who held tickets on Hasty Cloud, winning about $150,000 each.

The other was Sgt. Walter E. Corbett, 47, of the Army Engineers' camp near Chilliwack, 65 miles east of Vancouver.

"I guess I'll stay in my job for a while," Mr. Hancock said today. "I know for sure I'll get a new car instead of the old clunk I have right now."

Sgt. Corbett obtained leave and went to his father's home in Vancouver after learning he had won.

DANGER TO PEACE: INDIA

'Tremor of Fear' A-Blast Aftermath

The United States played it down. So did the Chinese Communists themselves. But it sent a double tremor of fear coursing through the rest of the world, especially in Asia: Fear of Communist China's ambitions, fear of the spread of nuclear weaponry.

European diplomats speculated that the Chinese bomb had blasted Nikita S. Khrushchev out of the Soviet premiership. He was out of office before the bomb exploded. But his Soviet colleagues may have blamed him for miscalculating the Chinese in the first place, diplomats theorized.

Khrushchev had agreed in 1957 to help the Chinese with their atomic technology, presumably including weaponry. He reneged on the agreement in 1959. This helped bring on the Sino-Soviet feud.

Possibly Khrushchev did not believe that the Chinese could build the bomb by themselves so soon.

VULNERABLE

Unquestionably, Communist China remains vulnerable to nuclear attack by the United States or the Soviet Union. The U.S. Seventh Fleet still rules the sea in the Far East, and no challenger is in sight.

The Chinese themselves urged a world conference to ban nuclear weapons—but as usual omitted a mutual inspection system, which the West deems crucial.

They also pledged that they would never be the first to use nuclear weapons: "The Chinese people can be trusted."

But in Thailand, a U.S. ally, a cabinet minister told reporters, "quite a lot has changed since Friday.

A spokesman for the Malaysian foreign ministry said the explosion constitutes "a threat to non-Communist nations in the region."

India fought and lost a border war to Communist China two years ago. Indian Premier Lal Bahadur Shastri said the Chinese explosion "has

PENANCE AT THE OLYMPICS

Snip, Snip . . . and Everyone Cried

Two Japanese newspapers say the girl was Russian. One identifies her as Elvira Ozolina, Russia's gold medal winner in the women's javelin throw at Rome four years ago, who placed a poor fifth in the finals here Friday.

But the Russians say the girl was not Ozolina. In fact, they say, she wasn't even Russian.

"No one on our team would do such a ridiculous thing," a spokesman for the Soviet Olympic team said today.

Mrs. Masako Tanomura, who manages the Olympic village beauty parlor, says the mystery girl walked in Friday afternoon, after the javelin finals.

GRABS SCISSORS

"She kept pointing to her head, motioning me to cut it. I started to cut her hair in the popular Cecile cut . . . she grabbed my scissors and snipped off a lock of her hair at the roots. A Russian-language interpreter passed by and I seized her and asked her to persuade the girl not to do this.

"But the athlete, with tears in her eyes, insisted. . . .

"I cut off her hair, all of it. By the time I was finished, she was sobbing. I was sobbing, too."

Mrs. Tanomura said the girl refused a scarf to cover her head and walked out, her face wet with tears.

40-Year Prison Terms For Killing 80 Girls

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Two sisters have been found guilty of slaying at least 80 girls in the operation of a white slave ring in San Francisco del Rincon, a town in central Mexico. The sisters, Delfina Gonzalez Valenzuala, 56, and Maria de Jesus Gonzales Valenzuala, 39, were given the maximum sentence, 40 years in prison.

Several hundred persons gathered in front of the court house in this small, isolated town Friday as Judge Timeteo Lozano pronounced his verdict. The trial began last January and brought forth details of starvation, beatings and death. Nineteen other persons were convicted of being members of the ring and given sentences ranging from one to 35 years. The prosecution contended the ring had been operating for at least 10 years and the girls who were slain had tried to resist discipline.

CROSSES ON RIVER FLOOR —CANADIANS NOT DULL

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians are anything but dull, says Centennial Commissioner John Fisher after seeing the wide variety of ideas suggested and planned for centennial projects.

For example, one town in the far north wants a cemetery vault for a centennial project. Mr. Fisher found the idea sensible, since the town has difficulty with its graveyard because of permafrost.

Then there's the man who sent in a design for a national chain of comfort stations. Or the one who wants illuminated crosses on the floor of the St. Lawrence River "to remind us of our religious heritage."

Mr. Fisher, speaking at a dinner here Thursday, gave an idea of the extent of the centennial planning—Cape Breton miners are reconstructing the history of mining on the island; Lethbridge is building a Japanese garden; Calgary is constructing a planetarium.

Since city and municipal codes apparently fail to offer protection against this nuisance, I can only suggest to the householder that he give the bucket-shop brigade short shrift.

Your phone rings. You answer. A voice, usually female and dulcet, puts this question: "Do you ever watch such-and-such on television?"

But being polite, you add, "Sometimes my children do."

"As a reward for answering our question," the voice then announces, "we are going to send you this-or-that magazine (or magazines) free.)"

From this point, the going becomes pretty slippery. At best, your 'reward' will consist of a package deal offered at a slight discount. At worst, you may wind up being pestered, heckled, or even threatened with court action.

I have no quarrel with the magazines offered, several of which we subscribe to. But the next con-girl who misuses Mr. Bell's invention to annoy us with one of these come-alongs is due for a tin ear!

This department a couple of weeks back got somewhat carried away with itself while offering program suggestions to our spiffy new McPherson Playhouse, a piece of sauciness to which the McPherson's business manager, Robert Ellison, responded much too promptly.

"We've reserved two on the aisle in the twelfth row for you," he replied by fast pigeon. "You can make your cheque out to the Corporation of the City of Victoria."

While plans aren't yet official, I understand the McPherson will celebrate its return to a place in Greater Victoria's community life with a week-long jamboree of varied entertainment.

Opening night still to be set . . . but at the pace things are shaping down there, it isn't too far off.

The notorious Royal Oak-Pat Bay Highway intersection is to get traffic lights at last, a move which I seem to remember hollering for a couple of years ago.

The widening and improvement project scheduled for the Pat Bay should give us a reasonably safe route along the peninsula, but I hope the powers won't trifle with the speed limits.

Sixty an hour is plenty, if not too much, for an open-access road of this sort.

In the last few weeks, I've seen at least half a dozen near crackups when some driver made reckless by a patience-fraying wait, whipped out of a sideroad into the Pat Bay's traffic stream.

I've heard talk of a 70-mile limit, and hope there's no fire behind this smoke. For unless the plans call for overpasses or underpasses, no amount of face-lifting will transform the Pat into a high-speed link.

While we're on the subject of highways, my thanks herewith to the three separate drivers who offered aid when a blowout-proof tire let go on me last week.

This continual fussing and fretting about the discourtesy of Victoria drivers irks me. The squawkers would benefit—if they survived—from a canter through Detroit, where a man doesn't rate as a driver till he's used up four fenders.

Old Soldiers Still March On 50 Years After Ypres Gas Attack

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It is the 50th anniversary of Vancouver Island Red Chevrons' Association, formed in the dark days of the First World War and perpetuated by more than 120 veterans who survived the first German gas attack on the Ypres Salient.

These hardy old warriors—soldiers, sailors and airmen who went overseas with the Canadian volunteers in 1914—attended a special service in Christ Church Cathedral and later placed a wreath on the cenotaph in memory of missing comrades.

Then they paraded past the Empress Hotel and turned eyes right in a smart salute to Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

OLDEST IS 96

Oldest member on parade was 96-year-old Dr. William Lockhart who was medical officer with the First Brigade Canadian Field Artillery, and treated hundreds of casualties from the first gas attack.

"We had no protection but our handkerchiefs," the still bright-eyed doctor said. "It was murder—plain murder."

Dr. Lockhart came to Victoria from his home on Salt Spring Island accompanied by 81-year-old E. O. Aves, a veteran of the 16th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

They swapped reminiscences with many other old-timers, among whom were Frank Hassall, a veteran of the South African War and the two World Wars; George Bonham, a veteran of the New Zealand Army; Frank Anders of the 7th Battalion, CEF; J. H. Robins of the 8th Battalion; Tom Pickering of the 52nd Prince Albert Volunteers—and a host of others.

YELLOW-GREEN CLOUD

They recalled a dirty yellow-green cloud which drifted over the Ypres Salient on April 22, 1915. And they remembered with bowed heads the countless young soldiers who died in the deadly chlorine fumes.

It was a bright sunny day and the Canadians, drinking tea and munching hard army biscuits, were puzzled by this sluggish low-lying cloud as it drifted towards them.

They knew the worst when the cloud poured into front-line trenches and rifle pits to begin the deadly work which not only killed but left countless invalids who are still alive today.

W. H. McMurray, president of the Vancouver Island chapter of the Red Chevrons' Association, was a signaller with the Third Canadian Infantry Brigade when the gas attack came.

W. H. McMURRAY
. . . president

It tore a three-mile gap in the Allied lines, but two battalions of Canadian troops held their ground, despite casualties so severe that for years after the actual count was kept secret.

RESERVES RUSHED IN

Mr. McMurray recalled how reserves were rushed in to patch up the decimated 13th and 14th battalions.

Runners, batmen, signalmen, drivers and cooks were armed with rifles and rushed into the line to help stem the German attacks which hit the Canadian sector for 10 days.

"We faced the gas attack with wet handkerchiefs and strips of cloth plastered over our faces," said Charlie Chase, vice-president of the Vancouver Island chapter.

Berkeley Monteith, who is treasurer of the chapter, said the Red Chevrons' Association was formed in 1931.

"It is one of the most exclusive ex-servicemen's groups in North America," he said, "since it is composed only of men who went overseas before Dec. 31, 1914."

160 SURVIVORS

Mr. Monteith estimated there are about 160 surviving members in British Columbia and about 120 on Vancouver Island.

"Most of our members seem to finish up on the Island," he said.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes was greeted on the steps of the cathedral by Brigadier W. K. G. (Shorty) Colquhoun, 6 ft. 6 in. tall and an original member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and Archbishop Sexton.

In his address, Archbishop Harold Sexton said the tragedy of war was only mitigated by the fellowship existing among men in the front lines.

Tonight the Chevrons are attending a reunion banquet in the Empress Hotel ballroom at which rum rations will be broken out and Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will be guest of honor.

AFTER 10 YEARS

Ready to Save Historic Sites

Ten years' work to bring about a trust for historic buildings in Victoria will come to fruition Monday night.

Dr. C. H. Borsman said today the first meeting of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Trust will be held at 8 p.m. at 941 Pandora.

Officers and trustees, including Mayor R. B. Wilson, will be elected.

The trust was incorporated recently under the Societies Act. It was an outgrowth of a Victoria Chamber of Commerce committee headed by Dr. Borsman.

The trust was formed because it was found almost impossible to accomplish anything without being incorporated, he said.

LEGAL ENTITY

"This gives us the opportunity to receive trusts and legacies," he said.

The new group would try and give tangible support to existing historic associations.

"It is not our intention to buy buildings and keep them open," he said.

"We want to assure preservation by encouraging people to live in them or use commercially.

DR. BORSMAN

The trust was planning a 100-page handbook which would also be for sale, on historic buildings. It would include pictures of virtually every interesting building with brief notes.

Dr. Borsman expected about 200 persons to attend Monday night's meeting.

Youths Brawl In Ward Of Hospital

City police were called in and quelled the disturbance, but not before a plate glass door in the hospital had been shattered.

Police said the fight in the ward apparently started after Grant Basanta, 2715 Quadra, brought four youths into the ward for treatment.

Somewhere along the line, two of the youths were cut, and a third received a black eye.

Detained in hospital with cuts were Kenneth Alexander, 17, of 3356 Oak, and David John MacMillan, 18, of 26 Marlborough.

The fourth youth was Rodney Arendel, 18, of 1438 Stadacona, said city police.

PREMIER WOULD 'BE HONORED' IF HE IS

Premier Bennett says he would be "highly honored" if there is a ceremony for him next Feb. 15.

On that date, he will become the longest-serving premier in B.C. history—nearly 13 years.

"But I am not doing anything, or suggesting it, or planning it," the premier said of a possible ceremony.

PREMIER ON YUKON:

Bride Must Be Willing Or No Wedding March

"They must come into B.C. of their own free will and accord," he told reporters Friday.

"Keeping house is bad enough. But you must have a willing bride."

He thought there are three ways the north can be developed.

The north can go on as now, with the federal government, or the Yukon could join with the Northwest Territories and form a province.

With the first, "there will be no development at all," and the second wouldn't strengthen Canada or help the north because of scattered population and weak tax base.

The third possibility would be for the western provinces to extend their boundaries north to the Arctic. "Then the north could be developed," he said.

In the long run, the Yukon could be "a great asset to B.C."

"But we are not pushing them," he said.

Premier Bennett also said he doesn't think the Senate will veto B.C.'s bill for a bank.

"I would be very amazed if they did," he said.

The bill has bogged down in the Senate while two others, Laurentide and the Bank of Western Canada, have gone to the Commons.

He thought all three bills should be in the Commons at the same time. "It would be proper procedure," he said.

BODY FOUND IN TRAILER

Warrant Issued For Regina Man

Warrants have been issued locally for the arrest of a Regina man wanted in connection with the mystery death of a woman whose body was found in an abandoned trailer in Burnaby.

A Victoria man found the body after going to reclaim the trailer, and RCMP in Burnaby say the woman may have died here.

Gerry Coad, co-owner of Tolmie Home Service, 3201 Douglas, went to Burnaby to reclaim the trailer he rented to a man last month.

She had been dead at least a month when Mr. Coad saw her body through a window of the 14-foot house trailer.

'TRAILER THEFT'

He is being sought as far south as San Francisco, where a U-drive vehicle he is believed to have rented was traded in on another car.

Burnaby RCMP told the Times this morning there were no signs of violence on her body, but that its stage of deterioration was sufficiently advanced that bruises might not be readily seen.

There were no signs of a fight inside the trailer, they said.

An autopsy was under way this morning to attempt to determine the cause of death.

RCMP said they have no reason to believe widely-circulated report that the woman may have died of an abortion.

The trailer had been sitting on the motel lot since a man checked in there on Sept. 16.

He registered as having his wife with him, but RCMP said this morning no one at the motel reports seeing the woman

The proprietor said he was not suspicious when the trailer sat there for weeks — people often leave trailers and go for boat trips up the coast.

POLICE INFORMED

After three weeks, he told RCMP.

They found the trailer belonged to Tolmie Home Service, and notified Mr. Coad to come and pick it up.

There were no keys in the trailer when Mr. Coad arrived, and he looked into the window.

He saw a pair of feet. Moving around to another window, he saw the entire body.

The same couple was checked into a Victoria auto court two days before arriving in Burnaby.

The next day, the man obtained a trailer, and carried the woman out into it.

When the proprietor went into the suite to tidy up afterwards, the pillow was stained with mucus, police said.

He pleaded not guilty, then withdrew the plea when he learned it would men a trial during the week, when he has lectures.

"My students need me more than I need the money," he told the court.

He declined to give details of the offer or who it was from. These would be disclosed at a membership meeting, he said.

CROSSES ON RIVER FLOOR —CANADIANS NOT DULL

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians are anything but dull, says Centennial Commissioner John Fisher after seeing the wide variety of ideas suggested and planned for centennial projects.

For example, one town in the far north wants a cemetery vault for a centennial project. Mr. Fisher found the idea sensible, since the town has difficulty with its graveyard because of permafrost.

Then there's the man who sent in a design for a national chain of comfort stations. Or the one who wants illuminated crosses on the floor of the St. Lawrence River "to remind us of our religious heritage."

Mr. Fisher, speaking at a dinner here Thursday, gave an idea of the extent of the centennial planning — Cape Breton miners are reconstructing the history of mining on the island; Lethbridge is building a Japanese garden; Calgary is constructing a planetarium.

DANGER TO PEACE: INDIA

'Fear Tremor' Strikes In Blast's Aftermath

The United States played it down. So did the Chinese Communists themselves. But it sent a double tremor of fear coursing through the rest of the world, especially in Asia: Fear of Communist China's ambitions, fear of the spread of nuclear weaponry.

European diplomats speculated that the Chinese bomb had blasted Nikita S. Khrushchev out of the Soviet premiership. He was out of office before the bomb exploded. But his Soviet colleagues may have blamed him for miscalculating the Chinese in the first place, diplomats theorized.

Khrushchev had agreed in 1957 to help the Chinese with their atomic technology, presumably including weaponry. He reneged on the agreement in 1959. This helped bring on the Sino-Soviet feud.

Possibly Khrushchev did not believe that the Chinese could build the bomb by themselves so soon.

Unquestionably, Communist China remains vulnerable to nuclear attack by the United States or the Soviet Union. The U.S. Seventh Fleet still rules the sea in the Far East, and no challenger is in sight.

The Chinese themselves urged a world conference to ban nuclear weapons — but as usual omitted a mutual inspection system, which the West deems crucial.

They also pledged that they would never be the first to use nuclear weapons: "The Chinese people can be trusted."

But in Thailand, a U.S. ally, a cabinet minister told reporters, "quite a lot has changed since Friday.

A spokesman for the Malaysian foreign ministry said the explosion constitutes "a threat to non-Communist nations in the region."

India fought and lost a border war to Communist China two years ago. Indian Premier Lal Bahadur Shastri said the Chinese explosion "has

Snip, Snip And All Cried

Two Japanese newspapers say the girl was Russian. One identifies her as Elvira Ozolina, Russia's gold medal winner in the women's javelin throw at Rome four years ago, who placed a poor fifth in the finals here Friday.

But the Russians say the girl was not Ozolina. In fact, they say, she wasn't even Russian.

"No one on our team would do such a ridiculous thing," a spokesman for the Soviet Olympic team said today.

Mrs. Masako Tanomura, who manages the Olympic village beauty parlor, says the mystery girl walked in Friday afternoon, after the javelin finals.

GRABS SCISSORS

"She kept pointing to her head, motioning me to cut it. I started to cut her hair in the popular Cecile cut . . . she grabbed my scissors and snipped off a lock of her hair at the roots. A Russian-language interpreter passed by and I seized her and asked her to persuade the girl not to do this.

"But the athlete, with tears in her eyes, insisted. . . .

"I cut off her hair, all of it. By the time I was finished, she was sobbing. I was sobbing, too."

Mrs. Tanomura said the girl refused a scarf to cover her head and walked out, her face wet with tears.

Red Press Blasts Nikita: 'Hare-Brained Scheming'

MOSCOW (CP) — The first bill of indictment issued against Nikita Khrushchev suggests that personality played a big part in the downfall of the flamboyant Soviet leader.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today sets out some reasons for the decision to relieve Khrushchev as premier and Communist party first secretary.

Named premier in the shakeup announced early Friday was Alexei Kosygin, 60, former first deputy premier. Named first secretary was Leonid Brezhnev, 58, who had been one of a number of party secretaries.

The editorial does not name Khrushchev but clearly refers to him when it denounces "cult of personality" and "subjectivism and drifting in Communist construction."

"Hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, bragging and phrase - mongering, commandism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience" are alien to the party.

The editorial, regarded as both a limited policy statement and a bill of particulars against the 70-year-old Khrushchev, indicates nevertheless that the new Kremlin leaders will go ahead with the Soviet plan to call a conference of world Communist parties. There had been speculation in the aftermath of the power shift that the meeting might be called off as a gesture of reconciliation toward China, which has bitterly assailed it and declared that China will not be represented.

EMPHASIS

Pravda emphasizes the party line provides for "application of the principle of peaceful coexistence between states with a differing social order," something China opposes.

The only hint of a change in policy is in a sentence emphasizing the importance of "strengthening party leadership in all spheres of the economy and culture."

In praising the principle of collective leadership and saying a personality cult is alien to communism, the editorial tarred Khrushchev with the same brush that he used on Stalin in the days when Khrushchev was denouncing the late dictator for fostering a personality cult.

The import of the editorial is that domestic considerations played a major role in the fall of Khrushchev.

PEACEFUL TRANSFER

Transfer of power appeared to be taking place peaceably though there was no firm guarantee that Khrushchev would not fight back. A Western diplomat expressed the opinion that Khrushchev, being "a party man," would go gracefully.

Authoritative sources said the Communist party central committee voted Khrushchev out of power and lodged charges of incompetence and nepotism against him.

NIKITA PRESENT

The nucleus of the central committee, its predium, met Tuesday night, with Khrushchev present. It was reported to have voted to remove him from his most important job, first secretary of the committee.

By Thursday the secret activity was beginning to become obvious.

When the central committee vote came, Khrushchev lost. The count has not yet become known but the result showed that Khrushchev had been outmanoeuvred within the party machinery.

PRIORITY

Wilson Tackles Trade

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today tackled his new Labor government's most difficult and pressing problem by calling in his "inner cabinet" for an urgent survey of Britain's economic strength.

The 48 - year - old leader plunged into his first full day of office by giving top priority to these talks—even before completing his cabinet.

Wilson accepted Friday Queen Elizabeth's invitation to form an administration after Thursday's narrow election victory over Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative party and quickly named key cabinet posts from among his Labor party team.

MEET NEXT WEEK

The first full cabinet meeting was likely to be held early next week to discuss proposals made by the Labor administration's top men as a result of their talks.

Some economic experts believed the government may introduce import controls among its short-term measures to deal with the vital trade issue.

An influential role in the new Parliament may be played by Jo Grimond's minority Liberal party, which stepped up its House of Commons representation to nine seats from seven.

Addressing the nation Friday a few hours after one of the most dramatic election races in British history, Wilson referred to his small majority in the House of Commons and declared:

"I want to make it quite clear that this will not affect our ability to govern. Having been charged with the duties of government we intend to carry out those duties."

White Slave Slayers Get 40-Year Terms

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Two sisters have been found guilty of slaying at least 80 girls in the operation of a white slave ring in San Francisco del Rincon, a town in central Mexico. The sisters, Delfina Gonzalez Valenzuala, 56, and Maria de Jesus Gonzales Valenzuala, 39, were given the maximum sentence, 40 years in prison.

Several hundred persons gathered in front of the court house in this small, isolated town Friday as Judge Timeteo Lozano pronounced his verdict. The trial began last January and brought forth details of starvation, beatings and death. Nineteen other persons were convicted of being members of the ring and given sentences ranging from one to 35 years. The prosecution contended the ring had been operating for at least 10 years and the girls who were slain had tried to resist discipline.
